Willkie Gives 6-Point Plan For 'Little Business' Aid

Charges New Deal Has Favored Big Concerns in Talk At New Haven

Into New England

By William B. Ardery
Associated Press Staff Writer

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 9. Outlining a six-point program designed to rebuild "little business," Wendell L. Willkie said tonight that the New Deal had been "stepping on the neck of the little businessman—the druggist, the grocer and the little manufacturer."

"The biggest companies can not expand much," the Republican Presidential nominee told a crowd on the New Haven Green. "But the little companies must expand and must multiply if we are to put our people back to work. This is the only way by which we can make enough new jobs."

After touring 116 miles through a score of Connecticut towns, Willkie here addressed an unruly but cheering crowd estimated at 42,000.

Rules Must Be Simplified

He declared: "I have a program for the rebuilding of American business. That program begins with little business:

"1. I propose that we stop changing the rules under which business operates.

"2. Every little business man will know that we favor his efforts to make new jobs for those who are now dependent on relief.

"3. We must simplify business regulations.

"4. We must revise the tax structure.

"5. The SEC regulations (regarding the raising of new capital) are too complicated. We must simplify those regulations. We must also find other ways to help little business to raise capital.

"6. I propose that the Government undertake to build the best possible laboratories in various parts of the country. And I propose that the Government put those laboratories at the disposal of little industry and little business at a nominal fee."

Charges Confidence Destroyed

Willkie contended that "the New Deal has sold this Nation a bill of goods—it has sold us on the idea that jobs are difficult to make."

He added that there was a potential market of many billions but that New Deal attacks against business "has utterly destroyed the confidence of business."

Declaring that the New Deal is offering "theatrics, not facts," Willkie opened his campaign for New England votes today by telling audiences in a half dozen Connecticut cities that there must be an end to Federal deficits and debts.

The Republican Presidential nominee left his special train at Stamford at 9 a. m. and sped by sound-equipped automobile to Norwalk, Westport, Bridgeport, Waterbury and other communities.

Many signs saying that "We, the people, want Willkie," were displayed along the route, but on some Willkie's name had been blacked out and President Roosevelt's substituted.

The Republican candidate told his audiences that the Administration is offering "high sounding phrases

Flood Hero Called

Roosevelt Asks Dykstra, Head Of Wisconsin U., to Run Draft

Cincinnati's Former City Manager Says He's Considering Job

Clarence Addison Dykstra, 57-year-old president of the University of Wisconsin and a hero of the Ohio Valley floods of 1937, last night was considering whether to accept the post of director of selective service.

During the day Dykstra called at the White House to see President Roosevelt. On leaving the executive offices Dykstra told reporters, who asked if he had been offered the selective service job, that the decision would take "some considering."

Secretary of War Stimson accompanied Dykstra to the White House, apparently signifying that the university head was his choice for the task of directing the registration and selection of America's first peacetime compulsory service army.

Dykstra lost no time yesterday in familiarizing himself with problems that will confront the 16,400,000 men from 21 to 35 who will register for service October 16.

Though he insisted that he had not decided to accept the President's offer, Dykstra spent the afternoon conferring with educational leaders on how to gear education to the national defense program to serve the interests of youth in the best manner.

He attended a meeting of the executive committee of the National Committee on Education and Defense at the Mayflower Hotel. The committee represents 55 member organizations, reaching all phases of youth and adult education.

Leaders Fail To Win Recess Until Nov. 18

2 Sessions Weekly Decided; Barkley Charges 'Politics'

By John B. Oakes
Post Staff Writer

Despite completion of their legislative schedule, Administration leaders were unable yesterday to obtain Congressional agreement to recess until after the election.

However, Majority Leader Barkley announced that he planned Senate meetings only on Mondays and Thursdays, beginning next week, and he hurled the charge of "politics" at the Republicans for refusing to make a gentleman's agreement not to bring up any business.

And in the House, the Monday-to-Thursday recess also appeared most probable, starting next week. Unable to secure enough votes for a recess to November 18, the Democratic leadership had indicated that the House would be called into session every day—in order to register all absentees.

But last night this projected "war of nerves" was expected to give way Monday to an arrangement—perhaps more formal than the Senate's—that sessions would be held only twice a week and no business would be executed.

The Senate, in recess today, will meet tomorrow and then on Mondays and Thursdays, said Barkley.

New Silver Spring UnderpassPledged 'Early as Possible'

Col. Ezra B. Whitman, chairman of the Maryland Roads Commission, announced yesterday following a conference at Baltimore, that the Silver Spring underpass, scene of many accidents, would be reconstructed "at as early a date as possible."

Cost of the project was estimated at $400,000, of which the Montgomery County Commissioners pledged $60,000. Final details of financing the work will not be completed until after January 1, when the 1942 grade crossing elimination funds become available, it was said.

Called by Gov. O'Conor, the conference was attended by representatives of the United States Public Roads Administration, the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, the Montgomery County Commissioners and State Roads Commission.

Machinery Attuned

Recommendation today of 72 persons for advisory selection posts and appointment of 7,136 Washingtonians as registrars will virtually complete selective service machinery here.

Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, military training executive, this morning will submit to the Commissioners his recommendations for a 24-man Registrants Advisory Board and for one Government representative and a physician to each of the 24 local board areas, the officer said.

Notification of their appointment as registrars will be mailed late today to the more than 7,000 persons selected from those volunteering for the manpower inventory that will launch selective service here, Dr. Chester W. Holmes, assistant superintendent of schools in charge of registration, announced.

At the same time that he presents his advisory recommendations, Gen. Cox will submit six supplemental nominations to local boards, he said.

The six will be offered as substitutes for five discovered to be of selection age, and therefore ineligible for board membership, and for one appointee who left the Capital last week, reportedly to enlist in the Navy.

Gen. Cox pointed out the raising of the board membership to five from three was designed to take care of just such a contingency as this.

While the respective boards would not be crippled by the reduction in their number to four, still one more

Fascists Practice War on Border; Belgrade Advised To 'Adapt' Self

By the United Press

Rome, Oct. 9.—Sharp warnings to Yugoslavia to swing into line with the Rome-Berlin Axis were issued today as Premier Mussolini watched his troops stage a sham battle with live shells close to the Yugoslav frontier.

Meanwhile the Italian high command reported a resumption of Fascist infantry activity on the Egyptian front where the Italians are 80 miles deep into Egyptian territory, pointing toward the Suez Canal.

Significance was attached to the sham battle of the Italian northern army, which brought Il Duce to within 18 miles of the Yugoslav border, and a simultaneous warning to the Belgrade government in the influential newspaper, La Stampa, of Turin.

Told to Adapt Itself

La Stampa criticized Yugoslavia for delaying in "adapting itself" to the Rome-Berlin Axis idea of the "New Europe" and warned that unless the Belgrade government alters its policy it will travel on dangerous road.

The infantry and artillery maneuvers near the Jugoslav border were witnessed by military attaches of Hungary, Spain, Bulgaria and Rumania while, not far away, German troops moving into Rumania also were within striking distance of Yugoslav territory.

To the south, Mussolini has forces in Albania which could strike quickly at Yugoslavia.

Mussolini's tour has disclosed, significantly, that Italy's leading army—the Po army—still is being held in readiness in the north instead of fighting in Africa as many observers had believed.

The presence of such a crack fighting force on the Italian mainland has heightened speculation over possible Axis moves in southeastern Europe.

Await Speech by Duce

Millions of Italians tonight anxiously awaited an important speech which Mussolini is expected to make tomorrow at Padau after he reviews 20,000 Fascist youths born 18 years ago at the time of Mussolini's march on Rome. Reports spread that Mussolini might make an "important announcement" regarding the decisions which he and Adolf Hitler reached at the Brenner Pass meeting last Friday.

Premier Mussolini's newspaper Popolo d'Italia promised the United States today that it will fall heir to Canada, Australia, New Zealand, the Bahamas and Bermuda if it remains neutral while Germany and Italy proceed with the "destruction" of the British Empire.

La Stampa, in its attack on Yugoslavia, asserted that the Belgrade government had failed to eliminate Masons and Jews from important administrative posts and that its anti-Semitic measures have been "ineffective" compared with the sweeping legislation of Germany and Italy.

"Yugoslavia unable to adjust itself to new times," said the head-

Bucharest Cuts Off Oil to Greece; Leave Rumania, Britons Urged

By the United Press

Bucharest, Oct. 9.—Great Britain is "virtually certain" to break off diplomatic relations with Rumania as result of the establishment of German troops at strategic points throughout the nation, it was stated tonight in diplomatic quarters.

Simultaneously the threat of hostilities between Rumania and neighboring Hungary flared anew, with an allegation that 440 Rumanians have been butchered in the Transylvanian territory recently ceded to Hungary under Italo-German pressure.

Horia Sima, leader of the Nazi-type Iron Guard over which Rumania's new premier has assumed "spiritual leadership," made the allegation in a speech at Brasov.

British Leaving

"Peace in the Danube basin is menaced," Horia said.

British nationals, of whom there are about 600 in Bucharest, are leaving Rumania, particularly those connected with the oil industry who have been advised by the British legation to leave without delay.

Meanwhile Rumania has banned export of oil to Greece, which means cutting off all supplies, since Greece until now has obtained her oil from Rumania.

The impending diplomatic break between Britain and Rumania, which until recently held a British "guarantee" of its frontiers against German aggression, was forecast after a conference between British Minister Sir Reginald Hoare and Premier General Ion Antonescu.

In what may have been a last effort to preserve friendly relations, Hoare conferred during the afternoon with Rumania's new pro-Nazi dictator and sought to obtain a satisfactory reply to a British note asking "elucidation" of the German troop movements.

Antonescu's reply to the British minister was reported to have been "negative."

Nazi Officers Arriving

Fifteen German officers wearing civilian clothes were reported to have checked in at one hotel today and informants said that many German air force officers were in the Rumanian capital.

Reports from Galatz, on the Danube at the edge of the Russian-occupied Bessarabian district, told of many German trucks labeled with

Doctor Grenfell, Benefactor of Labrador, Dies

Charlotte, Vt., Oct. 9 (U.P.).—Sir Wilfred Thomason Grenfell, founder of the Labrador medical mission and known throughout the world as "the Labrador Doctor," died of a heart attack at his home tonight. He was 76.

Grenfell had retired from active missionary work in Labrador several years ago because of a heart ailment. In 1892 he left England to investigate conditions among fishermen of Labrador and Newfoundland. His first summer's work consisted of treating 900 patients.

The challenge to Labrador was so strong that Grenfell returned the next summer and set up his first cottage hospital. From that small beginning the Grenfell mission has grown to include five hospitals, six nursing stations, four combined orphanages and boarding schools, as well as clothing and food distribution centers.

His work now is carried on by a permanent staff of about 60. Grenfell was knighted for his work in 1927.

Gray Veterans, Youngest 89, Jig When Band Plays Dixie

GRAY OFFICER AND THE LADY—Col. S. T. Seagraves, 93-year-old Confederate veteran from Jennings, La., calls for another waltz. His partner is Mrs. Samuel Cockrill, of Washington

To the strains of a marching song that echoed back 75 years, a thin gray line marched, then danced last night in a ballroom draped with the Stars and Bars.

As gay as the melody "Dixie," and in spirit as lively as a cavalry charge, two score stooped, white-thatched veterans of the Confederacy swarmed out on the grand ballroom of the Willard Hotel.

Led by their 94-year-old commander-in-chief, Gen. J. F. Howell, of Bristol, Va., they filed up and down the dance floor on the arms of wives, daughters, and granddaughters, as the band player the "Stars and Stripes Forever."

Then, when the musicians swung into Dixie, Gen. John W. Harris, 91, of Oklahoma City, and his niece, Mrs. Albertine Nigh, of the same city, broke into a jig. Other veterans, some discarding canes and the supporting arms of relatives, followed suit.

But as the "Rebel Yell" rang through the hall, one old soldier faltered.

A doctor and nurse were rushed to the dance floor. They searched for the ailing veteran in vain.

"He must have remembered you can't lick a Virginian," a bewhiskered colleague remarked as the veteran, anxious to avoid the ignominy of medical attention, had himself whisked from the hall.

Prominent among the dancing veterans last night was bearded Maj. James E. Monroe, who lays claim to 124 years.

But all the veterans were a carefree lot last night. There was a slight goat-bearded man with a black patch over one eye and a uniform coat heavy with a dozen medals. He jigged, even during the slower music, like the four-year-old toddler who clung to the coat-tails of another warrior, clad

German Factories, 'Invasion Ports' Hit In Far-Ranging Raids

London, Oct. 9.—Royal Air Force bombers blew more holes this morning and last night through Chancellor Hitler's plan for war against Britain.

They fired the naval bases of Bremen and Wilhelmshaven. They bombed the power station at Kiel and severely blistered oil refineries at Hamburg and Gelsenkirchen. They struck Essen, the home of the big Krupp works.

They hammered such "invasion" points as Flushing, Calais, Boulogne, Lorient, Gravelines and Rotterdam, as well as other places inland, including war factories, airplane bases and other targets in western Germany, Holland, Belgium and France. From all raids, according to the air ministry announcement, every raider came home safely.

Americans in Shanghai Storm Line Offices for Passage Home

By the Associated Press

Shanghai, Oct. 9.—With passenger liners already heavily booked far in advance, travel agencies and steamship offices were besieged today by Americans fearful of the gathering United States-Japanese crisis in the Orient.

Many American businessmen, accepting the State Department's counsel to get out of the Orient, started liquidation of their holdings and church societies stepped up arrangements to assemble their missionaries who wish to leave at likely points of embarkation.

How many of the 13,000 Caucasian Americans and 3,000 nationals of Oriental stock would depart was uncertain, but it was reported that 3,000 might be removed on the liners President Coolidge and President Pierce in early November.

It was said that State Department representatives were trying to get shipping board approval for the two United States liners to carry only American citizens on the early November trips to the United States. Many Europeans and Jewish refugees now have reservations.

United States naval and Marine officials declined to discuss plans for removal of service families. It was reported, however, that a transport might be sent soon to Shanghai.

Besides about 1,200 Marines composing the American defense forces in the Shanghai International Set-

'The Future Looks Dark'

Social-Economic 'Revolution' For France Outlined by Petain

By the United Press

Vichy, France, Oct. 9.—Chief of State Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, attempting to reconstruct a broken France, tonight announced plans for a social and economic "national revolution" in which rich and poor will share alike.

In a nation-wide radio broadcast, the aged Petain said that national mutual aid committees are being created in both free and German-occupied zones as a prelude to a far-reaching program of civic reconstruction.

"A new statute—prelude to important reforms—will fix relationship between capital and labor," Petain said. "Dignity and justice will be assured for everyone. Family ideals will be placed in honor. Encouragement and help will be accorded, contributing to the restoration of homes and stimulating the birth rate. Reformation of education, which already has begun, will remake national unity and give youth its proper place within a harmonious, balanced structure."

To attain these goals, Petain said, it has been necessary "to push aside old habits, hinder the ease of living and harm certain interests."

Already, the French director said, 3,000,000 refugees and 2,000,000 demobilized soldiers have been returned to their homes to take part in the new program. Most of the bridges destroyed in the war have been restored. Transports almost entirely have been reestablished.

British Report Mounting List Of Casualties in All-Night Attack

Parade of Death

By the Associated Press

London (Thursday), Oct. 10. More than 50 districts of London suffered the blasting and burning of high explosive and incendiary bombs last night and early today in one of the worst overnight German air raids yet directed at this capital. In relays the raiders paraded over the city, dropping their missiles from border to border.

Among the objects struck were a famous church, one of the city's oldest hotels, and a promenade known the world over.

There were two lulls in the assaults early today, but each ended as fresh waves of Nazis sailed in high over the antiaircraft barrage to drop new bombs.

One stick of bombs straddled a district which has been persistently attacked since the air war began.

Prime Minister Churchill himself, watching the awesome conflict, saw one raider shot down in his own constituency. (This is the Epping District of Essex, just to the northeast of London.)

The plane was hit high in the air, and searchlights trailed the three parachuting Nazi fliers to earth.

Secretary Hull's Cousin, 20, Joins Army as Private

Knoxville, Tenn., Oct. 9 (AP).—Cordell Hull's second cousin, Elbert Hull, came over from Fentress County today and joined up with the Army.

The clear-eyed mountain lad hitch-hiked into town from his farm home at Shirley, Tenn., where his mother is postmistress, to volunteer for duty in the Air Corps. Elbert is 20 and had to obtain his mother's consent.

"If we're going to have a war I want to be ready and have plenty of training," he drawled. "Besides, I haven't been around much and I thought the Army offered a good opportunity."

Elbert—whose grandfather, Lewis Hull, was a brother of Secretary of State Cordell Hull's father, Billy Hull—was assigned to the Army's air base at Savannah, Ga.

Night-Long Raids Rake All London

40 Districts Struck, Famous Church and Hotel Damaged

Simultaneous raids were carried out against Wales, southwest and northwest England. They all were heavy but nothing like the battering London was experiencing.

As an example of the severity of the conflict, a few hours after the early start of the raid eight districts of the city had been hit.

(Presumably this means such old geographical divisions as Mayfair, Westminster, Elephant and Castle, Bloomsbury, and the like. Names and locations of the affected districts are withheld by the censor.)

One observer reported seeing at least 14 fire bombs fall in a 4-mile walk.

Blast Upsets Bus

One big London bus was upset by a bomb hit which injured a number of passengers and broke the driver's leg. A passing doctor borrowed a bobby's tin hat and set to work treating the victims.

A passenger on another bus, describing a direct hit, said:

"Our driver decided to make for the nearest shelter when things became too hot. We made the archway in front of a well-known building. Then we heard the bombs coming down.

"Most of us were able to fling ourselves to the ground, but some were thrown into the air and against the building.

"Paving blocks, glass and bomb fragments were strewn over a wide area."

A pedestrian who was posting some letters had them jerked from his hand as if by a truculent giant. He later found them undamaged, scattered 50 yards away.

It was one of the worst overnight raids London has experienced since big scale bombing of the city began September 7.

Sleep was impossible, the continuous noise disturbing even those who have accustomed themselves to snatching 40 winks between bomb blasts.

The raiders dropped one flare after another through great clusters of bursting antiaircraft shells before cutting loose with their bombs. Many incendiaries were dropped on the city's outer fringes.

Operating in groups of four or five, some German craft left vapor trails which could be seen like ribbons in the sky.

One bomb fell in a famous thoroughfare (perhaps Whitehall or Downing Street) without damaging nearby well-known buildings.

In one district a number of fires were started by a "Molotoff breadbasket."

Chapel Is Struck

In a southwest town a bomb hit a Wesleyan Chapel while an entertainment was in progress. The chapel stewards were among the fatally injured.

The top of a London bus was ripped off as the driver and passengers huddled in a shelter near a church. Windows of the church were damaged. The roar of a plane pulling out of a dive and the rattle of a machine gun were heard afterwards.

The German planes came at about the usual time for this familiar night attack, after day-long thrusts both at London and at the southeast coast, and one of the first of their number to reach the city's outer defenses was reported shot down in flaming pieces by ground guns.

All about the city spent shrapnel pattered down as the barrage grew heavier and heavier.

During the day the raiders had arrived in irregular formations apparently intended to puzzle the antiaircraft, flying in staggered groups of a dozen or less, and one of the buildings hit was a hospital whose every patient was a victim of previous raids.

108 Buried in Another's Ruins

This time, so far as could be learned, there were no casualties there, but in the splinters of another hospital workers dug during the day with little hope that any of its 108 patients—most of them invalids 80 years old or more—had escaped death or injury from the bombs which struck the building in Tuesday night's attack.

In today's assaults, the air ministry said, casualties were "very few," although damage to "a number" of buildings, was officially acknowledged. Several homes were smashed on the south coast and a factory in the Midlands was hit, although the damage was described as slight.

The day brought an official disclosure that the library of University College, London, had been bombed in a recent raid, with more than 100,000 books destroyed or damaged by the resulting fire. Two members of the staff were killed and eight others wounded. The university's memorial hall was virtually demolished. The loss was so great that the authorities were unable to make a precise estimate, but one said that the great hall was a mere waste of twisted steel covering an area as big as a football field.

Discussing in the House of Commons these endless raids, Capt. H. H. Balfour, undersecretary for air, said flatly that no completely raider-proof defense was in sight for London, adding that no known system could be so good as to assure that no raider would be able to break through in clouds or at night.

"Large mass day attacks undoubtedly are the major threat to this country," he added. "But the enemy has failed to break down our fighter defense in this major effort. . . . The answer to the critic who asks 'Where are our fighters today?' is that for every raider a critic sees our fighter defenses have intercepted masses, and thus saved the country's defenses."

The Nazis returned to the attack tonight on an accustomed pattern. They struck not only at London, but over at least two towns in the southwest and one in the midlands. They appeared, too, over towns in the northwest and northeast.

Italians Reconnoiter

Cairo, Oct. 9 (AP).—Italian land forces have ventured briefly out into the sandy no-man's land of the Egyptian western desert for the first time since they established themselves on the coastal strip, the British middle east command reported tonight.

The operation apparently was a feeler for the expected big drive to the east, the British said.

Motor transports accompanied by light tanks moved into the Bir Enba region south of Sidi Barrani, then withdrew to their original positions.

The British added that an Italian bombing plane was shot down during these operations.

Grounded Italian planes were pelted with bombs at Bardia, Libyan port, direct hits were scored on Eritrean harbors and fires were started among barracks in a series of R. A. F. raids yesterday, the British African command announced.

A communique said far-ranging bombers carried out the attacks from the edge of the western desert to Ethiopia and Eritrea.

tlement, the United States has a small garrison at Tientsin.

A Tokyo dispatch quoted the Japanese foreign office spokesman as expressing surprise at the Americans' home-going.

"We can't understand the necessity of it," he said, asserting that Japan had no intention of advising her nationals to leave the United States.

The American-owned Shanghai newspaper, China Press, declared that Washington and Tokyo had fixed their courses and that "a head-long collision appears inevitable unless one of them changes its course—but if there should be any turning about, the chances are it won't be the United States."

Weighing the Chungking Central Chinese government's position in the light of any Japanese-American war, it predicted that Japan would quickly seize all undefended American interests in the Orient but that the United States' superior resources eventually could crush Japan and force her out of China.

The Shanghai stock market recorded a drop of from 3 to 5 points from yesterday's close.

Some observers expressed anxiety lest Japanese army leaders, regardless of official Tokyo's attitude, move against the British Crown colony of Hong Kong, on the South China coast, to retaliate for Britain's decision to reopen the Burma Road October 17 to war supplies for China.

Dispatches from Tokyo told of press intimations that Japan would try to close the road with bombs from newly won air bases in French Indo-China, if Britain reopens it on schedule.

One Tokyo newspaper took the British decision as an indication of British-American cooperation against Japan, and expressed the belief that, as a result, Tokyo's relations with Washington would be even more strained.

China Asks British Aid

Copyright by New York Times

London, Oct. 9.—China, it was learned today, has asked Britain to send a mission of military and technical experts to China to help Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek in his fight against Japan.

The Chinese asked for experts on airplane and automobile engines to assist in solving their transport difficulties and they also let it be known that they need aviation oil and gasoline, fighter planes, antiaircraft guns and railroad material. If they get any guns or planes from the British, however, it will be the best diplomatic trick of the century.

Japan Plans No Reprisals

Tokyo (Thursday), Oct. 10 (INS).—Although the Japanese press sharply criticized the United States for advising Americans to leave the Far East and Britain for its decision to reopen the Burma Road, Japan let it be known today that she does not plan any reprisal measures against either power.

Japanese newspapers contended the opening of the Burma route would mean little inasmuch as Japanese forces are now based in Indo-China from which territory they can strike effectively at the Chinese section of the highway.

They warned, however, that any attempt to ship munitions over the road would result in drastic Japanese counteraction.

City an Armed Camp

Copyright by New York Times

Shanghai, Oct. 9.—Without any of the usual preliminary warnings to the public, this city became an armed camp tonight as far as the International Settlement and the French Concession are concerned.

Foreign authorities feared some overt acts might precipitate disorders and give Japan an excuse for taking over the foreign areas under the pretense of maintenance of law and order.

All liberty for the United States Marines was ended at 10 p. m. and the same ruling applied to the sailors aboard the American naval vessels anchored in the river, while police as well as reservists in both the International Settlement and the French Concession were called to special duty. The Shanghai Volunteer Corps was mobilized at full strength to string new barbed wire barricades at strategic points in the streets.

The reason for these precautions was that Thursday is China's "Double Tenth" holiday, equivalent to the American Fourth of July, and it was feared that terrorists from both the Chungking and Nanking governments would be busy.

On occasions of this kind there is always danger that the Japanese military, with their thousands of hirelings, Chinese hatchetmen and criminals from the bad lands, might deliberately foment disorders.

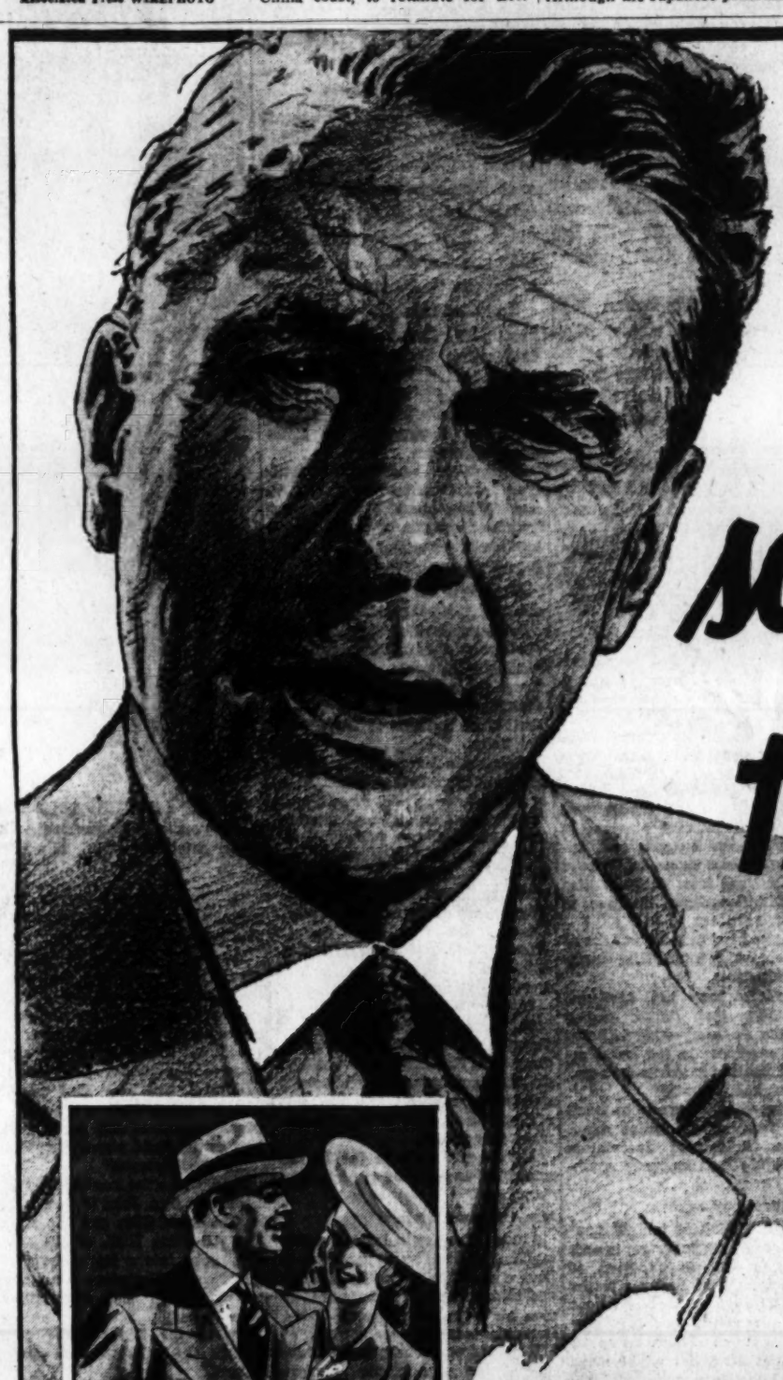
"Preferred Values at Deferred Payments"



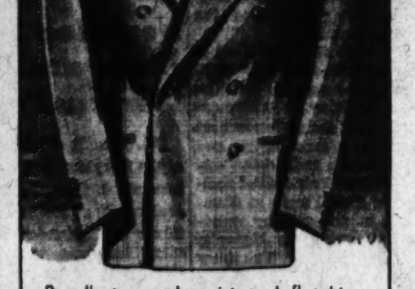
"Why hasn't somebody told me these things?"

Maybe you're in the same boat—so listen. I like smart looking clothes, same as the next fellow. Been paying plenty, too! Now how would you feel, when a lot of the fellows who call you "Boss" start putting up a better front? Frank W.—he's one of my salesmen—gave me the lowdown. "Frank", I grunted, "What have you got that I haven't got, to make your clothes fit and look so much better?"..."Guess it's the Bond habit, Boss", he chuckled. "You see, Bond clothes are made in Rochester. And those Rochester fellows do things with a needle and thread that'd make The Hunchback of Notre Dame look like Gable. Try Bond's and see." Best advice I've had in years. Never knew a few subtle style touches could make such a difference. Got a good lesson in sensible spending, too! "The Bond habit"—humph! Should have had it long ago.

Bond's low-set collar gives you that vigorous square-shoulder look flattering to all men. A Rochester-quality feature seldom seen in any but expensive custom suits.

Bond's long, rolling lapels magically appear to make you inches taller.

Bond's chesty drape combines distinguished style with solid comfort.



Bond's tapered waist and flat hips perfectly camouflage all bulges.

Roosevelt Gains Pinchot's Support

'This Is No Time for Green Hand,' Says Former Pa. Governor

By the Associated Press

President Roosevelt gained the political support of Gifford Pinchot, former Republican Governor of Pennsylvania, yesterday.

Meanwhile a Senate committee planned to investigate charges by unnamed complainants that WPA jobs were being increased prior to the election and that the AAA was engaging in politics, and Edward J. Flynn, Democratic chairman, returned to New York from a Western tour reporting that "Willkie forces hope to buy the election" with unprecedented expenditures.

Pinchot handed reporters a statement after a White House call saying that "this is no time to put a green hand in charge of the ship" and that "Roosevelt represents our best chance for security and peace."

He declined to say whether he would support Senator Guffey (Democrat), Pennsylvania, and the Democratic State ticket or to predict the outcome of the voting in the important Keystone State.

Mr. Roosevelt also received a report from Henry A. Wallace, his Vice-Presidential running mate, that the situation "looked pretty good" in the Western States Wallace toured. The White House made public a telegram from Senator Donahey (Democrat), of Ohio, saying that ill health would prevent him from joining the President's party in Ohio Friday but predicting Mr. Roosevelt would carry the State.

"G. O. P. Offers Nothing"

Attorney General Jackson declared in a radio address last night that "against the threat of the revolutionary totalitarian idea, the Republicans have nothing to offer America."

"You do not have to look any further than the Republican candidate's campaign to prove that he has nothing to offer," Jackson said in a speech prepared for the radio.

Wendell Willkie, he declared, "began by demanding that the President debate with him, but has shown that there was no need for it."

"He debates with himself, taking both sides of every issue," Jackson continued. "For example, in Indiana he asked for a Republican Congress which would repeal some of this 'pernicious legislation.' At other times he has assured his audience that he is for the social program of the New Deal."

Jackson described the Willkie foreign policy as "equally confused."

"One day," said the Attorney General, "he scolds Mr. Roosevelt for his forthright statements about the aggressors and the next day, and sometimes in the same speech, he himself out-Roosevelts Roosevelt in denouncing them. He demands aid for Britain, but when it is given, he denounces it as arbitrary and dictatorial.

"Nobody can deny that the New Deal has made mistakes. But it cannot be denied that through these dangerous times—which in Europe have produced dictators—the President's leadership has held this country to ways of orderly living and free institutions."

Barkley Blasts Willkie

Senators Barkley (Democrat), of Kentucky, and Green (Democrat), of Rhode Island, in separate statements, took issue with a remark they attributed to Willkie that if the Roosevelt Administration is returned to power "you will never collect a dime on your social security."

"The same argument was made by the Republicans in that shameless last-minute campaign in 1936 to convince workers through pay-envelope warnings that the social security system was worthless," Barkley said.

"Since that time $3,000,000,000 has been paid out to citizens under the Social Security Act. Apparently the Republicans never learn that deception doesn't pay."

Green, as chairman of the Democratic Senatorial campaign committee, termed Willkie's charge "sheer nonsense."

James H. R. Cromwell, New Jersey senatorial nominee, accused Willkie of "a most personal, unjust and untrue smear attack" in calling Cromwell "our playboy ambassador."

Mrs. Isabella Greenway King, Former Democratic Representative From Arizona, Announces Opposition to Third Term

Tucson, Ariz., Oct. 9 (AP).—Mrs. Isabella Greenway King, former Democratic Representative from Arizona and an intimate friend of the Roosevelt family, said today she would support Wendell L. Willkie.

MRS. KING

In a telegram to the Arizona Daily Star from New York Mrs. King praised the Republican Presidential candidate's "sound and courageous program" and said she was opposed to the principle of a third term.

Mrs. King was a bridesmaid at the wedding of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt. At the 1932 Democratic convention she seconded Mr. Roosevelt's nomination.

Willkie a 'Show Off,' Says Sen. Lucas

Coffeyville, Kans., Oct. 9 (AP).—Senator Scott W. Lucas (Democrat), of Illinois, tonight termed Wendell Willkie a "hasty, blundering showoff—one who speaks before he thinks."

"No other Presidential candidate in the past three quarters of a century has so clearly revealed his temperamental unfitness for the delicate task of guiding our Ship of State," Lucas, Midwestern campaign chairman for the Democratic National Committee said.

Speaking here in the home county of Alf M. Landon, former Governor of Kansas and Republican candidate for President in 1936, Lucas recalled that Willkie visited Coffeyville recently and commented:

"I am constrained to say, from my knowledge of the two men, that the seasoned statesman of Montgomery County, Gov. Landon, is a far wiser and more stable man than the ubiquitous Mr. Willkie."

Dunn Survey Points To Willkie Victory

The Republican National Committee issued a statement yesterday saying that the Dunn Survey had predicted the election of Wendell L. Willkie with a minimum of 334 electoral votes.

Rogers C. Dunn, director of the survey, is a statistical analyst who has been taking polls for six years, the committee said. He declared that Willkie undoubtedly would carry all States north of Virginia, Kentucky, Arkansas and Oklahoma and in addition would carry Colorado, Wyoming and Oregon.

Time Error Caused Ickes to Cancel Speech

Secretary Ickes said yesterday that a miscalculation of radio time plus a new show of Roosevelt strength in political polls caused him to cancel his proposed stumping tour of the Pacific Northwest.

He was to have spoken at Portland, Denver and Seattle. While en route, he said, he learned that his major address at Portland, in which he intended to challenge Wendell L. Willkie's stand on public power, could not be broadcast then.

Excess Profits Tax Bill Signed By Roosevelt

Measure Expected To Prevent Growth Of 'War Millionaires'

President Roosevelt has signed the Excess Profits Tax-Plant Amortization Bill, designed to speed rearmament, prevent growth of "war millionaires," and raise an estimated $1,000,000,000 annually of new revenue, the White House revealed yesterday.

Mr. Roosevelt affixed his signature to the measure at 11 o'clock Tuesday night. Part of the bill was at one time subject of dispute between the Treasury and the Defense Commission.

The second revenue act of 1940 imposes "levies ranging from 25 to 50 per cent on excess profits, authorizes five-year amortization of new plant facilities constructed for defense-material production, and suspends profits limitations on certain Army and Navy contracts.

A last-minute amendment also provides low-cost insurance for all men serving in the armed forces, including regulars, selects and reservists and National Guardsmen called into active duty.

To offset revenue losses caused by Senate amendments to the House bill, the Senate committee increased normal income taxes on corporations making more than $25,000 net profit annually by 3.1 per cent. This increase, retained in the bill, raises normal corporation taxes to 24 per cent.

The alternatives provided for computation of normal earnings are (1) average earnings from 1936 to 1939, inclusive, with 95 per cent of this average exempt from the new impositions; or (2) a flat 8 per cent on invested capital. By either method, the first $5,000 of excess would be exempt.

Taxes will be imposed on earnings in excess of these "normal" profits on this basis: 25 per cent on the first $20,000 of the excess; 30 per cent on the next $30,000; 35 per cent on the next $50,000; 40 per cent on excess profits from $100,000 to $250,000; 45 per cent on those from $250,000 to $500,000 and 50 per cent on all over $500,000.

The law empowers the Commissioner of Internal Revenue to adjust "abnormalities" in income, such as earnings accruing suddenly after several years of litigation, exploration or development.

Any firm whose net income is less than $25,000 is permitted to carry over for one year any portion of its exempt earnings base which was not actually earned. Thus, if a firm's exempt earnings base was found to be $19,000, but it made only $14,000, then it could carry over the $5,000 difference and would be allowed to make $24,000 the following year before being subjected to excess profits taxes.

The Vinson-Trammel Act set a limit of 8 per cent on profits under certain types of Army and Navy contracts, mainly airplane and ordnance. It was repealed on the grounds that the new bill's excess profits taxes will prevent accumulation of unduly large profits.

Lehman Incites War Hysteria, Holt Charges

W. Va. Senator Assails N. Y. Governor, Other 'Interventionists'

Senator Holt (Democrat), of West Virginia, yesterday charged that Gov. Herbert Lehman of New York is "inciting war hysteria" in order to swell the dividends from "war stocks" held by Lehman Corporation, New York investment trust.

The West Virginian held the Senate floor for an hour to deliver his savage attack on alleged "interventionists" who, he asserted, have a financial interest in involving this country in war.

Holt said Gov. Lehman "waves the flag while the Lehman Corporation keeps getting dividends from war contracts."

Cites Lehman Holdings

The New York Governor, according to Holt, "is not officially connected with the Lehman Corporation now, of course, but he still has his holdings there and the corporation is still in the family."

Among Lehman Corporation holdings Holt cited shares in Bendix Aviation, Vultee, Stinson and Lockheed Aircraft, Hercules Powder, Dow Chemicals, New York Shipbuilding, Freeport Sulphur and Bethlehem, Republic, Youngstown and United States Steel.

"As the profits come into these 'war baby' stocks," he shouted, "the profits drain to Lehman Corporation, and in turn drain to Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, who has been going all over New York trying to incite hysteria for American involvement in war."

Wants Contract Bidding

The West Virginian claimed that the present practice of Government negotiation of defense contracts—instead of by competitive bidding—is leading to "favoritism and profiteering which will make 1917-18 look pretty small."

Anyone demanding an investigation of these negotiated contracts is charged with being pro-German or told, "You are against defense," Holt said.

"What we want," he continued, "is that every dollar appropriated for defense should go for defense, and not have 80 cents spent for defense and 20 cents spent for political favorites."

Doctor Arraigned On Drug Charge

A Washington physician was arraigned before United States Commissioner Needham Turnage Tuesday on 10 charges of violating the narcotics act, and released on $500 bond. The accused man is Dr. Samuel L. Stark, 60, colored, of 1132 New Jersey avenue northwest.

Secret Service men who made the arrest, asserted they had obtained narcotics through Dr. Stark's prescriptions.

Republicans Charged With Trying to Buy Election

New York, Oct. 9 (AP).—Edward J. Flynn, natioinal Democratic chairman, returned from a tour of the West today with a charge that "the Willkie forces hope to buy the election" by expenditure of huge sums of money.

Flynn said he found organization forces for the Republican Presidential candidate were "spending more money than had ever been spent in a national campaign."

In a statement released at the press conference, Flynn replied to an attack on him by Willkie last night, calling it "silly" and commenting that Willkie's censure of political "machines" was "limited to those of our party."

"The people of the United States are not flocking to the Roosevelt standard because I happen to be chairman of the Democratic National Committee or shying away from Mr. Willkie because of the personnel of his organization."

"It is purely on a comparison between the President and Mr. Willkie that such commentators as Dorothy Thompson have come out for Roosevelt, that the Springfield Republican, after long consideration, has done the same thing, that the Republican Chicago News has whacked Mr. Willkie over the knuckles or that the anti-Administration St. Louis Post-Dispatch has rebuked the minority party candidate."

Ramspeck Bill Postponed Until Election

Passage Blocked By Disagreement On Amendments

By Edward Ryan

Congressional action on the Ramspeck Civil Service Bill was deferred yesterday until after the November election as House and Senate conferees failed to agree on two amendments credited with blocking final approval of the bill Monday.

Senator Mead (Democrat), of New York, spokesman for the five Senate conferees, said the group were "unanimously" against accepting the House demand for restoration of the Nichols job quota amendment in the Ramspeck Bill.

The Senators felt, said Mead, that reporting the conference disagreement to the Senate now would "jeopardize" chances of eventually getting the bill through. Delay until after the election, he said, would increase the chance of working out a compromise that would insure passage.

Chairman Ramspeck, of the House Civil Service Committee, said that he and the other Democratic representatives in the conference thought it a mistake to delay the bill. They would have preferred, he said, to report the bill in disagreement, and give both Houses a chance to act on the controversial amendments separately.

Ramspeck said that "without being critical of the Senate conferees" the Democratic representatives believed that postponement now would endanger the bill. There was no assurance, he said, that the Congress would transact any business after the election. If nothing were done with the bill in the few weeks between the election and the end of the Seventy-sixth Congress the civil service bill would have to be started all over, Ramspeck said.

Mead, however, explained that their move to delay the bill had been approved by Majority Leader Barkley with the assurance that there would be three or four days of legislative action after the election during which the bill could be taken up again.

Mead added that before the next conference he wanted to confer with Senators concerned with the two controversial amendments. The Nichols quota plan would bar civil service extension benefits for employes from States over their apportioned Washington job quotas until all State quotas were filled. Among the hardest hit by the plan would be employes from the District and nearby. Mead explained that he wanted to talk to Senator Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, whose State is far above its quota, and Senators from other over-quota States, about any possible compromise plan.

He said he would also confer with Senator Minton (Democrat), of Indiana, about his amendment to require abandoning the Civil Service Commission practice of requiring job candidates to submit their photographs. The Minton amendment, offered as a means of avoiding racial discrimination in hiring Government employes, was credited by some backers of the Ramspeck bill with turning away about 40 votes that favored the bill when the House first passed it in February.

Ramspeck said that the compromise quota plan discussed yesterday would have limited application of the Nichols plan to jobs in the District, where the quota regulation now applies, leaving jobs in the field service to be brought into civil service under the bill without regard to State quotas. A second part of the compromise suggestion, he said, would have thrown open the jobs in Washington held by employes from over-quota States to competitive examination before they could be covered into the merit system.

Men from the outdoors are being sought by the Civil Service Commission to fill $2,000-a-year jobs with the border patrols. Candidates for the exams have to show that they have been regularly engaged in outdoor activities for at least a year, the Commission said. Deadline on applications is October 21.

Other exams have been opened for these jobs: Safety instructor, $1,800 a year, and assistant, $1,620, for the Bureau of Mines; junior pharmacist, $2,000; junior high-speed radio equipment operator, $1,620, for the Army signal service.

Requirements for shipfitters' helpers at the Norfolk Navy Yard have been changed to permit hiring men who have received one of the short vocational training courses under the Office of Education program, the commission said. Pay for the jobs is $4.32 to $5.28 a day.

Notes: James W. Young, director of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, and Defense Commission aide, has transferred from helping plan raw materials supplies to take charge of radio work for Nelson Rockefeller, the commission's coordinator for Pan-American affairs.

A dance for Commerce Department employes will be held at 10 p. m. Friday at 2400 Sixteenth street northwest.

The Federal Playhouse orchestra wants more musicians no matter what instruments they play. They rehearse at 8 p. m. Thursdays in the Roosevelt High School.

National Federation of Federal Employes officials reported yesterday their membership is gaining, with formation of three new Western locals in recent weeks.

Gallup May Ask Gen. Johnson To Prove Column's Digestibility

Poll Head Accepts Offer of General To Eat Own Printed Comments If Election Forecast Is Shown Correct

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 9.—Dr. George Gallup, director of the Gallup Poll, today accepted Gen. Hugh Johnson's offer that Johnson would eat his syndicated column if the Gallup Poll on the November election proves correct.

Gallup's statement:

"Gen. Hugh Johnson, in an attack on the Gallup Poll, has offered to eat his syndicated column if the poll is correct in forecasting the election in November. I accept the General's offer and will be knocking on his door the morning after election to hold him to his promise if the poll is right.

"Both Gen. Johnson and I write for newspapers, but he is a columnist and I am the conductor of a poll.

"As conductor of a poll, I can only be seriously wrong once. If in any election I make a mistake like the one committed by the Literary Digest, I may be as extinct as that publication.

"But a columnist may be seriously wrong as to his facts—he may be seriously wrong as to his assumptions—he may even be seriously wrong as to his prediction of events of forthcoming elections, yet the public will continue to read his column and, in fact, the column may even be more interesting because of the mistakes committed.

"There has never been a time when the Institute has not been criticized by persons supporting the candidate who is behind. What the General says about us sounds a good deal like what the astounded editors of the now defunct Literary Digest said about us in 1936.

"The Institute does not claim to be infallible. In fact, it has constantly stressed the margin of error which is inherent in any work which involves the sampling process. Nevertheless, the fact remains that the Institute has never erred in five years' time in predicting correctly the winner of any election.

"The Institute's record of acuracy in the 12 national, State and local elections which it has forecast since 1936 is as follows:

Move for Recess Till Nov. 18 Fails

The House will convene today and then quit until Monday.

A large part of yesterday's Senate session was consumed in discussion of the recess problem, until Senator Barkley finally shouted that if the Republican Party has "no issue to present to the American people more important than whether we shall take a three-day recess, it is in a desperate situation."

"Not on the surface, but under the skin—and not very deep under the skin—politics enters into this whole situation," he charged.

The majority leader pointed out that there "certainly" would not be a quorum of the Senate in town by today, and he attempted to reach a verbal agreement with the Republicans for strictly formal sessions every three days. (The Constitution forbids either House from recessing for more than three days at a time without consent of the other.)

But the veteran isolationist, Senator Johnson (Republican), of California, protested: "Here is a situation so near to war that it will take but a push to send us over the brink. We ought not to take any four-day, three-day or two-day recesses—or any at all that will take us from this chamber."

Other Republicans, including Minority Leader McNary, pointed to the seriousness of the Pacific situation as a reason for making no agreement that business will not be brought up except on the call of the Majority Leader. Senator Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, also urged that the responsibility should not be placed entirely on one man.

"Someone must have some judgment, discretion and responsibility in the matter," snapped Barkley. "If Senators do not wish me to assume that responsibility, I am glad to yield it to anyone else who is better qualified."

In the House, less than three-quarters of the membership answered to a roll call yesterday. Both Democrats and Republicans are privately anxious to get home to do some campaigning, but they are unwilling to officially adjourn Congress because, as one member ruefully said yesterday, the country has been "oversold" on the necessity of Congress remaining in session.

Willkie Offers 6-Point Program to 'Aid Little' Business

and dramatic gestures."

"If the people want those," he continued, "then don't vote for me, because I've got too much common sense for that.

"But some of these New Dealers think the people like theatrics and not facts."

Crowds broke police lines in Stamford and surged about the nominee's car, stopping it for some minutes. In several appearances, the throngs were so noisy that only those close to the nominee could hear him speak.

In Bridgeport, scattered boos were heard along with cheers and applause.

The nominee was accompanied on his drive by Gov. Raymond E. Baldwin, who was one of his early supporters.

Making Federal spending a theme of his talks, Willkie told his listeners that "your good hard common sense makes you know that if the Government continues to spend more than it takes in it will bankrupt itself."

He said that in seven and a half years the Administration has spent two fifths of the total of all Government expenditures since the Revolutionary War.

Repeating his pledge to support labor's social gains, Willkie added his contention that if the Administration is reelected, Social Security benefits will never be paid.

The leg of the journey from Waterbury to Hartford took Willkie through many highly industrialized communities where workers waved from factory windows. He received loud cheers as he drove through New Britain, a major hardware city.

In Hartford, capital of Connecticut and an insurance and aircraft manufacturing center, the candidate told a large audience at Pope Park that if Connecticut this year "arrives at the conclusion that democracy has so far failed . . . as to produce only one man in the United States qualified to be President, this Government has failed."

Willkie stopped in Hartford to talk with the Most Rev. Maurice McAuliffe, Catholic bishop of the Hartford diocese.

Boys bearing big signs saying "We want Roosevelt" stood in front of Willkie's car at the bishop's residence.

Volunteering May Defer Draft Call

Selective Offices Flooded by Requests To Begin Training

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

Selective service officials said yesterday that local offices throughout the country have been so flooded with men seeking immediate military training that the large majority of the 400,000 due to be called this winter probably will come from volunteers.

Maj. Joseph F. Battley, member of the selective service committee, returning from a Nation-wide tour conferring with State advisers and other officials, said the inquiries from volunteers was so great as to convince him that not only the "great bulk" of the 400,000 would come from this source, but that the first call in November probably all would be met by sending volunteers.

Tentative Army plans provide for calling about 100,000 men in November and no more until January and February.

Boards Must Act

Under the law, men subject to military training may request to take their year's service ahead of the time they would be called. Local boards, however, must pass on their requests, and if they feel the men should be deferred because they are "necessary" in their present jobs or because they have dependents, the men may be placed in deferred categories.

Such applications may not be received until after registration day, October 16, although one-year enlistments in the Regular Army will be accepted until then. Some of the men seeking immediate service, it was said, wish to complete their military obligation as soon as possible so they can go ahead with plans for college and business careers.

Battley said that throughout the country business firms are taking steps to hire temporary replacements for men who may be called, but that all of the industrialists with whom he talked expected not only to give the men back their jobs after their year of training but also to retain the men taken on as replacements.

He said that some firms with defense orders have been advertising for men, stating that jobs with them will exempt them from service, adding that he had tried to "squelch" such practice.

Deferment Problem

"It is only the key men necessary to operation of a business who will be deferred regardless of whether it is a defense or a nondefense industry," Maj. Battley said. "A man is more apt to be deferred because he is irreplaceable in a job he has had for some time than a new one, even if the latter is a munitions plant."

Government departments are now conferring with selective service officials, he said, on the problem of asking for deferments. Local boards will actually decide who is "necessary" under their civilian post.

"Men in the War Department and most other agencies are likely to be deferred only in exceptional circumstances," he added. Officials are not likely to certify a man as irreplaceable, as long as civil service rolls exist for his job."

Meanwhile, President Roosevelt directed the War Department to place into effect immediately a "fair and equitable" policy affecting colored persons in the national defense program.

Policy for Colored

The policy, drafted by the department after a White House conference, September 27, between Army and Navy heads and colored leaders, provides that the number of colored personnel in the Army generally shall be maintained in proportion to the colored population of the country and that the present plan of maintaining white and colored personnel in separate regiments shall be continued.

It was also provided that colored persons shall be given aviation training as pilots and mechanics and that colored air units shall be organized as soon as personnel are trained. Negroes called for training under the selective service law will be given an opportunity to qualify for reserve commissions.

The Senate, meanwhile, passed legislation authorizing the creation of "home guards" composed of World War veterans and youths under 21 to replace National Guard units called into Federal service. The measure was returned to the House with an amendment giving the War Department control over such troops, a move requested by organized labor. Labor contends that otherwise the formation of "vigilante" groups to suppress unions would be possible.

Navy Worker Is Found Dead In Gas-Filled Flat

Despondency over ill health was blamed for the suicide yesterday of Samuel Sondheimer, 57, of 3002 Rodman Street Northwest, a Navy Yard employe, who was found in his gas-filled apartment by his wife.

According to police, he asked his wife to spend Tuesday night with friends, leaving him alone in the apartment. He was found dead yesterday when she returned home.

Mrs. Ursula Sondheimer, the dead man's wife, told Detective Sergt. Jeremiah Flaherty that her husband had been in ill health.

Deputy Coroner C. J. Murphy issued a certificate of suicide.

INFORMATION TENT SET UP—An information tent and six-foot square maps of the 24 registration districts in Washington have been set up in the park in front of the District Building, Fourteenth and Pennsylvania avenue northwest. Gordon Hittenmark, radio commentator, now on active duty as a captain in the District National Guard, tells prospective registrants for selective service what they must do. help them make the adjustment back to civilian life after military service.

The program is being worked out in close cooperation with Selective Service headquarters and the National Defense Commission.

Built like a football fullback, Dykstra won national attention in 1937 when swirling flood waters inundated 25 square miles of Cincinnati, where he was city manager.

He was granted "absolute authority" to cope with the flood chaos and for a brief time acted as virtual dictator of the stricken city, managing to restore essential public services and keep Cincinnati's population of 460,000 from panic.

In March, 1937, he was appointed president of the University of Wisconsin, a post which he now holds and which, reportedly, he is reluctant to leave.

A firm believer in civil service, Dykstra served in Chicago, Cleveland and Los Angeles as secretary of civic organizations before going to Cincinnati as city manager.

Prior to his work in municipal government, Dykstra taught political science. He is a graduate of the University of Iowa.

The prospective head of the selective service system is married and has a son and a married daughter. He was born in Cleveland.

Louis Johnson, former Assistant Secretary of War, and Maj. Gen. Allen W. Gullion, Judge Advocate General, had been mentioned earlier as possible Presidential choices for the key defense job.

Draft Advisers to Be Named Today than the required minimum, the executive said he nevertheless would submit the substitute recommendations.

It was understood, however, the Commissioners, likewise believing four members sufficient for selection in each areas, would not at present send the additional nominations to the White House.

Possibility of refusals to serve and further age complications might develop, District officials pointed out. Should there be an appreciable number of such ineligibilities, then substitutes would of necessity be suggested and their names would be forwarded to President Roosevelt.

To find further ineligibles if any exist, the Commissioners ordered an intensive check of the entire board personnel. Gen. Cox likewise set his staff to work checking prospective advisory appointees for selection-age persons.

The selective service executive attributed the misappointments to confusion caused by raising of the age limit from 30 to 35 after the House and Senate conference.

Sponsors of various appointees had assured selection heads the prospective nominees were above above selection-age, apparently unmindful of the age boost.

After today's recommendations and appointments the only staff unit yet to be named is a medical advisory board, the number of whose members has yet to be determined.

In the letters of notification to be mailed tonight to registrars, appointees will be told the time and place to report for duty and will be instructed to report for a preliminary instruction at four schools Monday afternoon and evening.

Greek Guns Roar In War Rehearsal

Government Still Optimistic as Army Prepares for Worst

Copyright by New York Times

Athens, Greece, Oct. 9.—Morning and evening one can hear the thud of guns firing practice volleys out to sea beyond Salamis, the roar of cannonading in the mountains encircling Athens and the crackle of machine guns in the military training fields closer to the city. Greece is preparing for any eventuality.

The head of the government, Gen. John Metaxas, has told his ministers to hold themselves in readiness and not to leave the capital. A few days ago Under-Secretary of Foreign Affairs Mavroudis was hastily summoned to Athens from a health resort.

Every road and every bridge in the north is mined. Almost all technicians under 40 are in active service. Five military classes in all have been called up. A good many pack animals and some private automobiles have been requisitioned. Macedonia and Epirus are on a complete war footing.

Cost Is Staggering

Although staggering under the tremendous cost of this partial mobilization, this country, which even under the best conditions is desperately poor, is resolutely going about the business of self defense.

For nearly two months the Italian press and radio has vented its spite daily against this land, fabricating grievances and hammering into shape some kind of casus belli. People are getting used to abuse and hearing of alleged crimes committed against the fictitiously maltreated Albanian minority by nonexistent Greek personages.

Yet while these rampages from Rome, Bari and Tirana must be taken as indicative of possible attack, perhaps in the immediate future, their very enormity makes them appear like so much bluff and bluster. Besides, it is argued, what would Italy want with Greece when most of it is barren?

A chep victory would, of course, bolster the morale of the Italian people. But the Fascist high command must realize that war on this peninsula would, if successful, net few results of tangible importance and, if unsuccessful, would be disastrous.

Would Give Britain An Opening

Competent military circles here incline to optimism. They say an Italian attack on Greece would lay Italy wide open to a British counter-blow, since such a move would furnish Britain with an excuse to occupy Greek Island harborages. It is taken for granted that Crete, if not the Ionian Islands, would fall into British hands. Crete is a superb naval base standing between Europe and Africa.

In case of Italian attack those who believe Greece would give up after a token show of resistance are in the minority. Most believe that even if Athens were laid in ruins and the northern provinces overrun, the struggle would continue to the end.

There is much worry about the attitude of Bulgaria and Germany now, since the latter has started military occupation of Rumania. Bulgaria's press and radio seem to be following Italy's anti-Greek line and there have been recent instances of insulting treatment of Greek citizens by Bulgarians. There is also increasing anxiety as to whether Germany is planning a Near Eastern campaign into Turkey and the Levant.

Germany has withdrawn its invitation to the Greek government to send military representatives on a tour of inspection of French battlefields, together with similar missions of other neutral countries.

the swastika moving through the streets.

Because the drivers were in mufti it could not be learned whether they were German soldiers or civil authorities supervising the evacuation of German nationals from Bessarabia.

Sima, in his speech at Brasov, in which he spoke in his joint capacity as Iron Guard leader and vice president of Premier Antonescu's council of ministers, described widespread Hungarian atrocities in the ceded area of Transylvania.

"They massacred, butchered, hanged and shot to death 440 Rumanians, many of whom suffered martyrdom before death," he said.

"Hungary has failed to respect the (Italo-German) Vienna agreement. Peace again is menaced."

In some instances, he alleged, the Hungarians "nailed" Rumanian flags to the backs of Rumanians. Others were burned in public squares, hanged upside down, or had their throats cut.

"These provocations," Sima continued, "are foreign to the interests of the two peoples."

Antonescu Derided

(In Budapest, the pro-government newspaper Magyar Orszag described Gen. Antonescu's Rumanian regime as "childishly without caution and unable to maintain order" and said that, for this reason, the German army has been "forced to take measures to forestall possible action from within or without." Hungarian newspapers accused the Rumanians of maltreating the Hungarian minority and said disorders were rife.)

British Minister Hoare's conference with Antonescu in an effort to obtain a satisfactory explanation of the presence of the German troops in Rumania followed the British Legation's receipt of an unsatisfactory answer to its strongly phrased note Tuesday.

The written Rumanian reply, according to sources close to the British Legation, gave "certain assurances of a general nature" but pointed out that Rumania is determined to cooperate in all ways with the Axis powers, and particularly Germany. The note was forwarded immediately to London.

The arrival at the Black Sea port of Constanta yesterday of 8,500 tons of Russian oil allayed some of the apprehension here over Russia's attitude toward the arrival of German military units to "train the Rumanian army in German methods of warfare."

It is only a two-day trip by slow tanker from Russian oil ports to Constanta and it was assumed that the shipment had left Russia after the arrival of the Germans in Rumania was disclosed. Hence the arrival of oil was taken as a goodwill gesture on Russia's part.

The advice to British oil men to leave Rumania indicated that Britain virtually was abandoning the millions of dollars of investments of her citizens in Rumanian oil production.

The legation's warning was not regarded as urgent but it was expected that urgent warnings might be forthcoming at any hour.

British newspapermen and Britons engaged in other businesses in Bucharest were preparing for a precipitous departure, but not until orders are issued by the legation.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Theodore Schaefer plays an organ recital Wednesday evening in Covenant-First Presbyterian Church. Assisting artist: Gordon Barnes, barytone.

An organ recital interesting in program material and enjoyable for artistic performance was given last evening by Theodore Schaefer in Covenant-First Presbyterian Church with interludes of singing by Gordon Barnes, barytone. While the predilections of the average auditor were considered in transcriptions of such familiar items as Gluck's "Dance of the Blessed Spirits" and Debussy's "Clair de Lune," there were unusual pieces for the pleasure of those whose musical curiosity is never satiated.

First came a sturdy trumpet tune and an unmistakably British air by Henry Purcell, the English forerunner of Bach and a genius whose death at the age of 37 was as untimely as that of Mozart. His music has an individuality and a racial tang that set it apart from the conventionalities of his period.

In the third "Chorale" of Hendrik Andriessen one was introduced to a contemporary Dutch composer, who in this instance seems to have been influenced by the chromaticism of Cesar Franck. The restless movement of the music evaded contact with a fixed tonality and wandered from key to key in search of an ultimate resolution. Harmonic dissonance enhanced the feeling of perplexed quest. Yet the thematic logic of the piece showed that Andriessen is a man of ideas with a cogent manner of expressing them.

Charles Tournemire, as pronounced a mystic as his younger compatriot, Oliver Messiaen, was represented by his "Toccata on a Chorale," a striking work in which technical brilliance alternates with moments of rapt and almost ecstatic reverie of the spirit. Other numbers offered were the first movement of Widor's fifth symphony and a transcription of Leo Sowerby's admirable orchestral poem, "Comes Autumn Time."

Mr. Schaefer's readings were characterized by a subtlety of registration and a sense of tonal values most gratifying to hear. His playing is that of an artist sensitive to the finesse of phrasing and the nuances of accent. His competent technique is subservient to the purposes of interpretation.

Gordon Barnes, whose barytone voice is well placed and sonorous, contributed the robust and florid aria, "Honor and Arms," from Handel's oratorio, "Samson," and, on the more lyrical plane, Respighi's "Nebbie" and the "Morgen" of Richard Strauss. Particularly effective was his delivery of Mr. Schaefer's excellent and intriguing setting of John Donne's tenth "Holy Sonnet." The composer has caught in his music the crabbed style and the fierce integrity of the poet, who in the opening lines challenged: "Death, be not proud, though some have called thee mighty and dreadful, for thou are not so."

Hearing Promised On Potomac Tube

A hearing on the Smith bill authorizing an inquiry as to the feasibility of building a traffic tube under the Potomac River between Washington and Arlington County was promised yesterday by Chairman Lanham of the House Public Buildings and Grounds Committee.

Lanham told Representative Smith (Democrat), of Virginia, that he would hold a hearing after the elections or as soon as enough members return to Washington to constitute a quorum.

Chairman Randolph, of the House District Committee, meanwhile indorsed the project, which would carry both railroad and automobile traffic under the river if a commission found the plan practicable.

R. A. F. Fires 2 Naval Bases, Oil Refineries

national News Service dispatch from Berlin.

[Individual R. A. F. planes attempting to drive into Germany by way of Holland were forced to turn back at the border, jettisoning their bombs, it was asserted. No military damage was reported.]

Once more the weather sided in with the British. A wild southwesterly gale shrieked over the straits, kicking up high seas. Forbidding rain clouds gathered above the French coast at sunset, but curiously enough the sky above the English coast was clear at the same time and visibility from this side of the coastline was "fairly good," thus giving sentries an advantage for quickly spotting such unwelcome Channel travelers as the German troops who are supposed to be ready to attempt the invasion of Britain when Herr Hitler bids it.

Shipbuilding yards at Bremen and the naval docks at Wilhelmshaven were only two out of a dozen or more objectives chosen for the bombing attacks during the night and at both places, as elsewhere, pilots said on their return home that they had started explosions and fires.

The first wave of raiders reached Bremen at 8:15 p. m. and in the next hour and a half, their report said, the whole target area was systematically bombed with high-explosive and incendiary bombs which started not fewer than 14 fires.

More than 15 tons of bombs were unloaded over Wilhelmshaven.

Bombing planes made a swift attack on the naval base at Brunsbuttel, where one pilot said later he saw a string of fires ranging along or nearby its mole.

Oil Plants Set Afire

In the raid on the Krupp Works at Essen, a fire started by an early arrival acted as a bright red guide for following bombers, who dropped load on load of heavy bombs, they said, on the main buildings.

One plane released its main cargo on the Essen airport after having first taken part in the raid on the Gelsenkirschen oil plant. There, as at Hamburg, where other oil plants were set ablaze, big fires were started.

Officials asserted that a "high percentage" of direct hits were made on the Hamburg oil plants as one raider after another followed each other in rapid succession, coming in from all directions. Their bombs, the air ministry said, started a ring of fires, seemingly from blazing rivers of gasoline and oil gushing from broken tanks.

British officials said today letters received here from Helsinki, Finland, say whole blocks have been razed in Hamburg as the result of R. A. F. raids. The letters relate, according to the story given out here, "as an instance of the effect of the R. A. F.'s bombing trips, visitors to the Leipzig Fair had to spend up to eight hours in shelters. Buyers did their business as quickly as possible. Essen and Duisberg are suffering badly from the frequency of the air-raid alarms."

Police Slayer Seeking Parole

The Parole Board today will consider an appeal for the release of Harry Freeman, 37, who was sentenced to a life term for second-degree murder in July, 1925, in the shooting and killing of Policeman Raymond Leisinger, during an incident involving use of a smoke-screen car in a prohibition era case.

Under the District parole system, a person sentenced to life imprisonment is deemed to be serving a maximum of 45 years and would become eligible after serving one-third of that period.

handle the unemployment problem, Petain said, and thousands will be able to earn their living and at the same time help increase the productive power of the country.

Petain told the French people that the government tomorrow will publish its plan of action establishing the essential outlines of the new regime, including domestic and foreign policies, and a controlled economy. He termed it a "national revolution," social in spirit and institutions.

"Future Looks Dark"

"The government has lost neither its independence nor its tongue," Petain said in explaining why he had been silent for a month regarding France's future. "If I was quiet, it was because I was working."

He asserted that "this future looks dark and heavy." Material difficulties, Petain added, are proving great, "but we will proceed by steps with an ardent desire to find as wide a solution as possible to capital's problem for the moral and social health of our country."

"The problem of rationing came before the government as a painful necessity," he said. "This rationing was imposed upon us both by the severity of our defeat and by the will of our vanquisher. We didn't seek to dodge the cruel realities and, forced to demand the heaviest restrictions on the part of Frenchmen, we wished to assure equality for everyone in the face of this sacrifice.

"Everybody will have his part in our common privations without money being able to assure some escape from these sacrifices or arranging that those who are poor shall have to bear more sacrifices than others."

Raising Volunteer Army

Vichy, France, Oct. 9 (AP).—The French government began today the recruiting of a volunteer army of seven divisions, to which the nation's armed strength is limited under the armistice with Germany.

The volunteers will replace conscripts of the classes of 1938 and 1939, who still are with the colors. All unmarried French citizens over 18 years of age who have never been convicted of a crime are eligible to enlist for three years.

Joker Finds Car That Rolled Into Harbor Was His

James Forsythe, a filling station attendant, was quite philosophical last night when he heard that an automobile had rolled into the harbor from a parking lot in the 1200 block of Maine Avenue Southwest.

Sitting in a restaurant across the street, he said, "I wouldn't give a hundred bucks for that man's car over there in the drink."

Then he went back to his job at Fourteenth Street and Maine Avenue, while police looked up the car's license number, which had been taken down by one of several persons who saw the auto plunge down an embankment from the lot.

It was listed to none other than James Forsythe, who lives at 312 Second Street Southeast.

After learning that no one was in the automobile when it went over, harbor police left it up to Forsythe to get it "out of the drink."

Britain May Store Products In U. S. for Transshipment

By the United Press

London, Oct. 9.—Britain is considering the establishment of a "strategic reserve" of colonial products in the United States, ready for transshipment to points where they may be needed, it was reported reliably tonight.

Colonial foodstuffs and raw materials for which no market now exists would be stored safely in American warehouses. From there they could be shipped quickly to blockaded countries on the European continent whenever they succeeded in throwing off German domination. Such reserves also would naturally be available to the United States if America's other sources were cut off.

U. S. Plane Workmen Share R. A. F. Glory

With the Royal Air Force Coastal Command, Somewhere in England, Oct. 9 (AP).—An American airplane expert nominates workmen in United States airplane factories for a share of the glory in the R. A. F.'s fight with Nazi fliers in the Battle of Britain.

"Allowing for the skill of British pilots," says Donald H. Dunning, of Burbank, Calif., a representative of the Lockheed Corporation, "it is the men on the lathes and assembly belts in Burbank who keep planes from falling apart when German bullets make sieves of them."

Dunning just has completed six months in England training mechanics in servicing the Lockheed Hudsons which daily fly from this station on North Sea reconnaissance and bombing attacks on German shipping.

Dunning said he had seen American-made planes return to their bases so battered it seemed a miracle they could fly. British pilots swear by the American planes, he added.

Reich Must Attempt Invasion, Nazis Say

London, Oct. 9.—German airmen shot down over Britain and interrogated by intelligence officers assert that the invasion of this country must and will be attempted.

The Nazi fliers say the Fuehrer has been embarrassed in more ways than one by the conquests in Europe. Until the empire of King George VI is humbled, these subject nations will continue as millstones around the neck of the new Germany.

U. S. Studies More Planes for Britain

Faster Aid Takes Place of Far East As Official Concern

Accelerated aid to Britain's embattled air force, and the extent to which Russian war supplies will be made available to China's army resisting Japanese invasion were topics in the Capital yesterday.

More rapid aircraft deliveries to the British, including possible release of some of the Army's 46 Boeing flying fortresses were reported unofficially to have been discussed during the day by Treasury, Army and Navy officials and a British purchasing representative.

This country let it be known that new contingents of naval personnel being added to the ships of the Fleet, now based in the Pacific, will bring the fighting force's manpower to full strength.

Otherwise, officials took no further public notice of the strained situation in the Far East but continued to keep in closest touch with developments in the European conflagration.

Russia's Policy Not Discussed

At the State Department, it was said that this country had not discussed with Soviet Russia the Moscow government's policy on continuing supplies to China. The comment was made regarding a published report from London that Russia had notified Britain and the United States that she would place no obstacles in the way of such assistance, following Japan's signature of her new alliance with Germany and Italy.

It was clear, however, that continued Russian assistance to the Chinese would create a favorable impression here.

The conference reported to have dealt with aircraft for the British was attended by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, William S. Knudsen of the Defense Commission, James Forrestal, Assistant Secretary of the Navy; Robert Patterson, Assistant Secretary of War; Gen. George C. Marshall, Army Chief of Staff; George H. Brett, Assistant Chief of the Air Corps, and Philip Young, who has been acting as liaison official between Secretary Morgenthau and the British purchasing board.

Purvis, Morgenthau Confer

Before and after the conference Arthur B. Purvis, chairman of the British purchasing board, was in conference with Morgenthau.

None of the officials would discuss the meeting.

Earlier, Secretary of the Navy Knox had revealed at a press conference that 4,200 men were being added to the personnel of the fleet to bring it to full strength. He had just held conferences with Admiral J. O. Richardson, commander of the fleet, on the entire Pacific situation.

Continued attention was given, meanwhile, to relations with other republics in the Western Hemisphere in furtherance of the hemisphere defense policy.

Norman Armour, Ambassador to Argentina, after a conference with President Roosevelt, said "relations between the Argentine and the United States are better today than they have ever been before." He talked with the President before departing by air for his post, following a vacation.

Mexican Envoy to Report

Mexican Ambassador Francisco Castillo Najera, after numerous recent discussions with Undersecretary of States Welles on Mexican-United States problems, said he would fly to Mexico City today to make a personal report to President Cardenas on the talks.

At the same time, 20 Latin-American army officers were being entertained at Fort Knox, Ky., while on a tour, as guests of this Government, of United States defenses. Today they are scheduled to visit the Ford plant at Detroit.

7 Applications Get Approval Of Zoning Board

The Board of Zoning Adjustment yesterday approved seven zoning variances but deferred action on a petition by the Mayfair Gardens Corporation, which plans to build a $4,000,000 dwelling development at Kenilworth Avenue and Barnes Lane Northeast.

The Zoning Commission meets today at 2 p. m. to consider 14 proposed changes in the zoning regulations.

Actress Who Accused Goebbels Married in U. S.

Hollywood, Oct. 9 (AP).—Blond Gitta Alpar, Hungarian opera singer and movie actress, and Niles Wessel Bagge, Scandinavian actor and singer, returned today from Las Vegas, Nev., where they were married.

ALPAR

Miss Alpar arrived in New York from Germany last January and told of a fist fight in which she said her divorced husband, Gustav Froelich, administered a beating to Joseph Goebbels, Nazi propaganda minister, over the affections of an actress.

She said Hitler compelled her husband to divorce her in 1934 because it was suspected she had Jewish blood.

Rep. Anderson Charges Death Plot to Bridges

Presents Testimony He Says Also Supports Sabotage Accusation

Representative Anderson (Democrat), of Missouri, yesterday placed before the House testimony which he said supports his charge that Harry Bridges was involved in conspiracies to murder an anti-Communist labor leader and to sabotage an American liner as it passed through the Panama Canal.

Anderson, renewing his demand for deportation of Bridges, termed the West Coast maritime leader a "Communist thug who seeks to Sovietize America and destroy the American merchant marine."

"What influence can this alien Communist have in this Government of ours," Anderson inquired, "that enables him to go on unmolested with his plots and conspiracies to destroy this country?"

The testimony, which Anderson said he was quoting from Justice Department files, was given by Walter Carney, described as a "former bodyguard" for Bridges.

Carney testified, according to Anderson, that Bridges had agreed with others that "Joe Ryan must be eliminated from the picture in order that the waterfront section of the Communist Party could control the longshoremen."

This decision came after Ryan, president of the longshoremen's union, and the exxecutive board had expelled Bridges because of "communistic tactics and policies," according to the record cited by Anderson.

Carney was to be paid 5,444 to get somebody to do it," Anderson said, but the murder was never attempted because the men chosen for the job were imprisoned for theft of union records.

The testimony quoted by Anderson also charged Bridges with agreeing at a Communist conference in San Francisco in 1936 to a conspiracy to sabotage the steamship Pennsylvania as it neared the Culebra Cut in the Panama Canal.

The plot was not carried out, Anderson said Carney explained, because Communist crew members "did not get word that a strike was called until we reached Havana."

San Francisco, Oct. 9 (AP).—Harry Bridges branded as false tonight a statement read on the floor of Congress asserting he had plotted to kill another union leader, and described the maker of the statement as a confessed labor spy.

The statement read by Representative Anderson (Democrat), of Missouri, was signed by Walter Carney.

"Joe Curran, president of the National Maritime Union, has four or five signed confessions from Walter Carney showing that he was a labor spy paid by the steamship companies to do a job of union wrecking," said Bridges, California C. I. O. director.

Vital London Rail Lines Hit, Germans Say

Nazis Also Report Troopship Struck, 7 Airports Ruined

Berlin, Oct. 9.—German bombers smashed railway communications vital to the job of supplying London today, informed sources declared, in new aerial assaults on Britain.

Hit, too, said D. N. B., the official German news agency, was a gas works in an English southeast coastal city; an airport near London, and a merchant ship lying in an east coast harbor.

At the airport, it was said, hangars and barracks were destroyed.

All this capped an earlier announcement by the high command that a single German fighting plane had scored several hits on a British troop transport in an attack on five such ships, all "fully-occupied," moving about 125 miles off the Scottish coast under protection of an armed convoy. The vessel, estimated at 20,000 tons, the communique added, "stopped and lay motionless."

No Casualties Mentioned

Nothing was said as to loss of life aboard the transport.

(The announced scene of the incident, which was northwest of Ireland, would put it on the route often traveled by Canadian troops moved across for the defense of England.)

This assault was but one of a series of successes claimed by the high command in the war at sea: A Nazi auxiliary cruiser was reported to have sunk a total of 52,000 tons of "enemy merchant shipping in overseas waters," and a British merchant ship was declared to have been set aflame off Scotland by the bombs of a reconnaissance plane.

Recapitulating the aerial offensive of yesterday and last night, the high command declared that seven British airports had been destroyed; "numerous" British planes had been smashed on the ground; fires left in barracks and supply stations in south England, and many cities, harbors, industrial plants and rail concentrations heavily attacked; 300 tons of bombs loosed on London.

Many Houses Hit

Tuesday night's British raids on German industrial plants and railways were beaten off, it asserted, but "many houses in several cities of north and northwest Germany were damaged by bombing and several civilians killed."

It was acknowledged by D. N. B. from Brussels, however, that British pilots were "constantly molesting" Dunkerque and other Nazi-held French Channel ports.

Senate Amends District Jobless Benefits Act

The Senate yesterday passed and sent to the White House a bill amending the District Unemployment Compensation Act so as to extend benefits to employes of national banks in Washington.

Due to a ruling of the corporation counsel and an amendment of the Social Security Act, national banks in the District have been subject to the payroll tax but its employes have not been eligible to receive benefits.

The Senate District Committee in a report explained that under the original Social Security Act, instrumentalities of the United States were exempt. The District corporation counsel and a number of court decisions in the States held that national banks were Federal instrumentalities and not subject to the act.

In 1939 the national act was amended so as to include national banks, but the District Unemployment Compensation Act had not been altered heretofore.

Gen. Frank Rowell To Be Retired as Chief Of Embarkation Port

Maj. Gen. Lloyd R. Fredendall yesterday was named commander of the Fourth Division, at Fort Benning, Ga., the Army's only completely motorized infantry division. He is now at Fort Sheridan, Ill.

Fredendall

At the same time, the War Department announced that Maj. Gen. Frank W. Rowell, now commanding the New York port of embarkation, Brooklyn, would be retired because of ill health.

Brig. Gen. Homer M. Groninger, now stationed at the Presidio of Monterey, Calif., will succeed Rowell as commanding officer.

Lindbergh to Make Third Defense Speech

Lindbergh will deliver the third address he has made in recent months on "national defense" over the Mutual Broadcasting System's national network on October 14. The address, Mutual officials said today, will not be political and will be aired between 8:45 and 9 p. m. Eastern standard time.

James Roosevelt To Continue Film Work

Hollywood, Oct. 9 (AP).—Capt. James Roosevelt, due to be called for active duty in the Marine Corps Reserve, will continue to make motion pictures.

A spokesman for the President's son explained he would make frequent overnight hops to Hollywood for movie conferences from wherever his Reserve battalion is in training.

Marine Corps Reserve officials said even Reserve privates have the privilege of spending the night away from camp.

Roosevelt is producing short films for the dime-in-the-slot trade and also has two features nearing production.

Elliott Roosevelt Reports for Duty

Dayton, Ohio, Oct. 9 (AP).—Capt. Elliot Roosevelt, son of the President, accompanied by his wife, arrived here today to report for duty at Wright Field in the Army Air Corps' testing laboratories. It was expected he would live in Dayton because officers' quarters at the field are filled.

Madden to Make Survey in Canada

Secretary of Labor Perkins announced yesterday that J. Warren Madden, former chairman of the Labor Board, would make a survey of labor relations and problems in the defense industries of Canada.

The results of his study will be incorporated in a report to the Secretary. The announcement did not explain the scope of the Labor Department's interest in Canadian labor conditions.

U. S. Scrap Iron Supply Held Adequate

Defense Commissioner Leon Henderson said yesterday a survey of scrap iron and steel supplies showed that sufficient scrap would be available for the defense program and that prices should not exceed the present level.

Following a meeting of scrap iron and steel dealers with members of the commission Tuesday, Henderson said: the dealers assured the commission that there was no justification for "run-away" prices in scrap or any need for concern over adequacy of supplies.

The buyers agreed, he added, that prices had been rising recently because certain steel makers "suddenly" entered scrap markets in which they formerly had not been buying.

Curtiss Planes 'Small Fry' to Nazi Air Hero

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Oct. 9.—Capt. Helmuth Wick, Germany's latest air hero, believes youth and inexperience are the Royal Air Force's gravest problem.

Wick, only 25 himself, was decorated with oak leaves added to the Knight's Cross of the Iron Cross by Adolf Hitler personally today as he traveled in the Fuehrer's special train to Berlin.

The captain got the award because he was credited with having shot down his fortieth plane.

"Only the leaders of British fighting groups now are experienced men," Wick said. "We notice it by the fact that the machines which follow the leader hug him closely and turn off with him the moment he decides to try to escape.

"I am of the opinion that, in principle, British fliers avoid combat. They face us only if they must."

Wick declared British antiaircraft artillery and barrage balloons do not affect the German air force.

"I never have seen anything shot down by British antiaircraft," he said. "As for the balloons, they don't rise high enough to interfere."

Wick asserted American-made Curtiss machines were "small fry, and we don't even bother with them."

Young to Confer Today on Reforms In Police Dept.

Reforms in the office of the Metropolitan Police property clerk will be discussed by District officials in the office of Commissioner J. Russell Young this afternoon.

Young, District Attorney Edward M. Curran, Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, and Acting Corporation Counsel Vernon West, are scheduled to attend.

The property clerk is the custodian of allegedly stolen goods recovered by the police from second hand dealers who bought them over the counter. When citizens claim the goods, the clerk's practice is to require them to repay the dealers what they paid, or to establish ownership by a court action.

Curran in a letter to the Commissioners said that one argument in favor of the practice—that it secured the police the cooperation of second hand dealers—was "utterly without weight."

The other argument advanced—that the clerk has no authority to decide who owns the property and would be liable to be sued for a mistake—Curran said was "more weighty and deserves serious consideration."

Nevertheless, said Curran, "the practice . . . must cease."

Dahlgren Bill Signed

President Roosevelt signed yesterday a bill (HR 9636) authorizing the Navy Department to transfer to Virginia approximately 13 acres of land at the Dahlgren Proving Ground for use as a right of way for State Highway 207.

Youth Urged To Budget Time, Money

Key to Happier, Saner Living Sought In Church Conferences

Churches can help to promote saner and happier living by teaching young people how to budget their time and money.

That was the feeling among members of a young people's discussion group at yesterday's fall meeting of the Potomac Synod of the Evangelical and Reformed Church at Concordia Church, Twentieth and G Streets Northwest.

Much of the difficulty with modern living exists because young people have not been taught what to do with their money, commented several of the delegates, some expressing the conviction that "the church is not teaching young people how to live 24 hours a day."

Mr. Groff Leads Discussion

The Rev. Addison H. Groff, pastor of the Boonesboro (Md.) Reformed Charge, led the youth discussion. Meanwhile other group conferences were being led by Robert S. Regar, the Rev. Arthur W. Newell, the Rev. Titus Lehmann and Mrs. E. F. J. Dettbarn.

The need for "spiritual undergirding" to meet the challenge of the present world crisis was stressed by the Rev. Aaron M. Gluck, D. D., of Martinsburg, W. Va., addressing the morning session, over which Dr. Scott R. Wagner, of Hagerstown, Md., synodical president, presided.

The Rev. E. J. F. Dettbarn, of Baltimore, chairman of the Synodical Kingdom Service Committee, told the opening afternoon meeting that he hoped "God would bless America" with an awakened consciousness of its neglect of spiritual values.

There are many "blood stains" of neglect, carelessness, self-interest, selfishness and lack of faith upon our hands in America, he told the assembly.

New Slides Demonstrated

Reports and findings from the group conferences stressed the necessity for members to give more time to the study of the program of the individual church and denomination, and to offer more stewardship in the promotion of the program.

A demonstration of new-type slides for visual education by the Rev. Nelson Schlegel, pastor of First Reformed Church here, and a talk by Dr. Edgar H. Hoffmeier, of Walkersville, Md., highlighted last night's program. The Rev. Charles Enders was host pastor.

The Potomac Synod embraces Washington, Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia. The Reformed Church in the United States and the Hungarian Reformed Church in the United States, which this Sunday will mark their 215th and fiftieth anniversaries, respectively, were recently merged into the Evangelical and Reformed Church.

New Deal Agents Called 'Termites' By G.O.P. Speaker

Henry I. Quinn, speaking before the Willkie-McNary Republican Club last night at Lincoln Temple, described the greatest danger to American democracy today as the "lack of frankness, candor and honesty" in officials who hold high office.

He contrasted the methods of the Roosevelt Administration with those of Winston Churchill and English democracy, and described agents of the New Deal as "termites undermining the foundations of our Government."

Sara Pelham Speaks, one of the directors of the Eastern Republican headquarters, charged President Roosevelt with direct responsibility for failure of the antilynching bill, and for the lack of remedial measures offsetting color discrimination in various Government departments.

That Willkie will carry New York and Pennsylvania by substantial majorities was predicted by Judge Edward W. Henry, of Philadelphia, who pictured the colored voter as deeply concerned about the future of the American system of government.

Other speakers were Judge W. C. Hueston, Emmett J. Scott, Jesse H. Mitchell, Franklin Wilson, George A. Parker, John R. Pinkett and M. Grant Lucas.

British Eye French Gold at Martinique

Copyright by New York Times

New York, Oct. 9.—British naval units that have part of the French French fleet bottled up in Martinique in the French West Indies are watching also to prevent the escape of a gold hoard amounting to $200,000,000 smuggled out of France as the government was toppling, according to advices received by expert credit men here this week.

The money was sent out of France in a naval vessel that was compelled to take refuge at Martinique. Previous dispatches from Washington indicated that this ship was the French cruiser Jeanne d'Arc.

War Problems Occupy Session Of Churchmen

U. S. Interest in Welfare Of Rest of World Urged By Episcopal Leader

By the Associated Press

Kansas City, Oct. 9.—The church leader of 1,750,000 Episcopalians, convening a session concerned uppermost with war-created problems, said today "'America first' seems plausible, but it is not a sound principle in Christian work."

"The only way to make America Christian is to make it interested in the welfare of the world that lies outside its borders," solemnly observed presiding Bishop Henry St. George Tucker, of Richmond, Va., before an audience of 10,000 at the opening service of the Protestant Episcopal fifty-third triennial convention.

Referring to the international situation, he pointed out:

"The great menace to world welfare today is that aggressive nationalism which leads a country to exploit all the rest of the world for its own benefit.

"Christian love knows no boundaries. It transcends differences of race. The spirit that prompts us to do foreign missionary work is the only hope of world-wide peace."

He urged Episcopalians to "respond to God's call" for service to war's victims, stressing the need for aid in missionary work sponsored by churches of belligerent nations.

Convention business sessions faced with an agenda of precedent-shattering proposals, got under way late today. Domestic problems awaiting action include a proposal to liberalize church marriage laws permitting remarriage of divorced persons. Under present canon law only an innocent party in a divorce for adultery is sanctioned.

Lutherans Urged to Adopt 'Way of Deity'

Propagandize for Peace, Church Head Exhorts Convention

By the Associated Press

Omaha, Oct. 9.—Peace would come to the world, the Rev. F. H. Knubel, president of the United Lutheran Church in America, told convention delegates tonight, if there were more propaganda for God's way.

For his annual keynote sermon to the convention, the New York church leader took the text, "Make thy way straight before My face" (Psalms, v:8).

"There are not sufficient cries of that nature rising out of the world's present bewilderment," he asserted in his prepared address. "Peace, God's peace, could and would come to nations quickly if this kind of propaganda were abroad in mankind."

He added: "The world around us is alarmingly confused and the bewilderment has gotten into our own souls." Then he painted this word picture of "human confusion": "Even when war, was declared France was hopelessly divided, dangerously irresolute. Still more definitely all of the smaller nations of Europe, and for that matter also in Africa and Asia, have from the beginning been completely distracted, unable to shape true, strong policies for their own salvation.

"The chief countries at war seem unwilling and afraid to announce actual conditions of peace. They cannot or will not make their ultimate intentions clear.

"Looking at the United States we are again confronted by confusion. There are divided counsels, important decisions reached strangely without enthusiasm and often without hope of their execution for several years, pressure groups whose motives are openly criticized, and the widespread hunger for profits apparently as devouring as ever."

The speaker predicted that "if, as fearfully possible," select service remains permanent in the United States, "it means a war-minded people, a Nation that can readily develop the lust for power—not God-given power, not power for service, but power that masters the citizens, power that would master other Nations."

Hoover Denies Sen. Lundeen Was Shadowed

Senate Orders Probe Of Plane Crash Fatal To Member, 24 Others

The Senate yesterday ordered an investigation of the August 31 crash of an airliner near Lovettsville, Va., in which Senator Lundeen, of Minnesota, and 24 others perished.

A short time later the chamber received from Edgar Hoover, chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, a statement that an F. B. I. agent and a stenographer who also were killed in the crash, were not investigating the Senator.

Hoover wrote to Senator McCarran (Democrat), Nevada, sponsor of the resolution for an investigation.

Hoover's letter said that Margaret L. Turner, stenographer, and Special Agent Joseph J. Pesci were aboard the plane. Miss Turner, the F. B. I. chief asserted, was leaving on her vacation, while Pesci was en route to fill his first assignment as an agent at Chicago.

"For the purpose of the record," Hoover wrote, "I desire to state without any reservation whatsoever that neither Miss Turner nor Mr. Pesci were engaged in any investigation of Senator Lundeen at this or any other time. . . . Mr. Pesci and Miss Turner were not to my knowledge acquainted with each other and neither one knew the identity of the other.

Hoover said he also had learned that William Garbose, an attorney of the criminal division of the Department of Justice, "who has been alleged to have been engaged with Agent Pesci and Miss Turner in conducting an investigation of surveillance of Senator Lundeen," was also aboard the plane.

Garbose, Hoover said, was not acquainted with either of the other two, and was given space on that particular plane for a trip to Milwaukee after he had been unable to obtain other space.

The Civil Aeronautics Board recently held hearings on the disaster and witnesses advanced various possible causes, among them one that the plane might have been struck by lightning.

Wage-Hour Law Termed Press Shackle

Papers' Freedom Abridged by It, Lawyer Tells Court

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Oct. 9.—Elisha Hanson, counsel for the American Newspaper Publishers Association, contended in Federal Court today that the Federal wage-hour law cannot constitutionally be applied to newspapers because Congress, which enacted the law, "is denied the power to abridge the press."

Declaring the act "constitutes a direct restraint upon the newspaper business," Hanson told Judge J. Cullen Ganey that the founders of the Nation set up a guarantee against "abridgement of the press" in the first amendment to the Constitution.

Hanson argued for dismissal of a request by the Federal wage-hour administration for an order directing two Easton, Pa., newspapers to produce their employment records to show whether they have been complying with the law.

Both the Easton Express and the Easton Morning Free Press had refused to turn over the information, contending the Administration's investigation was a "fishing expedition" and moreover that the Administration was without authority to demand such records.

Judge Ganey took the case under advisement after telling attorneys to file supplemental briefs within two weeks.

Hanson said the question involved "undoubtedly" would be carried to the Supreme Court.

Vernon Stoneman, senior attorney for the wage hour administration, told the court that the Administratior was "seeking only information" from the newspapers; that no charges had been brought against them, and that no question of censorship was involved.

"The Government," he said, "does not attempt to control what newspapers say or how they say it. It is only interested in seeing whether newspapers are complying with the law.

"Take it away, mister —it's the best yet!"

OUT in the vast Buick plants you'll find men who were building motorcars when many of us were still looking forward to our first long pants.

So when these veterans talk to you about 1941 models, you're listening to Old Man Experience, seasoned by years-long, backstage in-the-know.

And straight from the shoulder, these old-timers will tell you that the Buicks now coming off the assembly lines top anything produced here since the first "one-lunger" chugged its way down the street.

It isn't only that they're handsomer carriages. Or that they're bigger, roomier, steadier with road-hugging weight and poise.

It isn't just that the new FIREBALL* engines, micropoise-balanced to vibrationless ease, carry Buick's exclusive Dynaflash principle to new heights of agile brilliance while actually getting 10% to 15% more miles per gallon.

It isn't simply that these great eager cars ride easier, handle more nimbly, surround you with travel-luxury that even surpasses the oft-praised comforts of home.

It's even more in the brawn and inbuilt-character and fine-drawn precision—in all the things you don't see about a Buick no less than in the things you can lay eye on.

So when this model-wise fellow says "the best yet" is waiting for you, he means we have never before built automobiles so good as these we offer you now.

Never before have we so well and durably combined so many materials, so successfully contrived to give you maximum contentment with your automobile.

You'll find a lot of fine cars offered this coming year—the natural go-ahead of a progressive industry sees to that.

But our man isn't boasting when he invites you to a Buick showroom to see "the best yet."

Heart and soul, he believes it is just that. So do we.

And before long, we think, so will you.

How Big Is Your Dime?

There are no ration cards in America.

And no one to tell you what to buy or when to buy it.

You can still take your own sweet choice!

But that choice works both ways. You can buy a good product for a dime . . . or a poor one.

It's up to you. If you are smart, if you know what you want, you can get it . . . just by asking for it.

Take BEER for instance. There are dozens of different beers in Washington.

They all cost you a dime.

And every dealer in Washington pays exactly the same price for Gunther's beer. Large or small we don't favor one dealer with a better price than another.

Because we can't. We sell Gunther's to everybody at the lowest price for which such a high quality premium dry lager can be sold.

Now any good dealer wants his customers to get the beer they want. But your dealer is busy. He has thousands of items to sell. And he's NOT A MIND READER. He depends on you to tell him what you want.

This is the American Way of doing business. You have your free choice.

If you ask for Gunther's your dime still will buy you a premium dry lager—as fine a beer as you can buy at any price anywhere!

Yes, your dime is just as big as you make it.

Food For Europe

The latest survey of food conditions in continental Europe made by the Department of Agriculture shows clearly why the British believe that any relaxation of the blockade to relieve distressed civilians in occupied countries would benfit Germany at their expense. It is necessary to view the situation objectively to appreciate the obstacles in the way of the humanitarian relief task which former President Hoover is eager to undertake.

The Department of Agriculture concludes that continental Europe as a whole does not face famine this winter. But, unless there is an equitable distribution of available supplies, the people of some countries will experience severe pangs of hunger.

The situation in both occupied and unoccupied France, it is said, "will probably be serious," and in many localities "there may be acute distress." The people of Norway, Belgium and Poland in particular are likely to suffer severely, not only because of food shortages but also for want of purchasing power due to industrial dislocation. The outlook for Denmark and the Netherlands is reported to be less gloomy.

Deficiencies have been aggravated by the requisitioning of food and livestock by the German occupying forces. Furthermore, food has been shipped from the occupied areas into the Reich, while "there are no indications that significant food supplies have thus far moved from or through the Axis countries into distribution channels of western Europe."

In short, food passed through the blockade would replace food which Germany has failed to supply or has taken for her own use. If some way could be devised to assure German restitution of seized supplies and abstention from further inroads upon the meager reserves of occupied territories, British opposition to entry of foodstuffs might be overcome. But Mr. Hoover's mere statement of the problem creates grave doubts as to the possibility of effecting any arrangement that would satisfy the British, even if Germany should prove unexpectedly receptive to approach.

Futile Controversy

No valid reason has been offered for the insistence of the House that the entire Arlington Farm, the Washington-Hoover Airport and adjacent land be turned over solely to the Secretary of War. The original plan called for division of this important area between the War and Interior Departments.

The Secretary of War had not requested the entire area but only that portion west of the Rosslyn connecting railroad where a permanent infantry garrison is to be established for protection of the National Capital. Park officials, on the other hand, had worked out detailed plans for use of the eastern portion of the tract, including the airport.

The House Agriculture Committee, to which the original bill was submitted, apparently could see no need for the land transfer and acquisition, except in the interest of national defense. Consequently, it insisted that the whole area be allotted to the Secretary of War, despite the fact that the measure was sponsored by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

The commission wishes to transfer the tourist camp, workshops and greenhouses in Potomac Park to the Arlington tract. It also hopes to reserve space there for temporary Government buildings that might otherwise clutter up the Mall or Potomac Park in the event additional office room is needed for national defense workers.

While the Senate Military Affairs Committee is in a much better position to reflect the views of the War Department than is the House Agriculture Committee, it saw the wisdom of the park commission's planning and approved the original bill. In conference, however, responsibility for the entire project was assigned to the War Department.

Fortunately, the compromise would permit the Secretary of War, with the approval of the President, to transfer a portion of the land to the Secretary of the Interior after he acquires it. Officials of the Park and Planning Commission believe that the War Department will adhere to its original agreement and that the former plan will be carried out.

The House appears to have aroused an unnecessary controversy that will not affect the final disposition of this land in accord with the public interest.

America And Japan

According to reports from Tokyo, the first reaction in Japan to news that the Department of State has advised Americans in the Far East to send their families home was one of decided unbelief.

That action, like Britain's courageous move in reopening the Burma Road and the less important but nonetheless revealing move of the Department of Agriculture in suspending wheat export subsidies benefiting the Orient, does not fit into the pattern of Japanese anticipations.

Japanese leaders apparently believed that the United States and Great Britain would be cowed by the new German-Italian-Japanese alliance. But, as Winston Churchill pointed out in his address to the House of Commons Tuesday, "neither branch of the English-speaking race is accustomed to react to threats of violence by submission."

The policy of appeasing Japan has been tried and found wanting. Great Britain closed the Burma Road last July in the hope that it would keep Japan satisfied for a time. It did not. It led only to further territorial aggrandizement by the island empire.

The United States, while repeatedly protesting Japan's infringements of our interests in the Far East, permitted Japan to buy unlimited quantities of oil, scrap iron and other war essentials in this country. The reward for having pursued this velvet-glove policy was Japan's conclusion of an alliance with Germany and Italy, which is specifically directed against this Nation. We are now under notice from the Axis powers and Japan that they will wage war on us when and if it suits their convenience to do so.

The only possible reaction to such a policy is to make it more difficult for the German-Japanese-Italian bloc to carry out such threats. That means continuing and, so far as possible, increasing aid to Great Britain. It means also assistance to China which has been in the field against Japan for more than three years. Since Japan has entered an alliance directed against this country, she cannot expect us to supply her with raw materials that might be used in making war against us.

There can be no retreat from this course. In assuming that there would be such a retreat, as a result of some plain and fancy sword-clanking in Berlin, Rome and Tokyo, the Japanese were making a grave error which must now be evident to them.

The United States clearly has no desire to go to war with Japan. Nor has Great Britain. In announcing the opening of the Burma Road, Winston Churchill expressed the hopes that "the dangers which can quite plainly be seen will be averted by the prudence and patience which Japan has shown in the gravest circumstances."

Whether the Tokyo government will follow that sage advice is not at all certain. There are powerful elements in Japan which believe that now is the time to embark on a far-reaching campaign of new aggressions, regardless of what the United States and Great Britain think or do about it. And Nazi agents in the Far East are doing everything in their power to cultivate that sentiment.

The situation calls for cool reflection on both sides of the Pacific. The United States has taken a firm stand and there should be no question of modifying that position. At the same time, our Far Eastern policy must be kept in a proper relation to our policy in the Atlantic and the status of our armament program.

Japan must realize that the United States will not be intimidated by threats or bluster. It is equally important for this country to refrain from belligerent gestures that would merely agitate the war lords of Japan without improving our own position. While holding to a firm policy in the Far East, this country must not forget that the chief danger against which we are arming lies in the Atlantic.

Victory For Spoilsmen

Considering the revival of the spoils attitude in the House, the conference committee has doubtless followed a wise course in postponing action on the Ramspeck bill until after election day. Congress may then be in a mood more conducive to extension of the merit system.

As usual, the spoilsmen did not attack the bill outright in the House. They used the device of reviving an amendment to accomplish their purpose. But the effect of the House vote in favor of the Nichols apportionment plan, which sent the bill back to conference, was to jeopardize the whole bill. For even if it should be approved, with this addition it would be an unworkable monstrosity.

That amendment was approved despite the fact that Representative Keller withdrew his former support, saying he was convinced that the Civil Service Commission was attempting to administer the apportionment law to the best of its ability.

Another bone of contention seems to have arisen in the clause which would forbid the Civil Service Commission to require applicants to submit photographs. Although intended to prevent discrimination by substituting fingerprints for photographic identification, this amendment is, as Mr. Ramspeck pointed out, a mere technicality. Appointing officers would necessarily retain the right to interview applicants.

Since this amendment would not succeed in its excellent purpose, but might on the other hand obstruct passage of the entire bill, it could well be dropped.

The important objective is to get the bill on the statute books, without the crippling Nichols amendment, so that all the progress toward extension of the merit system that has been made to date will not be lost with the adjournment of the present Congress.

Don't Build New Slums

Defense housing is an essential part of the rearmament program. Workmen engaged in building ships for the Navy or in the production of munitions for the Army must have suitable living quarters. Failure to provide housing for the families of such workers, where there is an acute shortage of accommodations, would inevitably postpone the day when the United States will be ready to meet any threat of aggression.

Washington will certainly need a substantial number of low-rental dwellings to take care of the increasing number of Navy Yard workers and other families brought here by reason of the defense program. Funds are now available to the Navy for this purpose. It may be assumed that an emergency housing program will be undertaken at the earliest possible moment.

Indications are that the Bureau of Yards and Docks will negotiate contracts for such housing with private builders. There may be good reason for this direct approach to the problem, instead of working through the Alley Dwelling Authority, which is already engaged in a large slum-clearance and rehousing program. Yet it is to be hoped that the Navy, so far as is possible, will cling to the ADA's minimum standards for "decent" housing in this area.

Undoubtedly the need for these dwellings is pressing. The Navy must also provide this housing at a minimum of expense. Its funds for this purpose are limited, and in any event it must conform to the $3,500 maximum cost per dwelling prescribed by Congress. So economy must be a primary consideration.

At the same time, the Navy ought to remember that Washington is now engaged in a costly effort to eliminate its slums. The vast number of substandard dwellings in use here is a standing disgrace. Certainly no arm of the Government should erect in the Nation's Capital living quarters that, a few years hence, would add to the city's total of slums.

There was a disturbing note in President Roosevelt's reference to these projects as essentially temporary housing. In some instances the Army and Navy will doubtless find it advisable to build temporary quarters that can be demolished within a few years when their usefulness has passed. That is a wasteful and unsatisfactory policy, however, when the houses are located in a rapidly growing city already overcrowded with slums.

It is estimated that the average cost of these houses will be $2,800. That is a high price for temporary dwellings. Yet it is doubtful whether anything except potential slums can be constructed in Washington for that sum. Before actual plans are drawn the numerous advantages and ultimate economy resulting from the construction of permanent low-cost houses in this slum-ridden city should certainly be fully investigated.

Tomorrow's England

From the St. Louis Post-Dispatch

Dorothy Thompson writes movingly of England's heroism. She sees in Dunkerque "almost an allegory for a strange sort of social revolution." It was there where "the little men of England would die to save it." Her correspondence affirms her vision. It is, she says, a new England—no longer the "hierarchy of title and wealth and commoners" which, for all its political democracy, was still a caste-ridden land. To an older generation Tennyson's indictment will be recalled:

> Cursed be the social lies that warp us > from the living truth,
> Cursed be the social ties that sin > against the strength of youth.

And the later voice of Kipling may be heard, presenting, in the idiom of the barracks, the case of that "absent-minded beggar," then on his way to South Africa. "Son of a belted Earl, or son of a Lambeth publican," he was Tommy Atkins, British soldier, and make your bow to him.

Gone is the England that lifted an incredulous brow at the radicalism of the Victorian laureate or took, in its complacent stride, the boyish hero-worship of imperialism's lusty minstrel. Perhaps the finer England Dorothy Thompson envisions will emerge from the atonement.

If the price of meat continues to advance, the wolf will soon be coming back to our door, and he'll be taking a great risk when he does it, too.

An Arizona man underwent an operation for the removal of a 50-cent piece he swallowed. We know a creditor who could have made him cough it up.

Small wonder that most of us are broke all the time. There are so few ways to earn money and so many ways to spend it.

War Against Sickness

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Yesterday was the anniversary of the birth of Gen. Leonard Wood. Wood's name carries special significance today since he was one of the pioneers in the effort to prepare the United States at the outbreak of the first World War.

Your pages are full of war news. Here is news of a war that has been waged by men for over 6,000 years, the war against leprosy.

Americans need, more than ever, to know what America is doing. The Leonard Wood Memorial is actively using American money and men to battle the dread menace of leprosy. In our own country, in the States, Hawaii, the Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico and in the Philippine Islands there is leprosy today. What the memorial may discover in its research in this disease will benefit not only these Americans but sufferers from leprosy in all countries. The war against sickness is a universal war. No longer do we kill the wounded of the enemy in the field of battle. We nurse them back to health. PERRY BURGESS.

For A Silk Embargo

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Our Government should place an embargo on Japanese silk. One year's embargo would, it seems, greatly cripple Japan. There is no doubt that many American women are now fully aroused to the world situation and realize our need of readiness for all eventualities. Would it not be far better for them to boycott Japanese silk than to feed their sons as cannon fodder to Japan and incur the tremendous burdens of Red Cross work which war would certainly necessitate?

The President had hardly declared the embargo on scrap iron to Japan before that country threatened us by joining the Rome-Berlin Axis.

We ought also to embargo oil to Japan, and we ought to learn once and for all that aggressor nations are not appeased, and we ought to stop giving them help to be used in a war against us.

A. B. CANNADY.

"The Burma Road"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is odd that The Post should praise Britain for her action in reopening the Burma Road. The editorial of October 8, "The Burma Road," however strange, conveys the impression that Britain was activated by some altruistic motive—that the opening of the route was a gesture of good will toward China. That this is at variance with the facts, we all know. For, as long as Britain believed that it would be of advantage to Britain to close the only route whereby China might be supplied with the materials of war, she closed it, and with the full knowledge of China's plight.

Also surprising is the fact that although Chamberlain is usually closely connected with the British appeasement policy, it is to be noted that the Burma Road was closed after the ejection of the Chamberlain cabinet. Or, maybe it happened that while Chamberlain limited his appeasement to continental Europe, his predecessors extended it to the East as British policy.

The Post offers, by way of explanation, an excuse for Britain: "Britain hoped, by satisfying Japan, to secure a breathing spell—when she was fighting for her very existence at home." One wonders whether or not Britain is still fighting for her very existence at home, now that the Burma route has been reopened.

How could Britain, by her action in July, expect a moderation of Japanese policy in China when she directly assisted Japan in the conquest of China. Though Britain refused to hear her protests against closing the Burma Road, China fought on. Yet, The Post implies that the Chinese should be grateful for this good-will gesture on the part of Great Britain, the great friend of China.

J. DeLONG HARRIS.
Washington, Oct. 8.

A Portion Of Youth

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Miss Dorothy Thompson and Mr. Walter Lippmann, both of whom have been writing recently on the "debunking" of American history by "realistic" professors, seem rather alarmed to discover that a noticeable portion of America's youth is disillusioned and cynical. And as befits the spirit of the times, they try to attach guilt for this to individuals. Their line of reasoning goes like this: Ever since the last World War, American college students have been fed skepticism by theorists such as Charles Beard. They now believe in nothing, have no ideals and are ready to follow the first fuehrer who can satisfy their frustrated egos.

As I am a member of the generation of college students which Miss Thompson and Mr. Lippmann are explaining away, I fully appreciate their analyses of us. But I feel that they overemphasize the influence which teachers have had on most of us and misplace their emphasis when drawing their moral as to the type of youth who is a potential threat to democracy.

In the first place, these misled, pragmatic, professors who taught Freud, economic determinism, pacifism, etc., had access only to that segment of American youth which attended college. Of that segment the profs could subvert only those on whom it would "take." Probably guys who didn't join fraternities and had long hair and carried briefcases and believed everything the profs told them. Not regular fellows. You know what I mean—queer birds. Why are Miss Thompson and Mr. Lippmann so worried about them?

If they fear for the future of democracy in this country, why aren't they worried about the healthy U. S. college products who now are yelling "Yay, team!" in unison, and who easily will be able to shout noncynically and in the American way some Yankee equivalent of "Heil!"?

Why aren't they worried about the army of poor guys who never had a chance to go beyond high school, who possess neither reasoned skepticism nor collegiate flubdub, but only a blank feeling that things aren't right?

Whether the Constitution was the product of high ideals or crass ambitions is a very interesting subject to read about or to discuss, especially if you have enough money for a couple of beers to go with it. But suppose you have to fish your newspapers out of the gutter and you haven't seen a beer in weeks, and suppose the Constitution is just an avenue to you, down near the Washington Monument or the Lincoln Memorial somewhere.

Who is to blame for that, the college professors? And who is going to fix it, the Lippmanns and the Thompsons?

In Praise Of Pegler

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I find only one thing wrong with Westbrook Pegler's articles: They should be on the front page of every newspaper and not buried on an inside page. As Strickland Gillilan so aptly sums it up, he pulls no punches in showing up this wolf in sheep's clothing called the New Deal. E. A.

Regarding Monroe's Descendants

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your paper today you printed the picture of a Maj. James Edward Monroe and you stated this gentleman talked "of his father, President James Monroe" the fifth President of the United States.

I have the greatest respect for any man who has carried arms for the Confederate cause, but when a man claims to be 125 years old and a son of James Monroe, that is another question I do not want to let pass unchallenged. Maj. Monroe has been claiming relationship to the President for a number of years, in spite of the known and proven records of the entire Monroe family and the fact that many celebrated genealogical authorities have never been able to substantiate any of Maj. Monroe's claims. I have known of Maj. Monroe for some years and I have corresponded with him and, to my consternation, he cannot even give the full name of Monroe's wife, supposedly his mother's name, or the names of Monroe's daughters, supposedly his sisters. Maj. Monroe now mentions he had a brother, who would also be a son of James Monroe.

The facts concering Monroe's children as as follows and can be verified in any of the biographies covering the President's life.

Monroe married Elizabeth Kortright, of New York City, while he was attending Congress in that city. A son was born of this union but the child died in infancy, consequently no man bearing the surname of Monroe can, by any stretch of the imagination, be a direct descendant of the President. Monroe also had two daughters, Maria Monroe and Eliza Monroe. The former married Samuel Laurence Gouverneur, of New York City, and the latter Judge George Hay, of Virginia, who was the prosecutor of Aaron Burr at his trial for treason.

If Maj. Monroe is 125 years old, he was born in 1815 while Monroe was Secretary of State under President Madison and lived at 2017 I Street Northwest, a building now owned by the Arts Club of Washington, and it would have been practically impossible for the newspapers of that day to have overlooked the birth of a son to the Secretary of State who was directing the foreign policy of the country at a very critical period in our history and at the same time have overlooked the birth of Maj. Monroe's brother.

In concluding, I wish to point out that Monroe in his last will and testament stated he had only two children living—his two daughters. According to my simple reasoning, this statement in his will should be conclusive proof that Maj. James Edward Monroe is not a son of the President.

I hope you will give this letter as prominent space in your paper as you have given to your article covering Maj. Monroe.

The Post Impressionist

Dutch

MY FRIEND DUTCH is such a practical joker that he once bought a barrel of beer and went to the trouble of giving a party just to be able to spring one gag line.

As his guests crowded around the keg, Dutch, in the role of bartender, jerked the bung out of the barrel and covered the crowd with warm suds.

He hung his head in apologetic shame, held up his hands for silence and wiped the beer from his face.

"Sorry, folks," he said, "I guess it was just a slip of the bung."

He used to live in a town in the South where a millionaire maker of one of America's favorite drinks owned for his pleasure a private zoo. He was a perfect stooge for Dutch's fun.

Noticing in the papers one day that the zoo owner had lost one of his favorite birds, Dutch made a note of the details and waited for midnight. Came the hour and he got on the phone. He hung up, however, when he found the household was awake. Dutch wanted them asleep.

At 3 in the morning he couldn't miss.

"Is this," he asked a sleepy butler, "the home of Mr. So-and-So?"

The Butler said it was.

"This," said Dutch, "is the Rev. So-and-So, pastor of the Baptist Tabernacle."

"Yes?" said the butler.

"Well," said Dutch in his best ecclesiastical manner, "we have his missing wild cockatoo."

"Where," said the butler, "do you have him at?"

"He flew in the window of the parsonage," said Dutch, "and we have him cornered in the bathroom."

The butler said he'd tell the millionaire in the morning.

"Tell him now," said Dutch, "or I open the bathroom window. I've got to brush my teeth."

The butler promised he'd awaken the master. And did.

Dutch motored to the parsonage, parked down the street and awaited results. He got them.

The millionaire bird and animal lover, heading what looked like an expedition to Darkest Africa, arrived at the preacher's door just before dawn.

You can imagine the rest.

On another occasion he unlimbered his practical joking on a self-appointed civic reformer who happened to be a lady of the old Southern school.

Early in the morning he called every undertaker in town and told him to hurry out to the lady reformer's address to get the body of her cook.

The burying business in this town was highly competitive and none of them lost any time getting there.

"Knock hard on the door," Dutch had told them, "because I'm slightly deaf."

What arrived in front of her house that morning looked like the district convention of the Hearse Drivers of America and the way they beat on the door it sounded like the American convention of the Trap Drummers Guild.

There was another occasion he carried a gag all the way to New York. Arriving and establishing himself at a comfortable hotel he got on the phone and called all the newspapers. He told them all the same story.

"I'm the Rev. Tompkins," he said, "from Macon, Ga., and I have here with me a remarkable discovery in the form of a common chicken egg."

Most of the city desks that answered his call put him down as a whack and forgot him, but one paper, which is one of the biggest in the world and takes chances on nothing, sent its man around.

Dutch was ready.

He produced an egg on which he printed in watered ink the letters "W A R."

He looked straight into the reporter's eyes.

"It's just the way Molly the hen laid it," he sighed, "and as you can plainly see, it spells war."

The reporter nodded his head.

"And," continued Dutch, "look at the little letter below the R. That's the first letter in the name of the country with whom we'll have a war."

The newsman told Dutch he thought he was crazy.

"Do you really mean that?" asked my friend.

"I surely do," said the reporter picking up his hat to leave.

"Then let me shake your hand, young man," said Dutch, "I came all this way to find that out. Goodbye, young man. I'm off to the booby hatch, thanks to you!"

In the home town of one of our State universities whose school colors happen to be red and blue, he called up the president of the local chapter of a national flag organization with a fake complaint.

"The football team at the university," he said, "is planning to feature red, white and blue on their uniforms in the big game."

The startled flag organization president said in effect what of it.

"What of it," bellowed Dutch, "why it means that the National Colors will be rolled in the dirt with every tackle!"

The flag organization representative said the school had used the colors for years.

"Blue and red, yes," answered Dutch, "but this season the sissies are wearing stockings made of white. Just think—red, white and blue."

The flag representative took up the matter with the president of the university and it made the papers from coast to coast.

I happen to mention all this because Dutch's wife had twins last week, and some people who have a sense of humor like Dutch's are certainly laughing.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

On A New Order In The World

PRINCE KONOYE is only one among many who have been suggesting that the world might be divided profitably if the Axis took Europe and Africa, if Japan took Asia, and if the United States took the Western Hemisphere. The suggestion has found an echo in certain quarters over here, the argument being that the policy of the Axis and of Japan in their spheres is in no fundamental sense different from our own policy under the Monroe Doctrine.

Prince Konoye and his friends in Berlin and Rome are wholly mistaken. There is no resemblance between the Monroe Doctrine and the so-called "New Orders" in Asia or in Europe. The Monroe Doctrine is, in fact, the antithesis of these new orders; it is based on a diametrically opposite conception of the rights of man, of the rights of nations, and of the vital interests of a great power in relation to its weaker neighbors. In principle, and in a practice which with rare and temporary exceptions has been consistent, the Monroe Doctrine is a doctrine of anti-imperialism; it is a policy developed to stop imperial rivalry and to check the expansion of empire; it is a policy which is designed to preserve and to encourage, and, as a matter of fact, has preserved and encouraged the independence of many nations and their progress in self-government. The New Orders in Asia and in Europe are based on conquest, and they are imperialist in a degree unknown among civilized men for several centuries. So there is no foundation whatever for the suggestion that the relationship of the United States to its neighboring republics is in any way similar to the relation of Germany and Italy and Japan to their neighbors.

THIS CAN BE affirmed without any unwarranted self-righteousness on our part. For while it is true that we have acquired territory by force of arms, and that on many occasions in the past we have intervened by force in neighboring countries, the record after more than a hundred years is there to prove that this hemisphere, which was a colony of Europe, is today the home of more than 20 independent states. Our record is far from perfect: We too have been infected here and there, now and then, with the virus of imperialism. But we have regarded it as an infection, as something disgraceful to be exposed and combated when it shows itself; never have the American people as a whole believed, nor long allowed greedy interests among them to believe, that they were called upon to rule over alien peoples. The claim of the Axis powers that they are master races called upon to rule over others is a claim which, when made by jingoes here, has always in the end been rejected by the Nation.

And therefore, though we have had the opportunity and the power to build an empire over our weaker neighbors, we have not done so. Forty years ago we played at imperialism. But we gave it up almost as soon as we had begun, not because we could not have exploited an empire but because the American democracy will not and cannot rule over alien peoples.

It can be affirmed also without any unwarranted self-righteousness that we treat our neighbors better than the Axis and Japan treat their neighbors. That we can prove. For all the peoples within reach of the Axis dread its power; what our neighbors fear among us is not our power but the insufficiency of our power and the hesitations and divisions which paralyze our power. We can say with pride that nowhere in the world do the weak and the helpless fear our power; on the contrary, wherever men are still free, and also among the conquered peoples everywhere, the news of our mounting strength is heard with joy and the evidences that we see more clearly are watched with profound emotion.

WE KNOW, AND the others know, that among our neighbors and among the free peoples the complaint against us is not that we have power and abuse it, but that we have power and do not use it. That is the evidence which we can submit at the bar of history to prove that the order which we represent is something totally different from the new order which these new empires are seeking to establish.

As a matter of fact, though they talk about a new order, we have begun to make—imperfectly and inadequately—a new order in the relations of man to man and of peoples with one another. What is there that is new in the conquest of the weak and their subjugation to the will of the conqueror? That is the ancient order of things on this planet, so ancient that civilized man had almost forgotten about it, so ancient that its revival in modern dress has stupefied the imagination of mankind and caused many sincere but illiterate people to think it is a new discovery.

Ours, on the contrary, is the new order—new not in the trivial sense of having been invented the day before yesterday, but new in the true perspective of history, new as against the eons of man's barbarism and of his tyranny and of his servility. We did not invent this order. We have done something to realize it. The principles of our order are the new principles which first appeared in the conscience of mankind a mere 2,000 years ago, and this revelation of man's dignity and of the reign of a higher law and of the uses of charity is the news, the greatest news and perennially the newest news that has ever come to mankind. Only the foolish who do not realize the long duration of time, only the morally blind who do not know the pain and the burden of things, will suppose that because it has been so imperfectly realized in these 20 centuries this new order is not still the newest order. Yet it is the new order, the only order which releases men from the bondage of their unregenerate past, from the tyranny of their instincts, from the squalor of their fears.

THIS IS OUR order. It was to found this order and to develop it that our forefathers came here. In this order we exist. Only in this order can we live. And this order we intend to maintain. Because it is founded on the universal principle which has ennobled the civilization of the West, it is a spacious order to which, as every day's newspaper testifies, the peoples adhere gladly if they are given the chance. For we do not construct our order with fire and sword. We do not make men homeless and scatter them over the face of the earth. And, therefore, because our order is founded on the free consent of men and of peoples we can say proudly that in spite of all its inefficiencies and corruptions it is the only order which can endure.

Women Politicians

IT APPEARS that we are about to observe an attack on Wendell Willkie as an enemy of American womanhood because he adverted to the notorious incompetence and general unfitness of the deplorable Mme. Perkins for the position of Secretary of Labor and went so far as to say that hers was a job for a man. I do not know how much further Mr. Willkie will have the candor and audacity to go in this direction, but if he will slip me the ball I will carry it for a long gain, because the professional politician ranks high in the list of American abominations and is a pernicious nuisance who has imposed on the natural chivalry of the race to escape the criticism which she deserves.

A candidate for the Presidency will be unfairly shackled in any attempt to do justice to this theme, for the female of the species does not submit to judgment on her merits as a public official but instinctively raises the equivalent of the old cry which has touched off so many deep South lynchings.

THE TRUTH IS that, after all these years and after all the suffragette propaganda, which most of us remember only dimly now, women in politics and office have contributed nothing to the political morality of the Nation or its subdivisions. They have been just so many more sordid and selfish Democrats and Republicans—no worse, on the average, than the males but certainly no better. They have failed to live up to their early billing as a purifying moral force who would pretty up politics by hanging chintz in the polling places and substituting hand-painted gobboons for tawdry papier mache and enamelware.

In Chicago and Kansas City the investigations of election frauds proved that women ward heelers and precinct workers were just as crooked as the buck Democrats with whom they collaborated in the dirty work of the reigning gangs. In the United States Congress no woman has ever made any notable contribution to the common good, and Mrs. Mary Norton, of New Jersey, who enjoys a very good press because she wears the union label as a political badge, is, in fact, only the political creature of Frank Hague, who refused even to let the C. I. O. hire a hall or hold a meeting in a park.

MRS. NORTON'S political patron has had notorious dealings with mercenary labor skates of the A. F. of L., one of whom, out of the priestly poverty of a selfless unioneer, personally dug up $60,000 in one hunk to settle Hague's income tax. This impressive arrearage had been amassed by Mrs. Norton's political boss on a salary which never has exceeded $7,500 a year. Mrs. Norton thus, notwithstanding the reputation which chivalrous forbearance has permitted her to acquire, is seen to be, in fact, only another boss-elected member of Congress with what noble yearnings we do not know but with no more civic virtue than any trousered member of the same low political kind.

The kind of women who do become prominent politicians are more political than feminine. By the time they rise to power they are deprived of the inherent special virtue which women were supposed to bring to politics, due to their long association with the men. They have learned to play politics the men's way. Otherwise they would not get there. And, of course, because the males are still overwhelmingly more numerous in politics and in office, the presence of a woman in an important post creates embarrassment and needless annoyance. The woman in this role is a political and personal affectation. She is in unnatural surroundings and must be deferred to for reasons deep in the nature of human beings, even when she is absurdly and dangerously wrong.

I WOULD LIKE to add, too, that most of the women who are active in politics are officious and rather sallow in personality and temperament after long detachment from the office which nature appointed for womankind. That observation, however, is only esthetic, not political.

The bottom fact of the matter is that women politicians have failed to elevate the political morals of the country, and those few representatives of their sex who have been raised to distinguished office have given us no improvement over the conscience and ability of the standard type of male political hack. They have shown a net loss, for they have tarnished a very pretty illusion which would still be among our spiritual treasures had they been content merely to talk about what they might have done.

SECRETARY PERKINS

Wendell Willkie's attack on her wins the enthusiastic approval of Westbrook Pegler, who now adds to his numerous dislikes all women politicians. See his article on this page today

Audubon's America

ABOUT THE handsomest, and one of the most rewarding, of the autumn books is "Audubon's America: The Narratives and Experiences of John James Audubon," edited by Donald Culross Peattie (Houghton Mifflin, $6), with 17 full-color reproductions of Audubon's paintings, far better reproduced, in line and in color, than the reissue of his "Birds of America" which lay under so many Christmas trees three years ago.

Mr. Peattie, whose passion for Audubon has glowed through so many of his own volumes, conceived this book as a record of the America Audubon saw. For the Frenchman was one of the great American travelers; few others had eyes such as his with which to see, and none left more abundant visual records. Audubon wrote life histories of the birds he painted, and he scattered through the five volumes of his "Ornithological Biographies" a series of lively episodes of frontier life. He wrote similar sketches to accompany his "Quadrupeds" and his journals, some of which have hitherto been published only in limited editions, add to the range of his American panorama. My only complaint against Mr. Peattie's editing is that he has not given us more Audubon.

Audubon came to Pennsylvania, a boy of 18, in 1803, and he walked 250 miles to New York with a screech owl in his pocket, in 1805. He moved to Kentucky in 1807, when Louisville was a village of a thousand souls, and explored the canebrakes and the backwoods when he should have been tending store. He made his first journey down the Ohio to the Mississippi in 1810, only seven years after the Louisiana purchase. He abandoned Kentucky and storekeeping and went down river to New Orleans, with his portfolio under his arm, in 1820, and he spent the next three years painting and hunting in the hyacinth-laden bayou country. He traveled the middle Atlantic States in 1824, sometimes painting street signs for a living but working 17 hours a day at his birds when he had food in his knapsack. After his triumph in England he visited the Florida Keys in 1832, Labrador in 1833, New England in 1836, Texas in 1837, the Dakotas in 1843. Few if any men of his day saw as much of the American continent, and none in such a constant early-morning mood.

THE FRONTIER that Audubon saw is, moreover, the classic American frontier, though, in the form he saw it, it was almost as brief a pattern of living as was the cowboy empire which conditions all American thinking about the region of the high plains. Audubon was one of the last men to see the great Eastern forests unspoiled. His writing is full of ecstatic recognition that he saw the primeval wilderness as it was disappearing forever. He was old enough to have met Daniel Boone, though I am not so sure as Mr. Peattie is that he told the truth when he said he had known Boone. He was at home in such dirt-floored log cabins as Abraham Lincoln was born in; and he knew the woods of the Ohio Valley when a hungry settler expected to shoot deer and bear almost from his front door, when wild turkeys were almost too common to be reckoned good eating and the fresh-planted fields were harassed by flocks of those gorgeous yellow-headed parakeets, no one of which has been seen alive for decades.

Mr. Peattie has chosen well, and his introductions to the sections and his biographical note give the story a fitting continuity. He is perhaps inclined to make Audubon too neat a hero; something of the raw vitality of the man is lost in the incense of Mr. Peattie's tributes. The 17-hour painter and 24-hour hunter, the dancer and flute player who appears in Audubon's diaries is not to be compared as a scientist with Darwin or as a writer with Thoreau or Whitman. What Mr. Peattie most effectively brings out is that Audubon loved, painted and wrote about an America that he had seen with his own excited eyes. Whitman rhapsodized from Camden; Thoreau was content with the continents in Concord. Audubon was at home in the singing wilderness, and it still sings for us in his prose (especially as MacGillivray, an inspired Scotchman, edited it) and in his pictures. We owe Mr. Peattie a debt of gratitude for having revived so much of Audubon; it seems graceless to say that in so big a book he might better have given us even more.

The Once Over

A lot of people who are following Mayor LaGuardia's drive against magazines that feature smut and suggestiveness think hizzoner is after the wrong ones.

Wee Ze Piesey was in a race at Belmont the other day, and seems to resent the name more with every race.

Speaking of racing, Bold Irishman, Napper Tandy and Paddy Malone were all winners this week. Elmer Twitchell didn't bet on any of 'em because he assumed they would, as the charts put it, race greenly.

Malta Holds

By Ralph W. Barnes

The Base Is Reinforced

Copyright by New York Tribune Inc.

ALEXANDRIA, Oct. 8.—(Passed by Naval Censor).—Convoyed by the most powerful units of the Mediterranean fleet, swift, heavily armed destroyers have succeeded without mishap in transporting British army reinforcements nearly 1,000 miles to the Island of Malta, Britain's bastion of yellowish volcanic stone, far to westward in the sea the Italians call Mare Nostrum.

Despite bombs and aerial torpedoes, not a single soldier or sailor was lost in the course of the operation.

I was aboard one of the vessels which steamed into the island's harbor on a moon-lit night, landed their respective contingents, then steamed out again to rejoin the main body of the fleet and return to their base.

A GLANCE at the map will show that Malta is only a little more than a long-range gunshot from the southern tip of southern Sicily, about 20 minutes by fast bomber. The island is in a direct line between the Italian peninsula and Sicily on the one hand and Italian Libya on the other.

The fact that in the face of the new aerial threat, this island citadel is still being held and regularly supplied by the British provides evidence that the predominant sea power of Britain continues to play a major role in the Mediterranean—this even though none could pretend that the British fleet exercises absolute control of these waters.

Malta, of course, is being prepared for the decisive test which may come soon. The war is far from won in the Mediterranean or Middle East, and the British know it.

My date with the Mediterranean fleet was blind. It was after I had boarded a cutter to be taken out in darkness to the harbor area in which the fleet was anchored that I was informed of the name of the warship in which I was to go to sea. It was after I had reached the quarterdeck that I learned the primary object of the cruise.

When in the gloom of the blackout destroyer I saw the shadow of figures with what proved to be full war kits climbing aboard in real form, I jumped to the conclusion that a landing expedition on some Italian possession was envisaged.

"You are wrong there," a naval officer in a white-visored cap, white shorts and shirt said; "We are taking troops down to Malta as reinforcements."

AS A SINGLE unit in a well-rounded fleet, which included big, 15-inch-gun battleships, we steamed out of the harbor long before dawn next morning. Two enemy bombing raids in quick succession and an attack by torpedoes launched from aircraft, were among the episodes which, despite perfect Mediterranean weather, destroyed any possible illusion that this was a pleasure cruise.

One of the principal pastimes aboard was watching fighters take off from the long flight deck of a trim aircraft carrier, which was almost always in sight as the fleet streamed steadily forward.

"It's the most popular ship in the whole fleet," a petty officer told me. "You see, her fighters nip one or two of those 'Eytie" planes about every time they come over. That helps keep the bombs off us."

Only a few minutes before, three swift fighters had returned to report that they had accounted for an Italian reconnaissance plane which had been nosing about some distance astern. With lifebelts always at hand, the troops aboard were permitted to wander about the decks and bask in the sun, except during a raid. In accordance with orders, they scampered to their quarters on each occasion that a raid warning was piped.

WHEN the news reached our vessel that the Italian battle fleet was at sea and not far distant, the crew began to prepare for possible action. Excitement spread among the landlubber troops as they saw the posssibility that they might be witnesses to a real engagement between surface fleets, but Mussolini's armada failed to display signs of desire to make contact. The potential battle failed to materialize.

Prearranged signals provided the means whereby our vessel and other troop-carrying ships nosed their way cautiously into the blacked-out harbor of Malta. I sat for a few brief minutes on the dock during the disembarkation. It was carried out skillfully with the aid of carefully dimmed lanterns.

I have now been at Malta, but I have seen nothing of the island except shadows in the night. Many hours before dawn we were out of the harbor and steaming eastward at high speed.

Exertion Of Power

By Mark Sullivan

Attempt To Go Beyond Limit Set

ON SEPTEMBER 13 President Roosevelt sent to Congress a message making public the position of the National Defense Commission on various policies. About labor, the Defense Commission said:

"All work carried on as part of the defense program should comply with Federal statutory provisions affecting labor wherever such provisions are applicable. This applies to . . . the National Labor Relations Act, etc . . ."

Some three weeks later a step was taken by Mr. Sidney Hillman. Mr. Hillman occupies two positions. In public life he is, by appointment of President Roosevelt, labor member of the National Defense Advisory Commission. In private life Mr. Hillman is vice president of one of the two great labor organizations, C. I. O. Mr. Hillman, in one or the other of his capacities, made a request of Attorney General Jackson. Apparently the request was oral. In reply, Mr. Jackson gave the following opinion:

". . . the findings of the National Labor Relations Board that an employer is in violation of the National Labor Relations Act are binding and conclusive upon the other agencies of the executive branch of the Government unless and until these findings are reversed by a court of competent jurisdiction."

AT ONCE the significance of Attorney General Jackson's opinion was seen. If the opinion was followed by the National Defense Commission, it would affect contracts for national defense—no contract could be given to any employer against whom the Labor Board had made a finding. This would be true from the moment the Labor Board finding was made. It was not necessary to wait for a decision by any court. The mere action of the Labor Board alone would act as a blacklist.

To understand the effect, it is necessary to know that there are upward of 200 firms against whom Labor Board findings are pending. It is necessary to know also how onerous and technical some of these findings are. In a supposititious but typical case, an employer might dismiss a worker, or lay him off, or assign him to a different kind of work. The employer might put his action on any ordinary ground, such as frequently arises. The worker, however, might claim that the action was taken because he was a member of a union. The worker could appeal to the Labor Board. The Labor Board might find in favor of the worker. From that moment, the employer would be denied any Government contract. An appeal to the courts would consume months.

IMMEDIATELY upon publication of Attorney General Jackson's opinion, protest arose—the work of national defense would be retarded.

For just one reason, it was possible for the protest to be effective. It happened that Congress was in session. It happened there was in existence a committee of Congress formed to investigate the Labor Board. This committee summoned before it the principal persons concerned in the situation. Attorney General Jackson said his opinion did not bear the interpretation that had been put upon it. The officials who have final power to award defense contracts, Secretary of the Navy Knox and Assistant Secretary of War Patterson, said in effect that they would not be bound by the opinion—the labor status of an employer would be only one factor to be taken into account in awarding contracts. Mr. Knudsen, of the Defense Commission, said the same thing informally.

All the protest, so far as I have seen, centered wholly on one point—the possible retarding of National Defense. This is a vivid illustration of one of the deepest and most portentous conditions of Washington today. The existence of the war monopolizes attention. It diverts attention from conditions profoundly affecting the spirit, even the very form, of government.

WHAT WAS attempted in this case was an exertion of power, by an executive branch of the Government, beyond what Congress had conferred, and beyond what Congress was willing to permit.

To prevent just this sort of thing, two measures were introduced into Congress more than a year ago. One, the Walter-Logan bill, would preserve for the citizen his right of appeal to an impartial judicial body. The other, a group of amendments to the National Labor Act, would restrain the Labor Board from actions going beyond the intent Congress had when it wrote the measure.

Both measures passed the House, both by majorities of more than 2 to 1. They are now in the Senate. Public attention has been diverted from these measures by the war. That the Senate should act upon these measures is as vital a necessity as any war measure. And it is extremely important that Congress remain in Washington.

Democrats Overthrown

BECAUSE he made by far the best showing of the three Whig candidates in 1836, Gen. William Henry Harrison, of Ohio, became the logical nominee of that party in 1840.

WILLIAM HENRY HARRISON

Henry Clay, of Kentucky, also entered the field again, as did Gen. Winfield Scott, of New Jersey. Harrison had won a decisive victory over the English and Indians at Tippecanoe, had been Governor of Indiana Territory and a Senator. Scott was regarded as the first soldier of the Republic. Clay was the most brilliant orator and the most magnetic and popular leader of his time.

THE WHIG National Convention assembled in Harrisburg on December 4, 1839.

After three days' deliberation Harrison was nominated with John Tyler, of Virginia, Clay's campaign manager, for Vice President.

Only devotion to Jackson made the Democrats accept Van Buren as a candidate for reelection. The party convention met in Baltimore May 5, 1840, and he was the unanimous choice. No one was named for Vice President.

Another convention that year put a third ticket in the field. It was the Abolition Party, organized at Warsaw, Genessee County, New York, in December, 1839. A mass convention of a few States nominated James G. Birney, of New York, for President and Thomas Earle, of Pennsylvania, for Vice President.

IT HAD but one principle, the abolition of slavery. From this humble beginning sprang the Republican Party of today.

Harrison and Tyler not only had a decided popular vote, but an overwhelming majority in the electoral college. The vote there was Harrison and Tyler, 234; Van Buren, 60; Johnson, 48.

D. C. Boy, Invalid, Asks Wheel Chair

Anyone having a wheel chair lying about the house can find a grateful, willing borrower for it in 13-year-old Roland Chase.

The lad, suffering from a chronic hip disease, was home all day yesterday, unable to attend school because of the lack of a wheel chair to get him to and from the school bus. In fact, he has not attended classes at all this fall for that reason, though he is qualified to enter the sixth grade.

The appeal for a wheel chair was made yesterday by Mrs. Elizabeth Goodman who, as supervisor of visiting teachers, helped Roland's education along these last two years when he was a shut-in.

Mrs. Dora Chase, the boy's mother, backed up Mrs. Goodman's appeal, adding that a self-propelling chair would be most desirable but any type would be gratefully accepted. The family lives at 70 Rhode Island Avenue Northwest.

Complete Text of Willkie's Speech at New Haven

Pledges Recovery Through Revival Of Little Business

By the Associated Press

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 9.—The text of Wendell Willkie's address in New Haven tonight follows:

I am delighted to be here in New Haven, in this New England city.

It is in the heart of an industrial region whose prosperity and success are vital to America and especially to the defense of America.

The essential quality of the American character is nowhere better exemplified than here.

We don't pick fights, but once in, we fight until we have won.

Ours is not, and never shall be, a policy of appeasement. We will not appease dictators. And on the other hand, I can promise this for the Republican Party: We will not appease Communists—in Washington or anywhere else.

We believe in peace and we want peace. But we shall have our kind of peace only by becoming strong.

You people of Connecticut have rallied to the defense of your country, time after time, since the days of the Indian Wars. You have given your blood to win freedom for America, and to keep that freedom.

You will do it again, if necessary.

Sees 'Brake on Production'

From your busy shops have come small arms, ammunition, brass, machine tools and a thousand and one items that have enabled our armies to fight, and always to win.

You know what the word production means. You know how to produce defense.

But you know, too, that today the United States is not being defended. We are not producing fast enough. The New Deal has put a brake on production.

I intend to put my foot on the accelerator.

When the average person thinks of defense, he thinks mostly of finished products. He thinks of long lines of tanks, big squadrons of airplanes, great piles of shells, and thousands of pieces of artillery.

Yes, those are the things we need—real tanks, real airplanes, real shells and real artillery.

For the most part, they are turned out by huge assembly plants.

But those final products cannot be made out of thin air. Behind the big assembly plants there lies another world, a world of special products and special skills, a world of little industries and little businesses.

This world of little industry and little business is all-important to American enterprise. It is important in manufacturing and it is important in distribution.

Little Business Must Prosper

If this world of little industry and little business does not flourish, then America cannot prosper. If this world is not harnessed for defense, then America cannot be defended. Little business is the backbone of America, in peace or in war.

The only people in America who have failed to see the importance of little industry and little business are the master-minds of the New Deal. These master-minds have one simple formula for prosperity—the more deeply you go into debt—the more prosperous you are—and the more you need.

It is a simple formula. There are only three things wrong with it. It never has worked, it isn't working, and it never will work.

It has produced more unemployment and worse depressions in every corner of the land. And yet now the New Deal master-minds are using it in the name of American defense.

Last Friday in Philadelphia I showed that the third-term candidate has been talking about defense for nearly five years.

In those five years he has enormously increased his own power, and has spent $43,000,000,000. And yet he has no defense system to show for it.

Reiterates Omaha Pledge

We are going to abandon that formula.

We are going forward under the philosophy of our forefathers to rebuild a unified America, with agriculture, labor, and industry working together for the common good.

In Omaha, in my speech to the farmers, I said I would call a conference of all groups in America immediately after my election, to solve the problems of America.

I repeated that pledge at Pittsburgh in my speech to labor.

Of all the groups I had in mind, none is more important than the small independent merchant, the small businessman.

Small business in America needs help, and it will get help from me.

Now let us look at this thing squarely. Who are these small businessmen?

They are men of all sorts. They are men in charge of shops that are turning out the specialties of industry. They are the men with new inventions that may someday change our lives. They are the small producers.

But there are also the small distributors—the butcher, the baker, the garage owner—the men we trade with every day. They are doing business all over the country. They are an absolutely vital part of our American life.

Values Essential to Democracy

These men stand for certain definite values without which we cannot exist as a democracy. They stand for independence and the right of free men to lead their own lives—free from unreasonable interference. They stand for opportunity and new enterprise and adventure. Our democratic system can survive, and our unemployment problem can be solved only if such men are given a chance.

There are more than 2,000,000 business concerns in the United States which file an internal revenue return. They employ about 40,000,000 men. The overwhelming majority of them are of this type—small and independent.

Now for eight years the New Deal has proclaimed itself the friend of the little man. It has attacked business and it has sought to justify its attack by claiming that it was against big business and monopoly.

The Republican Party is an enemy of monopoly. It is under the Republican Party that the most effective steps against monopoly have been taken. We are against monopoly anywhere—whether in business or in government.

But if the New Deal had really been against big business and monopoly we should expect to find that during the past eight years little business had fared better than big business.

And what do we actually find?

Why, we find just the opposite. We find that big business under the New Deal has fared far better than little business.

Let us start with the year 1931—a year of serious depression. In that year enterprises with assets of less than $50,000 suffered badly. Only 36 per cent of them made a profit.

Little Business Fails to Rally

But the big corporations with assets of over $1,000,000 suffered just as badly. Only 36 per cent of the big businesses showed a profit in that year. The percentage was the same. The depression struck both big business and little business equally.

But what happened in 1937 under the New Deal? That year, you will remember, was the best year that the New Deal has ever had.

In 1937, 66 per cent of the big corporations showed a profit. But only 33 per cent of the little businesses showed a profit. The number of big corporations making a profit had thus increased, whereas the number of small companies showing a profit had decreased.

While big business had been gaining, small business was actually doing worse in 1937 than it had done at the bottom of the depression.

Let me put the same fact in another way. There are 225,000 corporations in America with assets of less than $50,000. If we take this group as a whole, we find that it has not made a profit in any single year from 1931 to 1937, inclusive. Now 1937 was the New Deal's best year. It is therefore safe to say that small business as a whole has not been profitable in any year under the New Deal.

Let me put the same fact in still another way. Let us consider the little businesses having a sales volume of from $5,000 to $20,000 a year. In those little businesses employment opportunities decreased from 1929 to 1937. For every five jobs available in this type of business in 1929, there were only four jobs available in 1937.

Big Concerns Show Job Gains

Contrast this with what happened to the larger firms—firms having sales volume of from half a million to a million dollars. In those big concerns there was actually a small increase in employment opportunities.

What cynics those New Dealers are! They have pretended to hate big business. But all the time they have been stepping on the neck of the little businessman—the druggist, the grocer, and the little manufacturer.

Believe me, people of Connecticut, our Republican administration will not lie to you. We say that we are for business. And we mean that.

I dont' want to pretend for one moment that there have not been abuses on the part of some American businessmen and financiers.

Where such abuses occur, the man responsible should be punished. I believe in regulation of banks and public utilities and stock exchanges.

But such regulation does not justify a general attack against the people's enterprise. It does not entitle any government to make political capital out of the destruction of the people's opportunities. And it does not warrant the lie—the deliberate and malicious lie—that this America of ours has lost the power to grow.

Now I want to remind you again that it is to small business that we just look for growth and expansion. The biggest companies cannot expand much. But the little companies must expand, and must multiply, if we are to put our people back to work. This is the only way by which we can make enough new jobs.

Relief Will Be Guaranteed

I have said many times under our Republican administration, relief will be guaranteed. Nobody is going to be taken off relief so long as he lacks a job. But if we are to defend this country, and if we are to make democracy strong, we must make 9,000,000 or 10,000,000 new jobs—we must put everybody back to work.

People say, how can this be done? Sometimes that question amazes me. The New Deal has sold this Nation a bill of goods. It has sold us on the idea that jobs are difficult to make.

Let me urge you to think of this problem in this simple way. Think, now, whether there is something that you want but which you cannot afford to buy. When you think of that, you will probably think of many other things. You may need some new clothes. You may want a telephone, a radio, a new car, a better education, or even a new and better place to live.

There are approximately 8,000,000 adult persons in this country with desires at least as great as yours. If each of them only wanted a hundred dollars worth of goods and services, which he cannot now have, that would mean $8,000,000,000 worth of demand upon American business and industry. And most of us want much more than a hundred dollars worth of goods and services.

It is simply nonsense to say that America is finished, that there is no market for further production, and that our little businessmen have nothing to look forward to. We are faced with a potential market of billions upon billions of dollars. We have the man power, the ability, and the ingenuity to supply those markets. The future is just as big as it ever was.

But the New Deal's attack against business has made it impossible for little businessmen to take advantage of that big future. It has utterly destroyed the confidence of business, and its ability to predict what is going to happen from month to month or from year to year.

Business Rebuilding Program

I have a program for the rebuilding of American business. That program begins with little business, and I can summarize it somewhat as follows:

First, I propose that we stop changing the rules under which business operates. Instead of making it as difficult as possible for the little businessman to predict what will be happening next month or next year, let us make it as easy as possible. Let us give him just as many guarantees concerning the attitude of the Government as we possibly can. In this regard, I believe that renewed efforts should be made by the Department of Commerce to supply the little businessman with the best possible information concerning markets and trends.

Second, it is essential that the little businessman know that his Government is for him, not against him. Under a Republican Administration there will be no doubt whatever about this.

Every little businessman will know that we favor his efforts to make new jobs for those who are now dependent upon relief.

Third, we must simplify business regulations. In 1938 business had to make out nearly 136,000,000 returns for the Federal Government. A total of 60,000,000 returns had to be made by industrial, commercial, and financial concerns. That was about 20 reports for each enterprise. And on the average those returns required answers to about 65 questions.

This, incidentally, is one important reason why big business has fared better than little business under the New Deal. The big corporation has a staff of bookkeepers, accountants and lawyers to take care of this wilderness of details. The little businessman can afford no such staff. The burden of answering the questions falls on one or two men, who must take time away from their business in order to please the Government. That is bad for the employes.

Tax Revision Needed

And in addition, the difficulty of understanding all these regulations causes the little businessman to hesitate before undertaking anything new.

Fourth, we must revise the tax structure. Never before in history has little business had to carry such a heavy burden of taxes. This is another important reason why it has not been able to employ more men.

Fifth, another problem that little business has faced is the problem of raising new capital. The SEC regulations are too complicated, and compliance with them is too expensive. We must simplify those regulations. We must also find other ways to help little business to raise capital. New capital invested in America means new jobs.

Sixth, among the most important advantages of a big corporation are its laboratories and research staff. Out of these industrial laboratories come new developments, new products, and new ideas. As an American I am proud to say that during the depression progress along this line has not stopped.

It has, if anything, increased. But the attack against business has prevented businessmen from making use of it for our benefit.

The little businessman cannot afford a laboratory. He cannot afford to pay high salaries for good engineers and scientists. Therefore when he comes in competition with the big corporation he is at a disadvantage.

I propose therefore that the Government undertake to build the best possible laboratories in various parts of the country. And I propose that the Government put these laboratories at the disposal of little industry and little business for a nominal fee.

Little businessmen of all sorts could then bring their problems to such laboratories and get the best scientists in the country to work on them. Some projects might take just a few months, others might take several years. But they would all point in one direction.

The expansion of existing enterprises, the creating of new enterprises, and the opening up of the American futures.

Puts Future Up to Youth

I think you will agree that if such laboratories were established in different parts of the country, they would materially assist in the problem of decentralizing industry and helping the little businessman to compete.

Those six points indicate the spirit in which our Republican administration would approach the problem of business revival.

And those points are important because the ultimate beneficiaries of such a revival are not the businessmen, but we, the people—the consumers and workers.

We know, after eight years of sad lessons, that we cannot get our jobs back, or make better jobs for ourselves, unless business does revive.

And we know, as we look into the future, that we cannot make America strong, that we cannot hope to defend America, unless business revives.

It is to these principles that we are dedicated. It is by the application of these principles that we shall make ourselves strong.

To the youth of this country I say this is your fight. The future lies ahead of you and it is up to you to choose what that future will be like.

You can, if you want, live in a country dominated by monopoly; a country in which only those businesses can survive which are big enough to fight the big Government. That is the kind of country that the New Deal is headed for.

Or you can, if you want, live in a country where opportunity for new business enterprise is kept alive and vigorous; a country of free and independent men, who are not afraid of their Government, and who are therefore not afraid of the future. That is the kind of country our Republican administration offers you.

There can be no doubt about the answer. Today I have seen hundreds of thousands of your Connecticut people. I have seen young and old. I know what kind of America you people want. I know that you want your America—the land of infinite opportunity with an infinite future.

Md. Boys Club Drive Finishes Short of Goal

The Prince Georges County Police Boys Club drive, which closed last night, raised $8,031, on the basis of nearly complete returns, club officials announced. A goal of $10,000 had been sought.

The drive started September 3 and was to have closed October 3, but was extended a week.

While the drive is officially closed, it was announced that contributions would be received any time. The money raised will be used for a clubhouse in Magruder Park, Hyattsville. Herbert Sachs, campaign chairman, said the building would be erected despite failure of the drive to reach its quota. Arrangements would be made to borrow money, if necessary, he said.

Officers who led in the solicitation of contributions were Sergt. Ralph Brown, and Officers Richard A. Pearson and Earl Huber, of the county force, and Howard Holmes, of the Hyattsville town police department.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Start Easy With Exercise, Then Work Up

Relaxation Helps You Avoid Tension In Swimming Effort

By Ida Jean Kain

SO IT'S all settled and you're going to lose 20 pounds for Christmas . . . but you also want a beautiful figure by that date, and that means you are going to slim a good three inches off the waistline, firm the midsection, and trim three to four inches off the hips.

Having been a bit lazy about your exercises for the past several months—or years—it will pay you to start gently. There's nothing to be gained by getting right into the spirit of the thing and keeping it up until you are exhausted.

Take it easy. Start with just five minutes of limbering exercise for the first few days and gradually up it to 10 times. Then in a couple of weeks work up to 20 minutes a day.

Fix Definite Time

Since you are probably not enthusiastic about this, you'd better make a habit of doing your exercise at a definite time every morning. Then your conscience will hurt when you miss it.

Stretch to limber up quickly: Lie on your back on the floor, and pull yourself slim through the middle as you stretch from tip to toe. Lying down exercises have their points—they take the weight off your feet and keep you in perfect posture.

To slim the waist, add a twist to the stretch. Swing the right leg across the left, touching toes to floor on the opposite side, then stretch until you feel a pull all along the right side. Repeat three times, rest and change sides.

Relaxation Important

It is very important to relax between exercises. In this way you avoid building up tension. With any strenuous exercise, it is best to shake the limbs loosely afterwards to rid the muscles of tension and to prevent stiffness.

To tone the muscular girdle while slimming the waistline, bring one knee to chest as you lie on the back on the floor, then, twisting at waist, touch kneepoint to the floor on the far side of the other leg. Hold for a second, return to beginning position and alternate sides, continuing for 12 counts. Relax.

MOVEMENT: Work the legs in a scissors action, keeping knees straight. Hold the legs slightly off the floor for freedom of movement. Swing the legs back and forth for 12 counts, rest, then perform 12 counts on the other side. Later you can swing 100 counts on each side, resting between each 25 counts.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Wife Repels Man's Love, Whereupon He Uses 'Coue' Method of Disciplining His Emotions; Now She Sues His Favor and He Is Indifferent; What to Do?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: The story of the emotionally maladjusted husband and wife—married 15 years, with two children—told in your column of October 3, was so similar to our domestic situation of three years ago that, if I had read it then, I would have sworn the letter had been written by my wife. (But the picture has changed considerably since then. And not for the better.)

My love for my wife was equally unwelcomed by her. For years I had thought (or hoped) it was a temporary but remediable mental attitude that she would eventually overcome. She gave me to understand I was more brute than man; that even the touch of my hand was often repulsive to her; that she hesitated to show me any affection . . . and why couldn't I leave her alone?

Finally it became apparent to me that something had to be done, at once, to keep the family together. I made up my mind to control my feelings. I decided to work on MY mental attitude, and I employed the Coue theory so popular some years ago.. You may remember it: "Day by day, in every way, I'm getting better and better, etc." Except that I used it in reverse, directing it at my wife's erstwhile appeal for me. I told myself: "She is getting older and uglier, fatter and flabbier, etc., etc."

In other words, instead of beholding the beauty and grace I had formerly seen when I looked at her, I sought out and emphasized (in my thought) all the shortcomings in her appearance. This was done secretly, with never a word or outward sign. At the same time I told myself she had worthy qualities, mentally and spiritually; that she was a fine woman and a good mother. And the Coue method (used in reverse) worked only too well.

Believe it or not, I managed in time to kill all the lover-like feeling I had once had for her. I had respect and affection for her, yes, such as I might have felt for a mother or grandmother, or a well-liked housekeeper. But this didn't solve the problem. Things are in a worse state now than before. Recently my wife has been taking the initiative in love-making, and her state of mind today resembles mine of three years ago, while I am as indifferent as she once was.

So now I am trying to undo the work I did on my mental attitude. I am trying to recapture the ability to see her as a beautiful, charming and desirable wife. Sometimes I think I am making progress; and then again I feel it is a hopeless assignment: that I can never again be a real husband to her. My wife is a good and worthy woman. She would give anything to have the old status back, and so would I—as our life is not what it was or should be. But what can be done?

I have talked this over in strict confidence with an older man, a business associate, who has never met my wife, and he recommends a short separation. He thinks this would help us recover a healthy perspective and come back together in a frame of mind to start marriage over on a better basis. Any additional advice you can give us will be much appreciated and we will do, to our utmost, whatever you suggest. Sincerely,

WORRIED HUSBAND.

Wife Should Achieve Pleasing New Appearance

DEAR W. H.: I believe your business associate has given you the germ of an excellent idea. I believe a marital vacation—particularly if employed by your wife to work a radical improvement in her looks—might be the means of reviving your "lover-like" interest in her. Can you afford to give her a vacation in another city for a month or two months or longer?—during which time she could do a really effective makeover job on her figure, complexion, coiffure and wardrobe?

Or, if you can't afford that, would she consider turning over a new leaf, and becoming a business woman instead of a housewife for a change? Almost any sort of job that took her into the business world every day would compel her to take a creative interest in her appearance in order to hold her own with her coworkers, and would, in addition, open her eyes and mind to a whole new world of bustling affairs outside her door.

What she needs just now, more than anything else, is a change of mental scene; a larger view of life's possibilities, that gradually will enable her to see her little domestic tragi-comedy (which I am sure is remediable) in its proper proportion in the cosmic scheme of things. She needs to realize that the sky hasn't fallen, that all isn't lost, even though you have Coue-ed your former romantic love of her into a currently comatose condition.

In other words, she needs to tackle the problem with a sense of humor, in a spirit of adventure, accepting what has happened NOT as disaster but as an invaluable, timely challenge to her to develop her potentialities as a feminine social being. As a demurely persuasive and widely loved career woman of my acquaintance frequently remarks (while powdering her nose for a business conference), "A woman's first business is to be charming." I recommend this sentiment to your wife as her motto henceforth. She should never forget it in her dealings with you—and she should have done with piteous pleading and fervid aggression as fatal to her cause.

As a result of persistent autosuggestion, I suppose you have induced a condition of psychic impotence in relation to your wife. Yet, if she were to achieve a delightful metamorphosis of appearance and manner, so that she looked (as the saying goes) "ten years younger," and lightly coquetted with you instead of suing for your favor, I daresay you would find her as desirable, and yourself as responsive, as you were three years ago and earlier.

However, even though your wife takes my advice and branches out—in interests, activities and appearance—toward the development of a better rounded, more provocative and stimulating personality, still, it would be well for both of you to get pointers from a physician, psychiatrist or psychologist, on how to pull your marriage out of the rut. Had you been properly educated in (shall we say) mental hygiene in marriage, the current crisis would never have developed. But now that it has, you should treat it both from within and without, to make doubly sure that recovery is permanent.

A 'Saucy' Topper

Cranberry sauce makes a topper for braised pork chops, broiled lamb or veal chops, or veal steak. Cover the meat with the sauce the last five minutes of the cooking. Cranberry sauce served hot like this introduces a delightful new flavor.

New Fashions a Family Affair

Don't take his big polka dots too seriously, men! It's just one of the bright American ideas penetrating into the advance resort clothes, already being shown in the new fashion center of the world—New York. Both husband and wife (or sister and brother) wear the same navy and white polka dotted alluracel shirts with duplicate celbrook slacks. The twin costume idea is one started sometime ago by Gladys Swarthout and husband and other "teams" in public life. It may catch on full force by the 1941 cruise season

Storm Over American Fabrics Stirred Up by Schiaparelli

By Marshall Adams

The Post Fashion Editor.

A STORM of controversy recently broke on the head of Elsa Schiaparelli, European couturiere, who told a New York audience that America could never hope to cope with Parisian styles because of the inferior materials produced on this side of the ocean.

MARSHALL ADAMS

That was a big monkey wrench to throw into the ego of a huge American industry, just beginning to gain recognition for its creative efforts, unheralded in the past due to Parisian snubs. A number of prominent native stylists hastened to America's rescue by acknowledging the superiority of native fabrics, which they say are as fine in color dyeing, texture and quality, even originality, as the Rodiers, Bianchinis and Harris tweeds of Europe.

Like a challenge, the Waldorf Astorias' big annual fabric fashion show, held simultaneously with Schiaparelli's "lecture," drew 1,200 guests, eager to see what America had produced for the present season and the one to come. The result—not a doubt among the thousand odd experts of America's ability to fill world fashion demand.

Advance Exhibit

In a dramatic display of American style preparedness, smart New Yorkers were permitted to peep into the future of native fabrics—all made of celanese rayons from chemicals found and manufactured in neighboring States. Advance cruise and travel fashions by top designers included such representative American names as Jane Derby, Dorothy Couteaur and Claire McCardell, (all three of whom have relatives, friends or homes in Washington and nearby Virginia); Mary Lewis, Helen Cookman, Charles Armour, Vera Maxwell, Dorothy Cox, Joset Walker and Brigance, also Milo Anderson, Howard Green and Robert Kalloch, of Hollywood.

Most of these designers used celbrook, the grandmother of the sharkskin family, for their sports and play suits. This is a sturdy washable material conceived exclusively in this country, which, along with jersanese, has revolutionized the way clothes drape and fit the body.

For the Whole Family

Also prophetic were cape effects for day and night, blouse backs, Sultanna drapery for evening, the sleeveless jerkin and the full South American type of skirt worn as a dinner dress or over dress or over a splashy swim suit for the midnight dip. Most amusing and possibly most prophetic was the use of the same striped or dotted shirting for blouses and suits for every member of the family, for husband and wife, mother and daughter, or big and little sister.

On the heels of this fashion forecast comes the agreeable information that at last America has found a way to produce its own pure silk in this country. The plot is still thick for at present experts simply state that the real silk is made here and without benefit of Japan's silk worms.

Beauty Secrets

By CAROLYN ABBOTT.

How to 'Sit Pretty'

Many potential beautiful women spoil their appearance by assuming ungainly sitting positions. The way they hold their feet and legs is an object lesson in awkwardness.

One particularly ugly position is to sit with the legs and feet wide apart. (This seems to be a common fault among many fat women.) Invariably they stretch their feet 6 or 8 inches apart. The whole body then settles into a squat and the legs take on the angles of a scrubwoman. The most graceful sitting position is to place both feet firmly on the floor. Point the toes straight ahead. Place one foot slightly ahead of the other—that is, let the toes of one foot come to the middle of the other foot or slightly in front of the heel.

When you cross your knees (if you must), don't cross your upper legs. Cross the legs just above the knee and let the top leg drop easily down in the same general direction as the supporting one. Thus you get a slanted line from chair to floor instead of an ungainly criss-cross. Cross the ankles low and lightly. Always let the hanging foot dangle easily from the ankle. Keep the toes pointed down. An upthrust toe denotes nervousiness and besides its ugly and awkward.

The Gentler Sex

Back From the Wars

I am a traveled woman.

I have covered a continent (in steps) touring gardens in behalf of noble causes.

I have walked miles upon miles going through picturesque old houses both restored and unrestored.

I have taken millions of steps inspecting from basement to attic the new homes of my friends in suburban additions.

I have traveled innumerable miles looking at back yard vegetable gardens of my enthusiastic rural friends.

I have done the equivalent of a hiking trip through Switzerland during humid days hunting the right cotton dress (and incidentally never finding it).

I have climbed the Washington Monument in effect, time upon time, going up and down steps in office buildings and stores where elevators were overcrowded or had locomotor ataxia or didn't work at all.

I have crammed a 10 years' daily constitutional into a few months walking to far-off places where friends who were going to give me a "lift" have had their motor cars parked.

I have done a year's defense "toughening up" by standing hours upon hours at teas, and cocktail and garden parties where all the seats had been carefully concealed.

I have equaled a year's army marching in my search for an apartment that was not too far out or too close in, too high up or too low down, too gaudy or too genteel, too this or too that, and yet that was within the range of my purse.

And yet—savants have the nerve to give out warnings that we are losing the use of our feet and becoming a Nation of "softies."

The Dowd

"I saw Lucille Mosey the other day."

"How'd she look?"

"I'm afraid Lucille's letting herself go."

"What do you mean?"

"Well, she still had on that Duchess of Windsor nail polish."

"No!"

"And that's not the worst! She's still letting her tips and moons show!"

"Of all things!"

"Another thing, she was STILL wearing a little American flag!"

"You don't mean it!"

"And she was still matching all her colors!"

"Really! The poor thing!"

"Yes. And what do you think!? She didn't even have on a conversational gadget!"

"Poor Lucille!"

Help Wanted

A milliner who would take at least one good look at my face before she ran off to get her armful of hats patently designed for my feminine antithesis.

A dentist who would not denounce my favorite political candidate while he had his fist stuck in my mouth.

A doctor who would not be called on the telephone by his long-winded women patients while I was paying for the time to talk about myself.

A hair stylist who would let me do a little back seat driving while he was wielding the shears.

A waiter who would not hover impatiently and rush me into choosing all the things I didn't want, and then make an interminable disappearance after leaving me shy a fork.

A paper boy who would not come to collect when I was entertaining guests and without a bit of change in the house.

A floor walker who would not make me feel like a petty criminal whenever I returned a purchase.

A radio repair man who would give me an inkling of what the trouble was all about and whether or not it would be better to throw the whole apparatus out the window.

A Woman's WASHINGTON

By JEAN BROWNELL

NEXT TIME you see someone waddling down the street, feet wide apart, don't laugh, but take a look at your reflection in the next show window; you may be doing the same thing, or worse. The reason, according to Marion Venable, local dancing instructor, is that most of us have posture defects dating from babyhood, when we first learned to keep our equilibrium. "Ever since, we've been too busy with other things to think about carriage," she says. Her first precept for better posture is, "Lift the diaphragm and 'tuck in.'" The discovery that they can improve their figures without dieting delights her pupils so that they seldom slouch again.

Marion Venable

Miss Venable classifies bad posture under the heading of "social selfishness." "What good is a beautiful body if its owner doesn't bother to carry herself well?" she says. "Equally selfish is the woman who holds herself aloof in a gathering and forces others to 'draw her out.' Usually she's not stuck up, but afraid. I've never discovered why humans fear one another; there would be so much more friendliness in the world if we trusted each other and felt free to strike up a conversation with a pleasant-looking person sitting near us on a bus or in a restaurant."

Two streetcar passengers last week were discussing a scheme which might solve one problem common to most Government workers. During the 4 p. m. rush, loading platforms are lined with six or eight cars going to different destinations. The only way to find the right one is to walk up and down the line, peering at the front of the cars. If these women had their way, the cars would be equipped with projecting arms similar to the left-turn signals used by truck drivers. The destination would be printed on the signs, and passengers could locate the right car merely by glancing down the line.

One of World's Prettiest Women, Mme. Soong, Is Guest at Tea

Mrs. Dorothy Lee Ward Entertains For Wife of Chinese Bank Head, Here on Governmental Business

By Hope Ridings Miller.

BRING ON YOUR LOVELY ladies from any country, any time. My candidate for one of the world's prettiest women is Mme. T. V. Soong, and I have an idea that plenty of Washingtonians who turned out to meet her yesterday afternoon at Mrs. Dorothy Lee Ward's tea will agree with me.

Slim as a willow wand and looking like a fragile dark-haired figurine, Mme. Soong and her hostess greeted a long line of distinguished guests from 5 to 7 o'clock. The party, given in honor of Mr. and Mme. Soong, took place at Mrs. Ward's Massachusetts Avenue home, which is a veritable museum for antique Oriental tapestries, jade objects of art, handsomely carved teakwood tables, and exquiste inlaid vases—to say nothing of one of the most attractive collections of Chinese prints I have seen in many a day. Mrs. Ward has spent much time in the Orient and is a devotee of Chinese art and history.

As anyone who knows the Orient will tell you, Mr. and Mme. Soong are among China's most distinguished citizens. Mr. Soong is a brother of Mme. Chiang Kai-shek and is head of the Bank of China. In the latter capacity, he came to America on government business which recently resulted in the grant of a $25,000,000 loan to his country. A conference in connection with the conclusion of his work here caused him to be late to yesterday afternoon's party, but when he arrived, most of the guests were still on hand to meet him.

MME. SOONG, however, came along ahead of her husband and brought word that he would be there as soon as possible. Arriving with her was the Chinese Ambassador, Dr. Hu Shih, and the two were completely surrounded during the entire party. Mme. Soong's ensemble featured a street-length robe of mulberry crepe, cut on Chinese lines and set off with jade earrings and black accessories. In keeping with the custom of her country, she appeared hatless, but carried a bag and gloves.

Receiving informally, Mrs. Ward was gowned in a floor-length frock, fashioned of black, handwoven ribbon yarn and trimmed with epaulets of pearl and crystal to match the narrow band that edged the neckline. Assisting her were two nieces, Miss Florence Ward Cauthen, who made her bow to Washington society last year, and Miss Eula Mae Grigg, a pupil at Holton Arms, and Miss Jane Davis, who was graduated from the Finch School in New York last year, and is devoting much time this winter to studying piano and voice.

Guests, greeted in the drawing room, soon found their way to the dining room, where jasmine tea was served along with a variety of dainties. The table, decorated with a low bowl of white chrysanthemums and cosmos, was lighted with tall white tapers in silver holders. Presiding there was Lady Bradford Leslie, whose brown chiffon frock was set off with a collar of powder blue embroidery and a corsage of gardenias.

REFLECTIONS in a tea cup: Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, talking politics with Mrs. Harold Walker and Mrs. Emerson Howe . . . Mrs. Laurence V. Benet, among the early arrivals, chatting with Mrs. William A. Moffett . . . Mme. Hurban, telling friends that her Minister-husband is enjoying his visit in Havana where he went recently to attend the Batista inauguration . . . Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Albert Cox talking with Col. Teh Chuan Kuo, Chinese Military Attache . . . Mrs. Sol Bloom and Miss Vera Bloom, greeting friends on all sides, and being escorted to the dining room by Ralph Snowden Hill . . . Col. and Mrs. F. J. Morrow in a talkative foursome that included Mr. and Mrs. Harry Grant Meem. Incidentally, the latter two will be off to Atlantic City today, will go from there to Connecticut and will stop by New York for a brief stay before returning to Washington early in November.

Still others seen at the party were Mrs. George C. Pirie, Sir Owen and Lady Chalkley, Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, Mr. and Mrs. William P. MacCracken, Ralph Totten, just back from a moose and bear hunt in Canada ("I got no 'mice,' he said, but a wolf and two bears"), Mrs. Irene Caldwell, Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, Mrs. Parker West, Royce Powell and several dozen others.

Mrs. Stanley Takes Group To Races

Luncheon at Her Home at Laurel Precedes Trip to Track

Mrs. William Stanley was hostess to several friends from Washington yesterday at an afternoon at the races, preceded by a pleasant luncheon party.

The Stanley home at Laurel is a short distance from the race track, and driving over after luncheon in time for the first race can be managed if plans are laid as carefully as they were yesterday.

Party to Be Annual Affair

"Come out for luncheon and we'll go over to watch the horses run afterward," was what Mrs. Stanley said by way of inviting a handful of friends to enjoy her hospitality and the thrill of seeing the races. "Better be at my house by 11:30," she added. And when that hour rolled around yesterday, everybody had arrived.

"This ought to be an annual get together," suggested one guest about midafternoon, just before the fourth race got under way.

"It will be," promised Mrs. Stanley. And thus it was decided that this time next year the same crowd would gather at the Stanley home, have luncheon, and then drive over to spend the rest of the afternoon watching the horses run.

Mrs. Barkley Ranking Guest

Ranking guest at the luncheon was Mrs. Alben Barkley, who later displayed exceptional talent at picking winning horses. Mrs. Breckinridge Long was there, and invited the group over to her home, Montpelier Manor, afterward. Mrs. Henry F. Grady, another person who knows a winning horse when she sees one, was among the guests; as were Mrs. Donald Richberg, Mrs. Raymond Clapper, Mrs. J. Fred Essary, Mrs. Bulkley Griffin, Miss Betty Hynes and Mrs. Clarence Lee Miller.

Accompanying the party "to watch the horses" was the hostess' attractive daughter, Miss Mary Jane Stanley, whose trim turquoise blue suit, worn with a matching hat, a cerise blouse, and a sable neckpiece, was one of the outstanding ensambles seen at the races.

Historic Gadsby's Tavern Scene Of National D. A. R. Reception

Mrs. Henry Roberts, President General, Is Honor Guest

The golden jubilee celebration of the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, started yesterday with two major events of the week's schedule, the reception in the restored ballroom of Gadsby's Tavern in Alexandria, honoring Mrs. Henry M. Robert, jr., president general, yesterday afternoon and the anniversary party in honor of the charter members, last night at the chapter house of the District D. A. R., 1732 Massachusetts Avenue.

At Gadsby's, in the ballroom where Gen. Washington danced at the first public celebration of his birthday, and where the Marquis de Lafayette was twice entertained, Mrs. Robert received with Mrs. C. A. Swann Sinclair, D. A. R. regent of Virginia, and F. Clifton Knight, past commander of the Virginia American Legion, president of the board of the tavern.

The restoration of the room, whose interior some years ago was transferred to the Metropolitan Museum in New York, was the golden jubilee project of the Virginia Daughters under Mrs. Sinclair's leadership. The restoration is faithful in every possible detail, including the musicians' gallery, entered from the hallway by a ladder taken down after the musicians had climbed up. Old-time airs were played yesterday afternoon by three colored men in colonial costume, their instruments, a banjo, guitar and fiddle.

Mrs. Sinclair wore a black dress trimmed in sequins, a black hat and corsage of yellow roses. Mrs. Robert was in black velvet with hat to match and wore orchids sent by Mrs. Joseph Taylor Young, of California, reporter to the Smithsonian, the only national board member not here for the celebration. Mr. Knight was in American Legion uniform.

The general chairman of the tea, Mrs. John T. Ashton, wore a floor-length dress of deep dahlia shades and Mrs. Robert M. Reese, chairman of the restoration, was in a beige gown with hat to match.

In the dining room the two tea tables were appointed with center bouquets of gold-colored flowers many of them dahlias from the garden of Mrs. Malcolm Mathieson. Mrs. DuBois Brookings and Mrs. Charles C. Smoot headed the committee of hostesses.

Not only did the guests see the ballroom but viewed the three bedrooms across the hall, one restored by Mrs. William H. Pouch, past president of the Children of the American Revolution, in honor of Mrs. Sinclair, and another by four societies of the C. A. R. in honor of Mrs. Pouch. The third has been done by the D. A. R. In Mrs. Sinclair's room is a canopy four-poster bed, the spread of which was the gift of Mrs. John Morrison Kerr, who now heads the national society, C. A. R. It was woven near Alexandria at the time of the Revolution. Mrs. Pouch and Mrs. Kerr alternated between the two rooms, greeting the guests.

Charter Members Honored Guests

Last night, 17 charter members attended the reception given in their honor by the District D. A. R. at the chapter house. One who had been expected for the celebration could not come to Washington it was decided when the day arrived. She was Mrs. James B. Oliver, of Sewickley, Pa., aged 94, but her daughter, Mrs. William J. Crittenden, also a charter member, is here.

Others attending were Mrs. William H. Baltzell, of Pittsburgh; Mrs. Lucy F. Bittinger, Baltimore; Mrs. Lucian H. Cocke, Roanoke, Va.; Mrs. Benjamin S. Cowen, Fairmont, W. Va.; Mrs. Edmund S. Roberts, Mamaroneck, N. Y.; Mrs. John Slaton, Atlanta; Miss Grace F. Rockafellow, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; Mrs. Philip Van Wyck, jr., Butler, N. J.; Miss Marie Louise Wadsworth, New York, and, from Washington, Mrs. Howard L. Hodgkins, honorary vice president general; Miss Janet Richards; Mrs. George K. Bradfield, Mrs. William M. Hannay, Mrs. Caleb Kinney, Miss Lillian Norton, Mrs. Henry Williams.

All were presented with small flower decorations for their hair in the style of 50 years ago. They were in the receiving line with Mrs. Robert and the District state regent, Mrs. Harry C. Oberholser.

17 Charter Members Attend Affair Given By D. C. Chapter

Mrs. Robert wore a grey crepe gown, trimmed with brilliants and Mrs. Oberholser black velvet and rose point lace. Both carried white chrysanthemums tied with gold ribbon.

Mrs. George Clarke Ober, jr., general chairman of arrangements, wore a white gown with military jacket trimmed in gold braid and white gardenias tied with gold. Her vice chairmen were Mrs. H. C. Merwin, Mrs. Edgar E. Good and Mrs. Elmer E. Curry.

At the end of an hour the receiving line broke up and a huge birthday cake, lighted with 50 white candles, was brought in to be cut by the president general while the charter members stood in a circle around it.

Gold Motif in All Decorations

The rooms were decorated with dozens of yellow roses, hydrangeas, sprayed in gold, and yellow autumn leaves. Ivy sprayed in gold was banked around an ice bowl from which punch was served, and gold doilies were used on the plates. The table was lighted with white tapers.

As a feature of the observance of the anniversary, Mrs. Robert will be heard in a radio address over a national hookup today. The address will be a general message of anniversary import and will be broadcast by the Mutual system and associated stations at 2:15 p. m. A memorial service is scheduled at 4 p. m. and a dinner tonight at 7 o'clock at the Mayflower.

Pageant and Tea Today Mark Hillcrest's 125th Anniversary

Celebration to Be Held at Orphan Asylum; 45 Children to Participate In Program Directed by Mrs. John A. Selby

A pageant, a memorial tree planting and a tea this afternoon will celebrate the 125th anniversary of the founding of Hillcrest, the Washington City Orphan Asylum. The trustees and the board of lady managers of Hillcrest have issued invitations to the celebration which will be held at 3 o'clock at the home, 4119 Nebraska Avenue.

Forty-five children will take part in the pageant which is to be presented under the direction of Mrs. John A. Selby. It will show the history of the home from its founding in 1815 to the present. Miss Dorothy Sevisshelm, director of the home, has written the pageant.

The home was founded in 1815 to care for the children, orphaned as a result of the War of 1812. Marcia Burns Van Ness was the founder and Dolly Madison, wife of President James Madison, was elected the first directress or president. Mrs. Van Ness was named second directress, and Mrs. Elias B. Caldwell, treasurer. Mrs. Caldwell's husband was clerk of the Supreme Court. The secretary was Mrs. Samuel Harrison Smith, wife of the "registrar of the city." The institution was known as the Washington City Female Orphan Asylum.

The present board, headed by Mrs. Fernando Cuniberti, first directress, includes Miss Julia Fieberger, second directress; Mrs. L. Corrin Strong, recording secretary; Mrs. Waldron Faulkner, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Wilson Lee, assistant secretary; Mrs. George M. Morris, treasurer; Mrs. Clarence Aspinwall, assistant treasurer; Miss Katherine Gideon Colt, Mrs. William J. Flather, jr., Mrs. R. M. Kauffman, Miss Portia Oberly, Mrs. Huston Thompson, Mrs. Robert Wilson, Mrs. Slocum Kingsbury, Mrs. Selby, and Mrs. James Farmer.

The trustees of the home include Blair Lee, Mrs. C. Clinton James, Frank Stetson, James J. Becker, and Mrs. Charles F. Dowd, the secretary.

Guests at the tea and tree planting will have an opportunity to see the home's museum started by the children in 1931 with the aid of Miss Oberly. This museum, while on a small scale, has been compared to the famous Child Museum in Brooklyn. One day when a little girl brought to Miss Oberly a doll she had made of stockings she had the idea of starting a doll collection. The oldest doll in it is from Massachusetts, is 85 years old and is minus her feet. Also in the museum is an old Massachusetts cradle of the type used by the first white settlers. There are old doll dishes, iron pots, stamps, shells, bird nests and many other specimens of children's hobbies.

Out-of-District Domicile Bars Income Tax

Morgan Holds U. S. Worker Exempt, Cites Sweeney Case

Government employes residing here but having a legal residence in another jurisdiction are not subject to the District's new income tax, Jo V. Morgan ruled yesterday.

The one-man Board of Tax Appeals for the District held that the municipal government must return $16.36 paid by Paul M. Dehart, chief clerk of the Personnel and Organization Division of the National Guard Bureau, War Department. The money was paid by Dehart under protest.

Morgan's decision marks his first on the question of a Federal employe's domicile in connection with the tax. He based his decision on the Sweeney case, wherein the United States Court of Appeals held the District could not tax a Federal employe, who, although he actually resided in the District, maintained a domicile in another jurisdiction. The Sweeney case, however, involved the intangible personal property tax.

Morgan said "there is no essential difference" between the facts in the Sweeney case and the present one. James J. Sweeney, an attorney with the Department of Justice, although residing in the District for 20 years maintained a legal residence in Massachusetts.

Dehart stated to the board he came to Washington in 1914 from Pennsylvania to accept a civil service appointment in the Patent Office. He purchased a home at 1426 Massachusetts Avenue Southeast, where he now resides.

Morgan said the petitioner has voted in Pennsylvania and up until the time the State abolished the poll tax, had paid the tax.

U. S. Canteens Bring Briton His Spot of Tea

The Briton's beloved cup of tea, dispensed to air-raid victims and home defense workers by mobile canteens, given by Americans, is helping the Royal Air Force to maintain the morale of Britain's bomb-battered population.

This was the message received here yesterday by the American Red Cross in a letter from Lady Stella Reading, chairman of the Women's Voluntary Services for Civil Defense.

Twelve mobile units, each containing eight motor cars, were provided after bombs smashed on 24 of London's 28 boroughs in one night.

"Without them," Lady Reading said, "I frankly do not know how the vital services could have carried on. On Saturday night heavy bombing took place in the East End with 400 deaths and an immense number of casualties. Automatically the food and rest shelters came into operation and an S O S was sent out for mobile canteens to help with the feeding. Over 2,000 people were fed."

Lady Reading added that the canteens, manned by W. V. S. girls, race out during raids to feed Air Raid precaution personnel, first aid groups, demolition parties, street wardens, and policemen, in addition to victims.

"When things get to hot," she said, the girls "just get under the canteen until things are calmer, then proceed on their way."

"When gas is cut off, electricity interfered with, it becomes impossible to cook, or even boil water for the beloved cup of tea. Though to the comfortable, warm and well fed it sounds a minor thing, to those hard-pressed, bombed, cold and miserable folk, it is an added hardship to be unable to get a hot drink."

"As I came in to dictate this letter," Lady Reading added, "a girl who got into the lift with me and who had been blown four or five feet by a bomb six minutes ago, told me that she had handed the park keeper six shillings as a tip for the chair she had been sitting on. He looked at it and said:

"'Gor blimey! I don't mind being blown away by a bomb every five minutes, if it means 6d every time'."

Business Units Ahead In Red Cross Roll Call

Washington businessmen rallied to the Red Cross roll call yesterday, to provide 1,497 of the day's 4,344 memberships, putting the general business units ahead of their comparative 1939 position for the first time this year.

Total enrollment of the drive, which ends October 19, is now 70,384—10,139 more than had been recorded on the corresponding date of last year.

General business units have obtained 8,386 members, as compared with 8,283 a year ago.

Comparative returns of other leading roll call groups are Government, 47,695 for 1940 and 39,557 for 1939; utilities, 3,715 this year and 2,788 last year; professional, 3,608 for 1940 and 3,249 in 1939, and booths, 3,385 for 1940 and 2,924 in 1939.

At 4:30 p. m. today Gunston Hall students and faculty will see a dramatic skit staged by the roll-call speakers' bureau. Similar skits will be presented tonight at a meeting of the Washingtonians at 9 o'clock at 5325 Thirty-eighth Street Northwest, and to the Congress Heights Citizens Association at 8:30 p. m. at Fifth and Nichols Avenue Southeast.

Motorist Killed in Plunge From Bridge

'Secret Weapon' Leads 'Push' Against Japanese Beetles

War was declared yesterday against the Japanese beetle.

Up to now, a mere declaration of war on the pesky insect hasn't been worth the breath it was uttered with, but something happened right here in Washington yesterday to put teeth in the extinction threat.

Two Department of Agriculture experts came down from their Moorestown, N. J., research laboratory and immediately went to work sowing "type A milky disease" among the grubs that will be next summer's Japanese beetles.

It is fervently hoped by entomologists that the disease is the answer to their prayer for an effective weapon against the beetle, whose voracious appetite and huge numbers are the despair of all who have one or more trees or shrubs to protect.

Washington this year had the worst infestation in its history and it is predicted that the 1941 beetle invasion will be still greater. Even should the milky disease prove effective as a grub-killer, it takes from a year to 18 months to show results, hence no relief can be reasonably looked for until 1942.

In charge of the disease-sowing job started here yesterday is Ralph T. White, assisted by P. J. McCabe. Their name for the work, though, is "spot colonization — turning millions of spore-forming bacteria loose on ground known to be grub-infested and then letting nature take its course.

Nature's course, in this instance, will be for the disease germs to bore their way down to the beetle babies' underground shelters, about a foot below the surface, and then go to work on the unsuspecting sleepers.

According to the experts, the disease will injure neither the grass nor the birds, squirrels or other animals that get all or part of their sustenance from the ground. But, they are confident, it will play havoc with the beetle larvae.

White and McCabe, assisted by National Capital Parks workers, plan to "immunize" 1,500 acres in the park system during the next two weeks. Included in the program are the White House grounds, Mall, Monument grounds, East and West Potomac Parks and all other reservations known to be providing refuge to the grubs.

Whether the so-called type A milky disease is released by the Government for general use depends in large part upon the outcome of the Washington experiment.

D. C. Jobless Taxes Unpaid, 1,000 Employers Face Fines

One thousand employers delinquent in their payments to the District Unemployment Compensation Board are faced with penalty payments or prosecution by the office of corporation counsel, it was learned yesterday.

John A. Marshall, executive director of the board, announced last week a "vigorous campaign" against the delinquent employers, and it is understood some 30 employers so far have been sent summonses for court appearances.

Meanwhile, Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen, chairman of the DUC board, announced yesterday he had asked $500,000 of the Social Security Board to house the employes of the board and of the District Employment Agencies, which is under the SSB.

Marshall has asserted that the present quarters of the DUC board, 470 Indiana Avenue Northwest, is a "firetrap." Commissioner Hazen and Marshall met yesterday with Chairman Arthur J. Altmeyer, of the SSB.

Hazen said a plan was discussed whereby the $500,000 would be taken from the $18,600,000 benefit reserve fund, which the DUC board has accumulated in the last four years and would be replaced by 10 annual installments by the Federal board. The Federal board now pays the administrative expenses of the DUC board and the rent for the three offices of the employment centers.

An original plan submitted by Marshall would have made use of the amount of interest which annually accrues on the reserve balance.

Under the new amendments to the compensation act, employers are now required to make quarterly reports to the board instead of monthly reports. Also under the new provisions the employers payroll tax was reduced from three to 2.7 per cent. However, the penalty of one per cent per month for late payments is still prescribed by law.

Bids Are Asked On Milk for Needy

The Surplus Marketing Administration yesterday announced bids would be received from dairies to supply milk for the Washington 5-cent milk program for the period November 1 to March 1, 1941.

The present contract between the marketing administration, which is an agency of the Department of Agriculture, and the Chevy Chase-Chestnut Farms Dairy terminates October 31. Since the program started August 12, a total of 97,921 quarts of milk have been distributed through the 11 stations by the District of Columbia Welfare Department, using WPA labor.

Gray Veterans Swing (Yes, Swing!) Their Partners at Reunion Dance

LAST NIGHT'S SWING—"You're as young as you feel." Lee's "boys" gave their proof of that last night, swung their partners and called for more music at the grand ball of Confederate veterans, assembled for a fiftieth reunion at the Willard Hotel. Whitehurst Relates D. C. Traffic Ills

Children Are on Street At Busiest Part of Day Citizens Group Told

School children are on the streets at the wrong hours, Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of highways, told the Rhode Island Avenue Citizens Association last night.

"I believe the schools open at the wrong time and that children are on the streets when traffic is heaviest and safety is at a premium," he told the meeting at the Woodbridge Branch Library.

Stressing the importance of the traffic and off-street parking surveys now under way, Capt. Whitehurst asserted much valuable information on traffic trends and needs would be available next year.

He stressed the importance of staggered hours for Governmental agencies as a means of spreading traffic over longer periods each day.

New facilities, he continued, do much to aid rapid movement of traffic, "but if we throw every vehicle we have on our streets at the same time, we can't have safety."

The association adopted a resolution favoring the establishment of streetcar safety zones at all stops.

Other speakers during the session were Dr. A. Fife Heath, president of the Burroughs Citizens Association, and Maj. Francis St. Austell, secretary of the Community Chest speakers' bureau.

North Randle Highlands

A proposal to disillusion motorists who act as if Minnesota Avenue Southeast were a speedway was among a number of traffic projects agreed upon last night by the North Randle Highlands Community Citizens Association, meeting at the portable school, Minnesota Avenue and E Street Southeast.

The association resolved to seek erection of signs along the street to remind drivers of the 25-mile-per-hour speed limit.

Other traffic problems to be tackled include speedy completion of a bridge now under construction at Anacostia Road and M Streets, assignment of a policeman during school hours to direct traffic on Minnesota Avenue at the portable school, and a change in operation of the traffic light at Minnesota and Pennsylvania Avenues to make left turns less difficult.

The association also resolved to seek better bus service, particularly, at school rush hours, on Minnesota Avenue between Pennsylvania Avenue and Benning Road; more fire alarm boxes and mail boxes in the Lyndale development's vicinity, and more street lights around Randle Circle.

Harry Glenser was appointed to find out why school children must pay 5 cents for a half-pint of milk when a quart can be obtained for 13 or 14 cents ordinarily.

Orrin Davy, retiring president of the Southeast Council of Citizens Associations, told of plans for ceremonies opening Sousa Bridge across the Anacostia River.

North Washington

A third term as president was given D. E. Nichols by the North Washington Community Council, meeting in the Petworth Library. Other new officers are R. T. Haugh, vice president; E. F. Allen, secretary, and E. W. Smallman, treasurer.

Committee chairmen are as follows: M. C. Schwartz, recreation; Mrs. Edith Phelps, legislation; Miss Emily Tilton, membership; Capt. F. A. Truscott, police cooperation.

The council, whose membership includes 64 community organizations, supported a proposed recreation area on land at Thirteenth and Upshur streets northwest. The delegates also moved to set up a clearing house for community improvement programs.

Following a talk by Frank Carr, of the Community Center and Playground Department, on a plan to sponsor a Halloween parade and festival in the north Washington area, the council agreed to name representatives for working out arrangements. Other speakers were Thomas Fulton and J. Tramburg, who described the activities of the Juvenile Court.

Association With 1,800 Members Incorporates National, as Well as Local Objectives in Its Fall Program

This is the eleventh article in a series about citizens associations in the District of Columbia and their efforts to make the community a better place in which to live.

Largest of Washington's 64 citizens' units is Chevy Chase Citizens Association, whose more than 1,800 members have national as well as local objectives on their fall program.

According to President Godfrey L. Munter, the association is cooperating fully with the National Government in solidifying and developing national defense to the fullest extent. "We have a very large number of enlistments from our neighborhood and 200 of our members have volunteered to help with registrations for selective service on Registration Day," he said yesterday.

Locally, Munter reported that "we are doing everything within our power to retain for Chevy Chase its characteristic residential spirit, life and appearance. Only such business is encouraged as sufficiently and reasonably serves the convenience of the community.

"We are against any increase in liquor dispensaries. It is our constant endeavor to keep Chevy Chase a place where an average citizen can live and rear his children in peace and safety, and according to democratic and American principles," he added.

An exhibition of National Guard equipment will be presented by members at their next meeting, October 17. The exhibit will be at Chevy Chase Circle, followed by a meeting at 8 p. m. in the E. V. Brown School, 5601 Connecticut avenue northwest. Regular meetings are held there on the third Wednesday of each month.

A committee including John D. Fitzgerald, J. H. Gordon, and E. S. Hoffman is cooperating with the National Guard to arrange Thursday's exhibition.

Community-wide Halloween and Christmas celebrations, usually held at Chevy Chase circle, typify the entertainment programs sponsored by the association.

The Chevy Chase Citizen, official organ published monthly by the organization, is mailed also to members of several other citizens associations surrounding the Chevy Chase unit.

Unlike most such bodies, the association keeps active during the summer months as well as the fall and winter season, although general meetings are discontinued then. Accomplishments during the past summer, according to President Munter, include:

Taking parked busses off Connecticut avenue at the Circle, thus removing a potential traffic hazard.

Keeping the community in status quo, as far as the liquor situation is concerned.

Sponsoring the "clean the alleys" movement.

Installing sidewalks on many streets.

Cutting overhanging shrubbery on many streets.

Officers of the unit, who keep their fingers on the pulse of neighborhood opinion by means of frequent ballots on major questions, include President Munter; Clayton B. Aldrich, first vice president; John E. Van Sant, second vice president; George E. Dieffenbach, secretary and treasurer, and James C. Bernhardt, assistant secretary.

Michigan Park

Voteless members of the Michigan Park Citizens Association went to the polls last night and elected Wendell Willkie President by a straw vote of 19 to President Roosevelt's 16.

One ballot was cast for John J. Hurley, president of the association, and one for Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate.

In an election that actually put men into office, the association chose Hurley as president for a fourth term and named Maj. Edward Kane, first vice president; Thomas Courtney, second vice president; Lieut. Floyd Bush, treasurer; Jack Hartke and Maj. Kane, delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations, and Leo Rover, Joseph L. Parkhill and William E. Russell, members of the executive committee.

The association instructed Hurley to communicate with District WPA headquarters to determine why nothing had been done toward making "turkey thicket," bounded by Perry, Shepherd, Tenth and Twelfth Streets Northeast, into a playground as planned under a project approved some time ago.

Another resolution opposed the proposed establishment of a liquor store across from the playground site, and members agreed to protest issuance of a license at a hearing before the ABC Board Monday.

Pranksters Hang Straw Dummy Over Bridge Rail

Police last night raced to Calvert Street Bridge, scene of many suicide leaps, to investigate reports that a man was hanging from the span.

In the center of the bridge a rope was tied about the stone rail. Twenty-five feet below a body swung in the cool breeze. A tug at the rope and the body moved up easily . . . too easily. The "body" was strangely light.

It was straw-filled dummy.

Court Sets Up Streamline Procedure

Domestic Relations Commissioner To Speed Cases

A modern procedure for handling domestic disputes was formally established by the District Court yesterday.

All controversies over temporary custody of children or the amount of temporary alimony to be paid by a husband for a wife or children from now on will be referred by the presiding justice to a Domestic Relations Commissioner. The commissioner will make an independent investigation of the facts and report to the court, with his recommendations.

Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat yesterday approved the final wording of the rule establishing the system, which was adopted in principle at a meeting of the justices Tuesday.

The reform carries a provision to safeguard the rights of parties to any lawsuit in which it is invoked. Each disputant will receive a copy of the commissioner's report at least five days before the date set for a hearng at which action will be taken.

Delays Abolished

A party will have then two days to file objections to the report, with the right of calling witnesses and presenting arguments to support his objections. Only if no such objections are filed will the court "have authority to act on the report without hearing."

Lest the commissioner be remiss, because of pressure of work or other reason, and contribute to the very delays the system is intended to abolish, the new rule of court provides that unless his report is filed in 10 days a hearing may be held without the report "if prompt action is deemed necessary by the court."

The reform was made official after a year of study and investigation by lawyers and judges here. Justice James M. Proctor of the District Court proposed such a system more than a year ago, in an address to the District Bar Association.

Subsequently Attorney H. Winship Wheatley was named chairman of a special committee of the bar association to study the question. After a long investigation the committee recommended adoption of the system, although a minority report voiced opposition, based on fears that it might lead to a bureaucracy which would usurp jurisdiction of disputes which ought to be settled in open court.

Experiment Tried

Justice Bolitha J. Laws, when sitting in Motions Court where many family troubles are aired, set up the commissioner system on an experimental basis, with the consent of lawyers for the parties concerned. Phillip M. Hamilton, assistant clerk of the court, acted as commissioner and the experiment was widely called successful, so that on several occasions lawyers joined in requests that their cases be referred for investigation.

Gray Veterans Dance as of Old

Finally, the old soldiers, the youngest of whom was Col. J. W. Moore, 89, of Selma, Ala., capped the evening with a Virginia reel—tired, now, some hobbling slowly through the gyrations, but carefree still as if they were celebrating a victory of Stonewall Jackson of the day before.

Earlier in the day, the veterans planted the Stars and Bars firmly in the White House. They were there to pay their respects to the head of a government they had sought to overthrow.

President Roosevelt heard the veterans were present and issued a special invitation for all to come and shake hands.

They did so and that was the topic of conversation last night in the Willard lobby: How each had shaken hands with the busy Chief Executive, and how their commander-in-chief, Col. Howell, had pledged his support of a third term.

As Gen. Howell called the session together yesterday morning, excitement rose to fever pitch at a suggestion to disband the U. C. V. organization. Voices strong and feeble echoed in protest through the Willard ballroom.

Greet Lee's Descendant

Perhaps the day's second biggest thrill was the appearance of Miss Mary Walker Lee, 19, of New York and Virginia, great-granddaughter of Gen. Robert E. Lee. She smilingly greeted the men who served under the Southern leader and was the center of attention for several minutes as the veterans gathered around to shake her hand.

There also were cheers for Mrs. Randolph Preston, of Charlotte, N. C., granddaughter of Gen. Stonewall Jackson.

In her annual tribute to the Confederate dead, Miss Sarah Ruth Frazier, poet laureate of the South, said the men were not really dead, but "with the immortals where the splendor of their glory and the luster of their fame will grow brighter with the ages."

Many Museums Urged

Meeting simultaneously with the U. C. V., the Sons of Confederate Veterans moved to erect museums throughout the South for the preservation of Civil War relics.

Explaining that many items of interest used by soldiers of those days were rotting away in attics, forgotten and neglected, Commander in Chief Thomas E. Powe proposed the museum plan in his annual report to the Sons. He urged expanded activities of the organization, calling for renewed efforts to enlist additional members.

HouseExempts HOLC Building From D. C. Tax

The House yesterday voted to end a prolonged controversy with District authorities by exempting by law the local offices of the Home Owners Loan Corporation from realty taxes and cancelling a $162,000 debt of the Federal Government to the National Capital.

Upon recommendation of the Committee on Banking and Currency it passed a bill which makes the District an exception to the act which permits counties, municipalities, and States to assess realty taxes against HOLC property throughout the country.

Edward A. Dent, tax assessor, said that delinquent taxes on the HOLC principal office building and several lots amounts to $162,000 plus interest, some of which would go back to 1936. The annual tax bill is close to $37,500.

The Federal Government has ignored the District's annual assessments and tax bills, Dent said, because of the difference of opinion between the corporation counsel and officials of the HOLC.

The Home Owners Loan Act of 1933 states that the corporation "shall likewise be exempt from such taxation; except that any real property of the corporation shall be subject to taxation to the same extent, according to its value, as other real property is taxed."

The District Commissioners are now engaged in another dispute with the officers of the Federal Reserve Bank over whether its building on Constitution Avenue should be exempt from local taxation on the ground that it is a Government structure. Taxes, back and current, amount to $2,985.

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

Dry the Tears, Brother, There Is a Santa Claus!

The National Finally Gets Going Monday; Some First Downs Coming Up at the Earle; This, That and the Other About the Theater

THIS IS NO TIME to be downhearted. While a considerable hiatus has stretched itself between "Pins and Needles" and the reopening of the National Theater next Monday night, the new season of living drama decidedly is looking up—and not because it is flat on its back and can't look any other way.

BELL

What I mean is that consecutive bookings on E Street at last seem to be coming along. With the new Lawrence Langner-Armina Marshall comedy, "Suzanna and the Elders," scheduled for its metropolitan premiere come Monday, it is now reasonably assured that it will be followed on October 21 by Flora Robson, in "Ladies in Retirement," and Ruth Chatterton, in a revival of Shaw's "Pygmalion," the week of October 28.

In "Suzanna," of course, Washington will be getting its first Theater Guild-American Theater Society subscription offering of the year—the box office sale, incidentally, opens this morning (Advt.). And it will be a genuine, blown-in-the-bottle premiere that the Capital will be witnessing Monday night. "Suzanna" will have been performed previously only at a "public dress rehearsal" in Princeton on Saturday.

"Ladies in Retirement," as is pretty common knowledge by now, was one of last season's Broadway successes that has been enthusiastically received on its current road tour. Miss Robson's distinguished work in the cinema, if nothing else, should assure her an avid local public.

The return of Miss Chatterton always is a cause of rejoicing in this city, where her career was virtually begun. Washington has not forgotten her many costellar appearances with Henry Miller or the many later works in which she appeared as individual star. Neither has it forgotten "Pygmalion," one of Shaw's most pungent and delightful comedies.

It is a matter of regret that I have not at my finger tips detailed information concerning all of the distinctive qualities of the melodrama Flora Robson will be bringing in week after next. The reason I haven't is peculiar. It was only a moment ago that Lodewick Vroom, the play's avant courier, as we say in the back room, stopped by the desk to explain his predicament. In a moment of inadvertence, he laid his brief case of art and literary gems down in the lobby of his hotel. When he turned to pick it up, it was gone. I suspect that the hopeful member of the light-fingered gentry who thought he'd made a haul is more chagrinned than Mr. Vroom is. Mr. Vroom should have left his valuable looking packet in a taxicab!

One lucky patron at each performance of "Knute Rockne—All American," at the Earle Theater, beginning tomorrow, will be the recipient of a football autographed by some member of the Washington Redskins pro team. This bit of seasonable pastiming will come at the completion of a special routine by the Roxyettes, when one of the signed pigskins will be heaved out into the audience from the stage. There are 34 footballers on the Redskins squad. The lucky customer at each performance will not know the name on the ball until—and if—he catches the kickoff. Since an autograft-hound is an autograft-hound, I suppose that doesn't matter. Yeah, I know, but graft is what I mean.

The Washington Redskins, accompanied by Owner George Preston Marshall, God's gift to linen; Mrs. Marshall—Corinne Griffith, former screen star—and Coach Ray Flaherty, will be guests at the Earle at the 7:30 performance tomorrow night. And Rockne's first name, by the way, is not pronounced with the "K" silent. It isn't Newt; it's Ka-newt, with the "a" knocked out.

Communications Department

It is pleasant to learn from Theresa Helburn, executive administrator with Lawrence Langner, of the Theater Guild, that all is now sweetness and light between the Guild and Washington. It always was. We were merely disappointed for the moment. What other producing unit guarantees the Capital six attractions of the first grade every season? Tallulah Bankhead writes graciously from Columbus, Ohio. And thanks to Cousin Mary Mason and Anne Maloney for their heartening messages.

Yesterday's paragraph concerning a title for the Catholic University's musical biography of Joe Cook never should have been written. Father Hartke calls up to say that none has been selected as yet and to suggest that, knowing Joe, perhaps I can scratch one up out of my skull. Optimist! Leo Brady and Walter Kerr, of the C. U. drama group, who fashioned "Yankee Doodle Boy" so skillfully, are New Yorking next week to see the Sonja Henie-Joe Cook "It Happens on Ice"—which opens tonight—and gather material for their new undertaking, which is not scheduled for production until next April.

Hope-Springs-Eternal Note

In six months I might Cook up a title, at that.

Little

In a season which gave us "The Great McGinty," a revival of "The Great Man Votes" comes with curious interest. Yesterday the Little Theater brought back this excellent John Barrymore film of several years ago.

Like "The Great McGinty," the story "The Great Man Votes" tells is one of politics and the men it has broken as well as the men it has made. To be sure, the Barrymore vehicle lacks the satirical intensity of the Brian Donlevy film, but many of its points are obviously the same.

"The Great Man Votes" tells of the jobless papa to Virginia Weidler and Peter Holden, who has a wealth of learning in his mind, but whose ability at salary-making is limited to that of night watchman. His children prove to him that there is much wrong with the school system; he is fully convinced. It is fortune herself who brings him the opportunity to do something about it. In fact, he is the only one who can.

Again like "The Great McGinty," "The Great Man Votes" was one of the surprise films of its year. Garson Kanin had then made only one picture, "A Man to Remember." "Bachelor Mother" and his recent successes were ahead of him. Barrymore's moving portrait of the father in the Little's revival brought the ageing wit a salvo of critical cheers.

The supporting cast is headed by Katherine Alexander, Granville Bates, Donald MacBride and Elizabeth Risdon.

Comedienne Coming to National

cast in the feminine comedy role in the new Lawrence Langner-Armina Marshall play, "Suzanna and the Elders," relighting the National Theater next Monday night. This will be the season's first subscription play, offered by the Theater Guild in association with Jack Kirkland. The Washington engagement is prior to New York

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Oct. 9.

Hollywood is never content with one or two of anything. In fact, readin', writin', and 'rithmetic aren't enough—we've got to add rumor to that. But the silliest one going about is that Darryl Zanuck's place as head of Twentieth Century-Fox will be taken, and very soon, by none other than David O. Selznick. Now you laugh—I am! But that's the rumor.

HOPPER

Metro's talking to Carole Lombard about doing a picture for them. She said, "Well, if I do, I'll add $50,000 onto my salary for the personal appearances I've done with Clark to advertise your pictures."

I ran into Gable and Lombard at the Brown Derby the other night, wanted to know what they were celebrating, because they so seldom come to town. Gable said, "Well, we milked the cows, fed the chickens, and the horses, put the cats out, and came to town to see the rest of the animals eat." Clark was on his way to a rehearsal of the Screen Guild Show, with "Mammy" right by his side.

No wonder Ben Hecht's name remains at the top when he continues to turn out stories like "Angels Over Broadway." It's one of the most sardonic, bitter, sentimental, human stories that has come to our screen. The New York critics will have a field day over it. I'm afraid small towns won't know what it's all about. So much of the dialogue was so quick and lost in the laughs that I've asked to have a copy of it to read when I'm blue.

Tommy Mitchell's performance hasn't been equaled except by Tommy Mitchell. John Qualen was the surprise of the picture. I'll give him credit for trying. George Anthell's music gave emphasis and highlights to the film. If you're a seeker-out of interesting pictures, you won't want to miss this one.

A national magazine, while doing a layout for the United States Navy Day on October 27, didn't wait for George Gallup's poll on popularity, but asked the boys on the good ship Idaho to vote for their favorite star. And who do you think won? Lana Turner, with Ann Sheridan, Alice Faye, Linda Darnell, and Irene Dunne following—in that order. They must believe that Lana's changing boy friends weekly is just reverse order of a "girl in every port." So yesterday 60 sailors came to town and were given a party by the little Turner.

I love Director Bill Wellman's quip to Joel McCrea, while directing Joel in "Reaching for the Sun." Wellman gives his instructions in a clipped British accent and says, "It took years for Alfred Hitchcock to build you up, but I can tear you down in one."

Writer Bradbury Foote, polishing his story of "Billy the Kid," worked Sunday, and on coming out of the executive building at Metro, a car stopped, and its driver asked him what the building was—said he was a tourist from Fairfield, Iowa. Bradbury said, "Why, that's funny. I was born there. What's your name?"

"Foote."

Bradbury looked at him closely and said, "You're not 'Clubby'?"

"Clubby" admitted he was, and Bradbury was "Tangle." They're first cousins, but hadn't heard from each other in 25 years.

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, Oct. 9 (INS).—All the employes who are of conscription age at Warners received the reassuring news from Harry Warner today that any men who are drafted or are members of the National Guard, will be given back their jobs at the expiration of military service. In addition, all employes who have been with the company over a year will receive two weeks' salary when reporting for duty. Each employe's financial circumstances will also be considered and a lump sum will be given to dependents. Nicholas Schenck of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer personally wrote to a young employe on the lot assuring him that his job would be held for him while he was serving his country. Naturally, the same applies to every M-G-M worker of draft age.

PARSONS

Twentieth Century-Fox held a board of directors meeting and it was unanimously voted that every employe who was conscripted would be given his job back. Moe Siegel, head of Republic Studios, says Herbert Yates has sent word that Republic jobs will be kept open. Samuel Goldwyn said today that any true American would certainly look after the men who were drafted. Y. Frank Freeman could not be reached, but knowing him, I think it is safe to say he'll be among the first to do right by the Para lads and I'm sure the other studios, Columbia, RKO and Universal will follow suit.

Letters galore about Charles Boyer, asking why he hasn't made a picture for so long. I printed a few days ago that he will have the male lead in "Hold Back the Dawn" at Para, but that isn't until January. Today Charles put his name on a contract to play opposite Margaret Sullavan in "Back Street" before he goes to Paramount.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Lupe Velez and big boy Williams are serious in spite of gossip to the contrary; the Conrad Nagel-Beryl Wallace twosome is true. They were at the Hollywood Tropics the other eve and out dancing last week; Garson Kanin is again talking marriage to Katharine Hepburn in the East; that was not Maureen O'Hara with John Shelton. Maureen is still married; Perc Westmore was fit to be tied when he read in a newspaper that he is leading Kay Ellis to the altar. Miss Ellis, it appears, is married and Perc has no matrimonial intentions of any kind.

James Roosevelt received notice from the Twenty-second Battalion of the Marine Corps to stand by and it is likely he will go to San Diego the first of November for training; the engagement ring Jeffrey Lynn gave Dana Dale is a star sapphire set with diamonds.

Rochester is trying to persuade Paramount to star him in "The Life of Bert Williams," the famous Negro comic; Bob Leonard celebrated his birthday at the House of Murphy; June Clyde (Mrs. T. Freeland) looks so lovely since the birth of her baby that everybody at the Derby was asking her name. Wonder why she doesn't do a picture?

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

First Subscription Play And Trio of New Films On Incoming Bills

"SUZANNA AND THE ELDERS." The National reopens Monday evening with the premiere of this new comedy by Lawrence Langner and Armina Marshall. It is the first offering this season of the Theater Guild and American Theater Society subscription plan, and will open in New York the following week. Mr. and Mrs. Langner's comedy concerns a social community in northern New York of the nineteenth century and its efforts to find a Utopian panacea for the economic ills of the day. Morris Carnovsky, noted for his Group Theater and film appearances, has the leading role in a cast which is further headed by Haila Stoddard, Lois Hall, Howard Freeman, Royal Beal, Paul Ballantine, Theodore Newton, Frances Bavier, Tom Ewell and Philip Coolidge. The National box-office reopens this morning. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

Earle

"KNUTE ROCKNE—ALL AMERICAN." Pat O'Brien plays the title role in this dramatization of the career of Notre Dame's great football coach. His philosophy of the game and the thrills of the football field form the action of the release, in which Gale Page plays Mrs. Rockne and Ronald Reagan is the celebrated gridder, George Gipp. Coaches Glenn (Pop) Warner, Alonzo Stagg, Bill Spaulding and Howard Jones appear with Donald Crisp, Albert Basserman, John Litel and Henry O'Neill in the other pivotal roles. The stage revue is headed by the Andrews sisters of vocalizing fame, Patty, Maxene and Laverne. Gene Shelton, with Loretta Fisher, and the Hollywood Co-Eds also are billed. The Roxyettes will revive their "Cavalcade" of routines and a special short subject, "Service With the Colors," completes the bill. Opens tomorrow morning.

Capitol

"BRIGHAM YOUNG." Tyrone Power, Linda Darnell and Dean Jagger head the cast of this new film based on the life of the great Mormon leader who lead 20,000 followers across 1,800 miles of wilderness to establish a place where they might live as they believed. Brian Donlevy, Jane Darwell, John Carradine, Mary Astor and Vincent Price are in the supporting company. Louis Bromfield wrote the screen play. Paul Gerrits, that rollicking comedian on skates, heads the stage bill, which further includes Ben Yost's Varsity Eight, Fred Sullivan, Billy Blake, the Rhythm Rockets and a special group of Washington young people, the Whirlwinds, champion Y. M. C. A. tumblers. Opens this morning.

Uncle Ezra (Paul Barrett, of the radio program,) operates his 5-watt radio station, which lack of income threatens to take off the air. Jerry Colonna ("Yahoodi," of Bob Hope's radio program,), Una Merkel, Don Wilson, Mayor Gildersleeve ("Old Timer," of the Fibber McGee and Molly air humors,), Slaphappy Grandpappy and Miranda are featured. Opens tomorrow morning.

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, Oct. 9.

ROARK BRADFORD, author of "John Henry" and "Green Pastures," visited a New England fishing village. Hungry and tired, he went to the principal restaurant in the town, but found all the tables and counter-chairs occupied. Bradford waited, but no seat became vacant. He therefore went outside, took a running start and rushed back into the restaurant, shouting: "Hey, A whale just washed up on the beach!" . . . All the customers and waiters immediately emptied the place, heading toward the beach . . . Bradford seated himself at the counter, where one remaining waiter asked him for his order . . . The author stared blankly, in contemplation. "By golly," he said, " a whale might've washed up on the beach"—and rushed out the door to join the running crowds.

THE DEMOCRATIC NATIONAL COMMITTEE again is preparing for the victory broadcast it expects to make from the Hotel Biltmore on election night. The first of this series, in 1932, had a strange setting—for, despite the receipt of Hoover's congratulatory wire, Roosevelt refused to make any speech, fearing that the wire was a hoax and that this, perhaps, might be a repetition of the Hughes-Wilson episode . . . Jim Farley spied Harry Hershfield, and asked him to urge Roosevelt to make the speech. While the newspapermen watched from afar Hershfield made his plea. The President-elect banged his fist on the table and said he didn't believe it yet. Hershfield also banged the table—and so did the President. After these counterbangings the reporters cornered Hershfield and asked him to explain the table-banging. "Oh, it was just that he wanted to make me Ambassador to Poland," said Harry, "and I wouldn't take it."

MANY OF THE NEW YORK newspapermen, dissenting from the failure of the Newspaper Guild to indorse Roosevelt's candidacy, have been signing an independent petition, containing the simple statement that they indorse the candidacy of Franklin D. Roosevelt . . . At that meeting of the guild, which was attended by Eleanor Roosevelt, one of these petitions was submitted to Mrs. Roosevelt, for signature . . . She read it, and returned it, stating: "I don't think I should sign this."

DOROTHY THOMPSON is heavily bandaged because of an auto smash-up in Vermont last week . . . Lillian Hellman has completed the first act of her new play, which calls "The Way I Got to Go" . . . The Cuban government will sponsor the Cubamerica Music Corporation, governing the rhumba orchestras which are sent to work in the States. Bobby Martyn has resigned from the Club Cuba, to become head of that corporation . . . The producers of the anti-Nazi movie, "Escape," offered a five-week acting contract to Clifford Odets, to portray the role of a German newspaperman. Odets, remembering his acting days with the Group Theater, wanted to accept, but was dissuaded by John Garfield, who reminded him: "We leave the writing to you—you leave the acting to us."

DINNER GUESTS at the home of Dr. Allen Roy Dafoe in Callendar, Ontario, are being made fully conscious of the new affluence which is the reward of the backwoods doctor who brought the Dionne quintuplets into the world . . . In the days before the spotlight touched Dr. Dafoe's dinner table featured the excellent meat and fish with which that region abounds. But every resident of that region could feast upon that meat and fish because it was there for the simple catching. Now, however, Dr. Dafoe serves those rarities which come only to the swanky of the backwoods men, the only persons who can afford the delivery . . . He serves genuine canned goods.

BEN HECHT went to Sardi's Monday night, after the press preview of his new picture, "Angel Over Broadway." There he saw Phil Baker, who asked: "Why is it you don't phone me?" . . . "Have you changed your telephone number?" said Hecht . . . "Yes, but that was six years ago," said Baker . . . "That's it, then," Hecht explained. "I refuse to wear eyeglasses; I can't read a phone directory without eyeglasses; I haven't read a directory in ten years; and so I can phone only those people whose numbers I remember."

Failing to Yield Found Greatest Crash Cause

Jaywalking Accounts For Most Pedestrian Injuries in 2 Weeks

Concentration of effort to crack down on traffic law violations which caused accidents was ordered last night by Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police.

Maj. Brown used a report submitted by Traffic Inspector Arthur E. Miller, commander of the new Accident Prevention Unit, to point out to the force the principal causes of auto wrecks during the last two weeks.

Failing to yield the right of way was the chief cause of motor vehicle collisions, the report showed, while jaywalking accounted for most pedestrian injuries.

Other Causes Listed

During the two-week period since the inception of the new traffic squad on September 22, Inspector Miller said 578 accidents were reported to police. Of this number, 118 were caused by motorists failing to give the right of way. Other principal causes of accidents were careless driving, 35, and turning from wrong lane, 34.

Inspector Miller's statistics revealed that 56 of the accidents were caused by pedestrians. He said that 20 were struck while crossing not at crosswalks; 11 were hurt stepping from behind parked cars and 6 were persons playing in the street. Others, he said, were for usual pedestrian habits and listed some as running across street, intoxication and inattentiveness.

Maj. Brown informed his commanding officers that 77 per cent of the fatal accidents last year were caused by pedestrians. "In the first nine months of 1940," he declared, "of the 52 fatalities, 41 were pedestrians. This is 78 per cent."

"Take Proper Action"

"The records," Maj. Brown continued, "show that there were 935 arrests under the pedestrian-control law from April 1, 1939, to September 30, 1939. The first six months of this year there were 697 arrests, a decrease of 238.

"You will instruct the members of your command to take proper action in all violations coming to their attention, but to concentrate their enforcement effort on the violations which caused accidents, particularly the ones cited, both by motorists and pedestrians.

"It is the policy of this department to have reasonable and consistent enforcement of regulations at all times and you will bring this matter to the attention of the members of your command at frequent intervals with a view to preventing accidents, injuries and deaths."

Channel Strike Ends as C. I. O. Workers Yield

American Federation of Labor workmen who refused to work alongside C. I. O. members at the $220,000 Washington Channel improvement project returned to their jobs yesterday after a five-day strike when the C. I. O. workmen were withdrawn.

But, according to W. M. Hillson, manager of the Washington office of A. M. Hazel Co., New York contractor, the C. I. O. employes had completed 85 per cent of the work they had been hired to do. The C. I. O. men were employed by Sam Merando, local builder, who had received a subcontract for placing pilasters along the waterfront. Merando, Hillson said, was paid in full for his contract. The remainder of the pilaster work will be done by A. F. L. workmen.

John Locher, secretary of the Washington Building Trades Council, said that the A. F. L. unions involved would demand that the pilasters be torn out and rebuilt by A. F. L. labor.

Frank Howard, business agent of the carpenters union and chairman of the bargaining committee set up during the strike by the carpenters, engineers and laborers unions, said that the demand that the work be re-done had been dropped.

Hillson said that the matter was still under negotiations, but that the men had come back to work despite this.

Prisons Can't Rehabilitate Men, Gill Says

Task Up to Society, Federal Official Tells Penological Group

Responsibility for rehabilitating a prisoner lies with the community and not with the penal institutions, Howard Gill, technical adviser to the director of the Bureau of Prisons, yesterday told members of the Bureau of Rehabilitation at its annual meeting.

Gill and Ray L. Huff, who also addressed the group at the Y. W. C. A., urged that the municipal government take a more active, if not financial, part in the work of aiding a released prisoner back to normal community life. Huff is superintendent of the District penal institutions.

The prisons function only in the protection, segregation, examination, diagnosis, classification and training of a prisoner, but the important task of rehabilitation is "a real community responsibility," they agreed.

Function Negative

Criticizing the method of prisons today, Gill said:

"We send a man to prison because he is lacking in social responsibility and in order to punish him for his methods, we relieve him of all responsibilities. We tell him when to get up, what to wear, when and what to eat, when he can smoke or play or sing; we talk of sentencing men to 'hard labor' or to learn 'habits of industry' and 'how to earn an honest living'; and we provide little or no industry. We put his family on the town. Indeed we take away from him all his responsibilities. How can such a system rehabilitate such a man? If it weren't so tragic, it would seem a little ridiculous."

Gill asked the meaning of "imprisonment in its relation to crime and criminals and especially in its relation to the return of the criminal to society."

Parole Officers Too Few

"Somehow we must provide for the rehabilitation of these "maladjusted men and women if we are to continue to live with them," he said.

He called attention to the fact that the District provides only four parole officers to supervise 20,000 prisoners leaving the institutions annually, in addition to 162 prisoners now under parole. He praised the work of the Bureau of Rehabilitation, which is a Community Chest agency.

Testimonial Dinner

A testimonial dinner will be tendered at 6:30 p. m. today to J. Howard Brine, of 3817 Garfield Street Northwest, superintendent of the Washington No. 1 district of the Prudential Insurance Co., who has just completed 25 years of service with the company.

Dubinsky Passed Over as A. F. L. Fills Council Seat

By the Associated Press

The A. F. L. executive council filled two vacancies in its ranks yesterday without tendering either post to David Dubinsky, New York trade unionist who led his International Ladies' Garment Workers Union out of the C. I. O. and back into the A. F. L. last spring.

One seat on the 15-member council, which some labor men had expected would go to Dubinsky, was given to W. C. Birthright, president of the International Barbers Union at Indianapolis.

The other went to Harvey Brown, president of the International Association of Machinists.

An authoritative source indicated that Dubinsky was not elected because it might appear that a deal or a reward had been arranged for his return to the A. F. L.

50,000 Marylanders Will Bare Their Arms To Test Pneumonia Vaccine for the Nation

PNEUMONIA VACCINE—EACH BOTTLE ENOUGH FOR 60 PERSONS

An exclusive picture-story in the series showing the part medical science is playing in national defense.

By Gerald G. Gross

Post Staff Writer

The largest scale test ever conducted on a civilian population to determine the effectiveness of a vaccine is about to be launched in Maryland, The Post learned yesterday.

Fifty thousand volunteers in 11 counties, including the cities of Cumberland and Hagerstown, will bare their arms this fall and winter to pneumonia vaccination with a compound developed at the National Institute of Health here.

Upon the results of the mass experiment may rest the Army's decision whether to vaccinate the incoming thousands of selectees, as well as its seasoned soldiers, against a disease which is among the leading causes of death and disability.

Already the prophylaxis has been administered to 300,000 CCC enrollees with encouraging results. Since these youths, however, represent a population difficult to follow up when enlistment periods expire, it was decided to extend the investigation to a large civilian group.

Lieut. Col. James S. Simmons, Army Medical Corps, yesterday declared the Army is awaiting further proof of the vaccine's safety and effectiveness before approving its adoption. Results of trials to date have not been "clear cut enough," he said.

The National Institute of Health, which is the research center of the U. S. Public Health Service, is cooperating with Dr. R. H. Riley, Maryland Health Commissioner, and health officers of the 11 counties involved in formulating the voluntary-injection program. The first shipment of vaccine was made from Washington this week.

Dr. C. H. Halliday, chief of the Maryland Bureau of Communicable Diseases, told The Post the unique prophylactic program will get under way next week, when Dr. Riley and county health officers have returned from the American Public Health Association meeting in Detroit.

The vaccine, developed by Dr. Lloyd D. Felton of the National Institute of Health, was subjected to a smaller scale test this year in Washington County (Hagerstown). Between January 1 and August 31, a total of 8,041 persons in the county's population of 60,752 received the single "shot" necessary for protection.

Among the unvaccinated there were 119 cases of lobar pneumonia and 22 deaths. The protected group of 8,041 men, women and children registered only two cases and no deaths.

Expressed in another way, the incidence rate among the controls, or unvaccinated persons, was 199 per 100,000 and the death rate 18 per cent.

This compares with an incidence of 24.8 per 100,000 among the vaccinated group and a zero mortality rate.

As best as can be determined among the 360,000 persons, principally CCC youths, who have received the injections, the pneumonia incidence rate for the protected is less than half of that for the unvaccinated.

1. EACH OF THE 5-GALLON JARS shown, as well as the flasks being inspected by Benjamin Prescott, contain pneumonia vaccine in process of "fermentation." The jars are filled with beef infusion, upon which the pneumonia germs thrive and multiply

2. BARBARA OTTINGER, another of Dr. Lloyd D. Felton's assistants in the pneumonia investigation laboratory at the National Institute of Health, weighs a quantity of polysaccharide which has been synthesized from type 2 pneumococci, treated with chemicals

3. POST REPORTER GROSS asked for a pneumonia "shot" and the favor was granted. Post Photographer Del Vecchio, also was immunized but you don't see him getting stuck because it would have been too complicated for him to snap the picture

DIVER SHAHAN IS FITTED WITH ELECTRICALLY HEATED FIBER-GLASS-INSULATED DIVING SUIT

GOING DOWN FOR THE TEST

Heated 'Union Suit' Tested for Navy's Defense Wardrobe

Slipping gently into the depths of an experimental diving tank at the Washington Navy Yard, a veteran deep-sea diver yesterday tested the Navy's latest acquisition under the national defense program—electrically heated underwear.

Designed to offset the intense cold which is induced by the present air mixture of 80 per cent helium gas and 20 per cent oxygen, the completely zippered suit of "lingerie" contains a network of glass-insulated electrical elements.

Neal G. Shahan, a boatswain's mate, performed the dive "because he lost a bet on the Detroit Tigers." He was lowered 20 feet to the tank's floor, and artificial pressure equivalent to that found at a 150-foot ocean depth was applied. Exhaustive tests were applied during the 1½ hours that Shahan remained in the tank to discover any flaws in the equipment.

The heated union suit was devised to enable use of the superior helium-oxygen mixture which was used in the rescue of the submarine Squalus disaster and has reduced the attacks of "bends" to one case in 600 dives. After viewing yesterday's tests, Navy officials said that the new equipment would soon be adopted as standard equipment.

War Time?—Why, 'It's Most Feminine Season in Years'

In a war-wracked world, at least feminine fashions this season in the U. S. A. have escaped the military influence, Miss Jean Jolle, New York fashion editor, said last night—and put on a style show to prove it.

Nine models, displaying such items as split pompadours, fluffy bangs, copper make-up and draped dresses, typified "the most feminine season in years," she said, as mistress of ceremonies at the show at the Hotel Raleigh for beauty shop personnel from a number of States.

"If this country should get into the war, of course women's hair styles and clothes would become more tailored, because women would have more work to do. But, until then, femininity is in full swing," said Miss Jolle, who is fashion editor of "Beauty Culture."

MODELS LOIS BEVERLEY, MARGARET ANDERSON AND THEIR SPLIT POMPADOURS

The hair style most in evidence in the show was the split pompadour—with only a portion of the hair rolled back from the forehead in that line. As another popular style, Miss Jolle pointed out fluffy bangs, not bushy, but light and "elegant," she said.

Kay Anderson, an ash blond, demonstrated a new lighter copper make-up, suitable for blondes. As a foil for it, she wore a smoke-colored tailored dinner dress.

The beauty and style show, starting Monday and continuing through today, is sponsored by the Union Beauty and Barber Supply. Demonstrations of beauty products and methods are being given for hundreds of persons in the beauty business in States in this section.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

Until the world's countries stop fussing, the D. C. Boxing Commission will be operating without benefit of the man who has been running the works ever since the box fight industry won a legal status here. Lieut. Col. Heinie Miller, of the Fifth Battalion, U. S. Marine Reserves, sir, is being called up.

POVICH

The harshest thing that the critics could say about the District Boxing Commission in the seven years of its life was that the tail was wagging the dog. Heinie Miller, as the commission secretary, ran the show. The edicts, the rulings, the ukases that appeared over the signatures of the passing show of District Boxing Commissioners were the products of Miller's wisdom.

For the most part, the administration of boxing in Washington by the varied commissioners was a sham. Secretary Miller dictated policy. He conceived rules, he steered the commission. Never resented by the commissioners was that fact, despite the knowledge they were mere figureheads. Entirely willing were they that Miller show them the way.

In their naivete and unfamiliarity with the inner workings of the prize fight industry they were virtually forced to turn to Miller. Not a man among them knew a left hook from a punch downstairs. The commissioners' contribution to the commission was their respectability and their honesty. They provided the respectable front. The man at the machinery was Miller.

It had to be Miller. He was the only man among 'em conversant with the chicaniers, the fenagling of the prize fight racket. He could talk the language of fighters, managers and promoters. He had been a fighter, a manager and a promoter. He was familiar with boxing's double talk, and the angles, and the smart guys of the racket who sought to invade Washington's virgin fight field found Washington's to be no green-pea commission despite its newness. As long as Miller was around, quietly advising the course to be taken, the District commission was doing all right.

There hasn't been a breath of a scandal in District boxing despite the industry's well-known habit of stenching out a community with bad fights, fixed fights and soiled politics. There was no politics in Washington boxing under the commission setup, and Miller was never wary of his job. Thus he could deal sternly with promoters, managers and fighters.

Miler made Washington boxing work despite the lowest percentage take for any commission in the country. In most other States, commissions appropriated 10 per cent of the receipts. In other communities, the commission took 5 per cent, forced promoters to pay referees, physicians, inspectors and other officials. The District commission took a mere 5 per cent and paid all officials, thus encouraging promoters to spend more money for better matches.

Even despite the lean days of Washington boxing from 1937 to 1940, the District commission still shows a slight profit. The administration of legalized boxing here hasn't cost the taxpayers a dime. The commission nursed the game along during the lean years, made full allowances for small gates. It has only lately begun to reap financial awards.

At this writing, Washington is the second-best fight town in the United States, according to financial and attendance figures. When the Henry Armstrong-Phil Furr bout for the welterweight title was booked for Washington it was ridiculed by many as a poor attraction that wouldn't draw. Two weeks later, Armstrong fought the highly rated Fritzie Zivic in Madison Square Garden and drew only $900 more than the $18,000 Washington fans paid for the Furr-Armstrong fight.

Now, at 52, Heinie Miller is going back into the active service of his country as commandant of the largest Marine Reserve battalion in the land. It is a long shout from his enlistment at Newport, R. I., as an apprentice seaman in 1905 at nine bucks a month. Not so many years later, he was the U. S. Navy's lightweight boxing champion.

He doesn't know where his battalion will be assigned after the routine shake-down period at Quantico next week. But if it's China, or the Philippines, or Nicaragua or Mexico or Cuba, he'll be back on familiar ground. As First Class Seaman Miller, he used to get around in the Navy.

For Miller, this is no one-year term of duty. As a lieutenant colonel he is being called up "for the duration" of the emergency or otherwise. On Saturday the District boxing commissioners will name his successor for the post of secretary. It could be the most important decision they ever made.

On the Line

—With CONSIDINE

En Route to New York by Plane, Oct. 9.—These deathless lines are being composed in a symbolic fog about 5,000 feet over Ohio, while we fly back from the World Series. We have a heavy load aboard, including a Hollywood "heavy," George Raft. He has been telling us he has the next lightweight champ, George Latka, of San Francisco, who soon fights Sammy Angott, one of the champions.

CONSIDINE

Horace Stoneham, who is no lightweight himself, is sitting across the aisle. But he isn't speaking to us since we wrote a piece saying it would be a good idea for the New York Giants to start rebuilding by trading him and Billy Terry. He is occasionally giving us 10-pound stares that are so weighty that the guy with the wheel, up front, is probably having trouble balancing this tin whale.

Well, it turned out to be a heluva series. All seven games came down to one super-tense period in the seventh inning of the last game. Frank McCormick, a bust before that, finally hit one on the nose for a double. Jimmy Ripple, dredged up from minor league anonymity near the end of the season, hit another double. McCormick hesitated, then rumbled home with the tying run.

It looked like Dick Bartell could have gotten McCormick at the plate. But he didn't throw the ball home. A moment later old Jimmy Wilson, playing gallantly on borrowed time, bunted Ripple to third. And after a couple of breathless attempts to work a squeeze play with Billy Myers at bat, and after Buck Newsom had thrown three dangerous pitchouts, trying to suck Ripple off third base, Myers hit the long fly ball that meant the second run, and the ball game.

Somebody in the Tiger infield should have helped Bartell on the play on which McCormick scored. Maybe they did yell to him to make the play at the plate, but the din was terrific. Even when Dick finally located the rumbling McCormick—after looking for him at third base—Frank was still some yards short of home. But Dick didn't throw the ball to Sullivan. He probably figured that it might get away from Sully and that would have let Ripple go to third, with no outs. You see, there was still a chance that he wouldn't have been sacrificed to that point. For earlier in the game the Reds twice had failed to advance a man with a bunt.

For all the abuse, it was a great year for the National Leaguers, they won the All-Star game at Tampa, the big All-Star game at St. Louis and the series. They've never done that before. Maybe they never will again. They had Derringer and Walters this year and the great 1-2 punch of the Reds was enough. They allowed five earned runs and 20 hits in their four winning games.

When the National League gets super-pitching, it wins. Only then. The last great pitching it had was in 1934, when the Deans were good. When the National League pitching is less than super-collosal, the invariably superior American League hitters mow 'em down.

One of the papers said the gamblers were laying 15-to-1 on the Tigers after the first game. Probably not, but possibly five or six to one, at that. When the Tigers won their games in this series (7-2, 7-4 and 8-0) you said to yourself, "How can they keep from licking those Cincinnati bums in straight games." Then the Reds would win the next day with a hard, well-tied-together ball game. But the Tigers would bust the ball the next day and you'd marvel at the fact that Walters or Derringer had stopped them only the day before.

The Reds never had a lead in games in the series. They were always tying, never going out in front. As a matter of fact they were trailing right down to the seventh inning of the final game. And even at the end they didn't look tough. They looked sound, but never menacing, like the Tigers. Typically, they tried to get their winning run on a squeeze play and nearly got away with it.

The Tigers were up there swinging from the heels from start to finish. They were rough people from McCosky to Sullivan. No breathers.

Mrs. Meckley Wins Mid-Atlantic Feature

Mrs. Clark Also Victor In Golf Play

Two Baltimoreans, Mrs. Schluderberg, Mrs. Sloman, Victors At Chevy Chase Club

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Washington's hopes of retaining the fifteenth annual Middle Atlantic Women's Championship were kept alive by a pair of former champions —Mrs. Betty Meckley and Mrs. David Clark, who advanced to the semifinals with two Baltimoreans yesterday at Chevy Chase Club.

In contrast to the upset and close-match theme of the first round, yesterday's winners were up all the way and the four survivors were a total of 20 holes to the good as every match was ended on or before the fifteenth green.

Mrs. Betty Meckley, Kenwood's two-time champion who is apparently very much on her game, avenged a District Championship defeat at the hands of Mrs. Leo Walper by winning, 4 and 3, while Mrs. David Clark, of the host and Army Navy clubs, handed four-time titlist Mrs. E. Boyd Morrow a defeat by the same score.

Inter-City Matches Today

Baltimore's survivors are Mrs. T. E. Schulderberg, of Baltimore C. C. and Mrs. Jerome Sloman, Suburban, were also among the four co-medalists in Monday's qualifying round. Mrs. Schluderberg turned 5 up on Mrs. Louise Bell, of Terra Mariae, and won 7 and 6 while Mrs. Sloman ousted Gladys Greiner, 5 and 4.

This morning's semi-final matches will both be inter-city affairs, Mrs. Schluderberg against Mrs. Meckley and Mrs. Sloman opposing Mrs. Clark.

Mrs. Meckley played the best golf of the day. The Kenwood representative won the first three holes from Mrs. Walper and held the margin at the turn, missing a short putt for a 39 and a four-up lead on the ninth green. The back nine was much the same story. The winner holed several 10 and 15-foot putts and after her successful start was never in danger.

Mrs. Clark, whose only previous competitive match play appearances this year were in the Army-Navy and Chevy Chase Club championships, where she won the title and lost in the first round, respectively, is the "dark horse" of the present event.

Mrs. Morrow Builds Lead

Her round yesterday was not up to the standard of the first day when she eliminated District Champion Elizabeth Houghton, but after turning only 1 up on Mrs. Morrow, the host club player soon built a lead on the back nine.

Mrs. Schluderberg was out in 42 and 5 up on Mrs. Bell, while Mrs. Sloman was 2 up over Miss Greiner, and also quickly increased her lead on the back nine.

Mrs. Meckley and Mrs. Clark are close friends and so are the Baltimoreans, Mrs. Schluderberg and Mrs. Sloman, who dominated the Maryland State tourney here last year. Needless to say, all four will

Prince Georges Heads Consider Midget Racing

Prince Georges County may soon be the scene of a midget auto racing oval if the Board of Commissioners holds to the endorsement it tentatively made at its last meeting.

The proposition to rezone certain property near West Lanham to establish a 300-acre privately owned recreation center was postponed until the next meeting of the commissioners in order that the law might be searched to determine if the land could be rezoned contingent on its reversion to residential should the recreation center be abandoned.

According to plans made known the center would include in addition to the race track, a swimming pool, a dance pavilion, a clubhouse, and a picnic park.

Georgia Tech Favored On Williamson Chart

Irish Picked to Lose by Close Margin, Purdue Given Edge on Michigan; Auburn Too Classy for State

By Paul B. Williamson.

The Williamson System picks Georgia Tech to beat the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame at South Bend Saturday in the biggest intersection game this week-end.

We've picked the Irish each time before, but the ratings say the Yellow Jackets by a nose. Tech rates at 91.8, Notre Dame at 91.1.

In other outstanding battles of the week-end the System gives the nod to Purdue over Michigan State, Nebraska over Indiana, Auburn over Mississippi State, T. C. U. over North Carolina, Northwestern over Ohio State, Stanford over Santa Clara and Texas over Oklahoma. And just for good measure we'll take Wake Forest to stop Clemson—the team which turned back North Carolina State's howling Wolfpack.

One of Hardest

The Purdue-Michigan State game will be one of the hardest games this week. Purdue, with a rating of 92.6 is only a slight favorite over State with 92.0. Closest pick on the schedule is Nebraska over Indiana.

Auburn's Plainsmen exhibited plenty of punch by beating Tulane, 20-14, last week, and their rating gives them the advantage over Mississipip State's 87.6.

Coach Ray Wolf, of North Carolina, will be on the short end of the odds when he sends his North Carolina Tarheels against his old alma mater. The figures say T. C. U. 94.5, North Carolina 88.4.

Teh Big Ten's most important game will be Northwesern-Ohio State. Northwestern gets the nod, contrary to our preseason estimates, with a rating of 97.6 to Ohio State's 94.1. It should be a whale of a tussle.

Stanford Picked

Toughest game to pick on the Pacific Coast is Stanford, 92.9, by a shade over Santa Clara, 90.0. Down in the Southwest the old grudge meeting between Texas and Oklahoma will see fur flying. Texas has earned the advantage and its 93.4

Newark Wins Little Series In 6th Game

Louisville Beaten, 6-1, by Steve Peek; Wagner Is Pounded

By the Associated Press

Newark, N. J., Oct. 9.—The Newark Bears of the International League, captured the little world series tonight, defeating the Louisville Colonels, 6 to 1, in the sixth game of the 1940 minor league baseball classic. Newark prevailed four games to two.

Steve Peek, right hand knuckle baller, held the 1939 little world series winners in check with six hits, while his teammates put on a power display, combing the offerings of Charley Wagner and Forrest (Tot) Pressnell for ten hits, including a home run, two triples and a double

It marked the third time Newark has won the series. They had won it in 1932 and in 1937. The International League has now taken the annual series 10 times to the American Association's 12.

Colonels Score

For three innings Peek and Wagner had things pretty much under control, but Louisville broke the scoring ice in the fourth when Vince Sherlock led off with a triple and scored on Ches Morgan's infield hit.

The Bears struck back in their half of the fourth, when Bud Metheny clouted a home run into the right field bleachers and went into the lead in the sixth on big Ed Levy's single, Sherlock's error and Leo Nonnenkamp's second single of the game.

Tommy Holmes' triple and Sherlock's second error gave the Bears three more tallies in the seventh. With two mates on base the heavy-hitting center fielder walloped a triple to deep right-center and then scored as the Colonels' second baseman threw wild to third on the relay from the outfield. Alex Kampouris followed with a triple down the third-base line, but was stranded there.

Majeski Doubles

The Bears got their final run off Forrest (Tot) Pressnell, who went to the mound in the eighth after Wagner had been lifted for a pinch hitter. Henry Majeski, first man to face the former Brooklyn Dodger hurler, slammed a double to right, was sacrificed to third and scored on a perfect squeeze play by Tom Padden.

It was Peek's sixteenth victory in 17 games, but his first of the series. The defeat broke a 12-game winning streak for Wagner.

Leo Durocher Will Manage Dodgers in '41

By the Associated Press

New York, Oct. 9.—Leo Durocher will manage the Brooklyn Dodgers again next year.

DUROCHER

Larry MacPhail, president of the club, announced today that the fiery little infielder signed his 1941 contract during the World Series and that it had been approved by the club's board of directors. Salary terms were not disclosed.

The announcement ended the rumros that Leo would not be back next season, since MacPhail had indicated he preferred a playing manager and Durocher played in only 62 games this year. Last year, his first at the helm of the Dodgers, Leo guided the club into third place and this year finished second.

Gehringer May Play No More For Detroit

Tiger Infielder Says He'll Probably Retire; Back Is Injured

By the Associated Press

Detroit, Oct. 9.—The concluding game of the 1940 World Series at Cincinnati yesterday may have also been the final major league appearance of Charles Leonard Gehringer, Detroit Tiger second baseman, who has been one of the game's greatest infielders for almost two decades.

GEHRINGER

Gehringer disclosed to a newspaperman friend before the game in Cincinnati that he would probably retire unless he was cured of a back ailment suffered while shoveling snow from the sidewalk in front of his Detroit home last February.

Said Gehringer:

"There were times this season when I didn't think I could finish a game. There were times when I didn't want to get out of bed.

"I've taken so many heat treatments this year that I feel like a boiled oyster.

"I can't field to my left because every time I stoop over for a ball, there's a terrible pain in my side.

"I may change my mind by next spring but I don't think I will."

Gehringer, who is 37 years old, and Ray Forsyth, one of his close friends, are associated in an auto parts sales agency in the off season.

Notre Dame Sets World's Record

Detroit, Oct. 9 (AP).—Herbert A. Henderson's Miss Notre Dame, winner of the President's Cup, set a new world record of 100.987 miles an hour today for the international 1-liter or Gold Cup Class speedboats.

Piloted by Dan Arena and with Jim Finley as mechanic, the trim craft went six successive times up and down a measured mile. Its record time was the average of its best upstream and downstream runs.

The old record of 98.227 miles an hour was set recently by Bill Cantrell's Why Worry, of Cincinnati.

Maryland to Hold Welter 'Title Fight'

Cocoa Kid, Jannazzo Battle Monday Night In Old Line Version

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, Oct. 9.—The Maryland Boxing Commission went ahead today with plans to stage a fight for the welterweight "championship," notwithstanding the beating Fritzie Zivic, of Pittsburgh, gave Henry Armstrong in their title bout in New York.

Before Zivic and Armstrong met, the Maryland commission had declared Henry's title vacant as far as this State is concerned and sanctioned a 15-round title bout between Louis (Kid) Cocoa, of New Haven, and Izzy Jannazzo, of New York.

"The Maryland commission vacated Armstrong's welterweight title because of his refusal to meet leading challengers," said Chairman Stanley Scherr, "and Zivic's victory only serves to further complicate matter."

The fight is scheduled for Monday night at Carlin's Arena, under auspices of the Century Club.

7 Invited For Annual Race Classic

Seabiscuit, Bimelech, Eight Thirty Receive Complimentary Bids; Challedon Invited

By Jack Guenther

United Press Staff Correspondent.

New York, Oct. 9.—Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, a young man who believes in killing two birds with one stone, today announced an attempt to settle two 1940 turf titles in one race by matching W. L. Brann's Challedon, Greentree Stable's Hash, C. S. Howard's Mioland and Belair Stud's Fenelon in the Fourth Pimlico Special at Baltimore on November 1.

The Maryland sportsman disclosed that he had invited seven thoroughbreds to meet in the mile and three-sixteenths race which produced War Admiral, Seabiscuit and Challedon as the all-age champions of the past three seasons. Since three of the horses—Howard's Seabiscuit, E. R. Bradley's Bimelech and G. D. Widener's Eight Thirty—have been retired for the year, their invitations were merely complimentary.

Horses Top Divisions

Since Challedon and Hash are the two stand-out performers active in the four-year-old division and Mioland and Fenelon are the two top three-year-olds now training, the special this year could settle the championship in both classes. The older thoroughbreds would carry scale weight of 126 pounds over the Baltimore course and Mioland and Fenelon each 120.

The records of the four follow:

Challedon—The defending horse of the year has slipped somewhat this season. His most notable victory was scored in the $50,000 Hollywood Gold Cup. He also defeated Many Stings in a match race and Belair Stud's Isolator in the Whitney, ran second in the $25,000 Narragansett Special and third in the $50,000 Massachusetts Handicap, and compiled a record of three firsts, one second, one third, and earnings of $48,900 this year. His lifetime winnings are $301,135, giving him eighth place in world history.

Hash—A strong finishing 3-year-old last year, Hash won the Narragansett Special and Edgemere Handicap this season and finished second in the Massachusetts. His seasonal record is three firsts and three seconds in ten starts for earnings of $46,425. His lifetime earnings are $92,350. Hash was invited to the special last year, but his owner declined to send him against Challedon and Kayak II at that time.

Mioland—The surprise horse of the 3-year-old campaign, the Oregon-bred son of a German sire, won the $40,000 American Derby for his biggest triumph. He also was fourth in the Santa Anita and Kentucky and Kentucky Derbies, second in the Preakness, won the San Juan Capistrano and Potomac Handicap and came from far behind after being caught in the gate yesterday to score in the Star Master Handicap. His record is six wins, a second and a third in 14 starts. He has won $82,620 this year and is the fifth biggest winner of the season. His life mark is $84,880.

Fenelon—A bust as a juvenile and knocked out of the rich spring fixture by a cold. Fenelon has come on with a rush late in the year with victories in the Lawrence Realization, the Jockey Club Gold Cup, the Travers and the Empire City Handicap. He has won six of 12 starts with three seconds and earnings of $56,220 for the year. His life mark is $69,675. Fenelon and Mioland never have met before and the one which defeats the other in the Special probably will be accorded the 3-year-old crown.

The Special again will carry a value of only $10,000, winner take all, but the purse is not a measure of its importance. War Admiral whipped several mediocre handicap horses in the race in 1937; Seabiscuit whipped the Admiral in a match race in 1938 and Challedon defeated Kayak II and Cravat last November. All three won the titles as the champion of their year.

New York, Oct. 9 (AP).—Led by Bill Hutchinson, former Dartmouth ace, the New York Yankees walloped the Cincinnati Bengals 40-13 tonight in an American Pro Football League clash before a small crowd in the Yankee Stadium.

Hutchinson scored twice and set up two other touchdowns as the Yankees rolled up all their scores in the first three periods. The flashy Yankee back ran a punt back 85 yards for a score in the third period and shortly after aned 55 yards for another counter after returning an intercepted pass.

C. U. Meets St. Anselm's; Va. Invades Maryland Saturday

Cards Out To Avenge 1939 Defeat

Coach Dutch Bergman and his traveling Catholic U. gridmen will leave at 3:45 this afternoon for Manchester, N. H., where the Cards meet St. Anselm's College eleven Saturday afternoon.

Students gave the team a send-off last night at a pep rally on the campus and the squad of 29 players promised to do something about last year's 39-13 defeat suffered at the hands of the same team in Boston. It was the only loss of the season.

The story of the workouts this week in Brookland has been offense, as the C. U. team was dead on its feet as long as it held the ball last Friday night against Detroit's Titans.

All Players in Shape

Bergman's only consolation is that every member of the 29-man squad is in perfect physical shape.

The squad will arrive at Manchester tomorrow morning at 7:55. They will come back Sunday, with a stopover in New York.

G. W. Eleven Drills On Trick Plays

Coach Bill Reinhart abandoned strict power plays and subjected his George Washington University gridders to an assortment of trick stuff in the third hard practice of the week yesterday on the polo field.

The Colonials will leave here tomorrow afternoon for Lexington, Va., where they hope to play the role of spoilers to Washington and Lee's homecoming celebration on Saturday.

Reinhart is also plotting a defense to stop the two fleet backs of the hosts, Dick Pinck and Bobby Gary. They are touted as two of the best in the State.

The first team battled the second in a bruising scrimmage yesterday, despite the fact that the W. and L. game is only three days away. The trip is the first of two straight to a Lexington for the Colonials, who meet Kentucky at Lexington, Ky., next Saturday, before five straight home games.

American University Has Open Week-End

This week's open date on the American University schedule does not mean there is any rest in store for the Eagle gridders. Coach Staff Cassell ran his team through a 2½-hour scrimmage yesterday, with concentration on tackling.

Bill Barnsley, a Bethesdan, who in six tries from scrimmage gained 30 yards against Susquehanna last week, looms as a new backfield threat and a running back is as welcome on the A. U. campus as a donation from the alumni.

John Jablonsky, 216-pound tackle, who was injured in the game last week, will probably be ready for Johns Hopkins when the Eagles see action again October 20 in Baltimore.

Cripples Still Bother Navy's Grid Coach

Special Dispatch to The Post

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 9.—Navy's gridiron squad today began to ease off in its preparations for the big game with Princeton in the lair of the Tigers on Saturday. Following a fairly stiff workout yesterday, signals and formation drills, with emphasis placed on defense against Princeton aerials in a dummy scrimmage, featured the day's works.

Maj. "Swede" Larson, head coach, still is undecided on his starting lineup. It is reasonably certain that Capt. Dick Foster, end, who has been favoring a bad ankle for the last two weeks, will not be able to get into action, nor will Sammy Boothe and Ev Malcolm, both halfbacks, who are among the recent casuals. Big Cliff Lenz, halfback, has been pronounced o. k., as has also Bob Zoeller, end. Lenz, however, will not start, but Zoeller may. Nor has the starting backfield been definitely determined. It is not unlikely, however, that Johnny Harrell, powerful blocking back, will be at quarter; Bill Busik and Wes Gebert, at the halves, and Sherwood Werner, fullback.

Plans for the trip of the football party were completed today. The squad, numbering 40, will leave here on a special train at 7:48 Saturday morning and will entrain for the return trip to Annapolis about two hours after the game. Accompanying the players will be Head Coach Larson, Line Coach "Rip" Miller, Backfield Coach Keith Molesworth and Lieut. Comdr. S. W. P. Dana, Navy Medical Corps, team doctor. Commander Ward P. Davis, graduate manager of athletics, will be in direct charge of the party.

The following officers on duty at the Navy Department in Washington will travel with the Navy squad: Admiral H. R. Stark, chief of operations; Capt. R. Jacobs and Capt. A. T. Bidwell, chief and assistant chief of the Bureau of Navigation, and Capt. R. H. English, of the same department.

Officials for the game have been designated as follows: Referee, E. H. Haintz (Pennsylvania); umpire, R. B. Goodwin (Washington and Jefferson); linesman, L. A. Young (Pennsylvania); field judge, A. E. Marstars (Dartmouth).

Gettysburg College Wins for Second Year At Naval Academy

Special Dispatch to The Post

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 9.—Playing the first game of their soccer schedule, the Annapolis Midshipmen went down to defeat before Gettysburg College here today, 2 to 1. The Bullets were one of few teams to defeat the Middies in this sport last year.

The Tars have prospects of a stronger team than last season, but their downfall today was because the Battlefield boys displayed better dribbling and passing.

Gettysburg scored first within eight minutes after the opening of the first quarter, Kane, who, by the way, was the outstanding star, netting the ball from scrimmage. Ten minutes elapsed before Woodson, Navy, came through with a tally, also from scrimmage. The teams battled on even terms throughout the second period.

The third period was scarcely five minutes old before Kane scored what proved to be the margin of victory. It was a penalty kick. The Middies had several chances to count in the final stanza but their efforts were in vain.

Maroons First Major Educational Institution To Adopt Streamlined Version of Grid Game

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Oct. 9.—The University of Chicago, as usual, is in a class by itself in football.

A year ago the Maroons were playing their last season of intercollegiate football, although they didn't know it. But they lost all their conference games by shutouts.

Now they've turned to six-man football, becoming the first major educational institution to adopt the hybrid sport as a muscle builder for students.

Six-man football is a comparatively new sport, designed primarily for small high schools which have neither the finances nor man power to support the orthodox grid game.

A squad of 50 boys is working out daily at Chicago under the direction of Coach Kyle Anderson and two assistants. When the lads get a few kinks out of their joints the squad will be split into groups of 10 and a schedule of games drawn up in round robin fashion. Then the teams will fight it out for the school title.

In this sport, predominated by forward passing, there are two ends, a center and three backs. Three men must be on the line of scrimmage when the ball is snapped and no back may run with the ball until he first has received it from another back by a lateral or forward toss.

J. Gilbert Hall Wins in Tennis

Hot Springs, Va., Oct. 9. (AP).—J. Gilbert Hall, of New York, defending champion and six times winner of the Hot Springs tennis tournament, entered the semifinal bracket this afternoon by winning 6—1, 9—7 in his match with Bunty Lawrence of Los Angeles.

In the semifinals, hall will meet Harry Berno of Cleveland, who defeated George Reindel of Detroit in the quarter finals 7—5, 6—3.

In other quarter-final matches, Alex Guerry of Chapel Hill, N. C., defeated Ned Herndon of New York 6—3, 6—3; J. Reindel of Detroit defeated Cedric Major of New York 4—6, 7—5, 6—3; J. B. Gray defeated Louis Carruthers of Brooklyn 6—3, 6—3; Ed McKnight of Boston defeated F. C. Baggs of New York 6—0, 4—6, 6—4.

Mt. Rainier Defeats Laurel in Soccer

Led by the Rodriquez brothers, the Mount Rainier High School soccer team blanked Laurel High booters, 6 to 0, yesterday on the Mounts' field. Ray accounted for 2 points in the second period to open the game's scoring and Willie and Fred added 2 points a piece in the third canto.

Charlie Brueggerman, Mount Rainier goal keeper, had no chances in the cage, the Mounts' defense by the secondaries being excellent throughout the play.

Virginia Frosh Engages V.M.I. First-Year Men

Munhall, Former D. C. Gridder, to Start In Cavalier Backfield

Special Dispatch to The Post

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 9.—Freshman footballers of the University of Virginia return to competition here Friday afternoon against V. M. I.'s freshman team.

The Cavalier beginners probably will line up much in the same order as last week, when they lost their opener to Washington and Lee by a 14-to-7 score.

Herbert Munhall, ranking future varsity backfield prospect from Washington, is slated to resume his ball-carrying role, along with Ed Kreik. Bob Fuller, 185-pounder from Baltimore, is the likely starter in the blocking position, and the fouth member may be Carlson Booth, 150-pounder from Warrenton.

Tentative selections for the line are Cliff Peeler and Milton Parlow, ends; Paul Freeman and Ed Steckmesser, tackles; John Camblos and Charles Cooper, guards, and Lester Strong or Arthur Ketcham, center.

A quartet of last year's State high school stars listed for the Cadet back field are Bill Lindsay, Lexington; Harry Easterly, Richmond; Arthur Sesy, Petersburg, and Virginius Stell, Norfolk. Hewitt Dunn, also of Norfolk, will be at center, and John Tate, Pulaski, may get the call at guard.

The Los Angeles Angels, Pacific Coast League, drafted Catcher William Brenner from Tacoma of the Western International loop. Branner batted .314.

Knepp to Lead Green Terrors Against Mounts

Pennsylvanian Named Captain for Saturday Game at Westminster

By the Associated Press

Westminster, Md., Oct. 9.—Lester Knepp, flashy backfield man from Curwensville, Pa., was named today to captain the Western Maryland grid squad in its season opener here Saturday against Mount St. Mary's.

Knepp, a versatile performer who has been showing up well in practice so far, is a senior and won all-Maryland recognition in his sophomore year.

Coach Charlie Havens planned to taper the squad off tomorrow and Friday, after a long and strenuous scrimmage session this afternoon.

For about two hours, the varsity scrimmaged against the freshmen, who were armed with Mount St. Mary's plays. Havens indicated he was satisfied with the performance, although his emphasis on pass defense this afternoon hinted that he expects the Mounts to concentrate on an air game.

Southern Cal Stops Off for Tucson Workout

Tucson, Ariz., Oct. 9 (AP).—University of Southern California's Trojans worked out two hours today in the University of Arizona stadium, then resumed their journey to Champaign Ill. They play Illinois Saturday.

The squad's next drill stop will be at Herington, Kans.

District Boys On Cavaliers' Upset Eleven

Former Episcopal Gridder Slated to Start at Center in Homecoming Game

Maryland's homecoming game with Virginia Saturday at College Park will be homecoming in a way to five members of the Cavalier squad who played high and prep school football in the District.

Bill Suhling, former Episcopal High center, is slated to start at the center post for the Charlottesville eleven, having beaten out three lettermen for the post.

Bucky Morse, Western; Bill Mirman and Nick Schlegel, Central, both tackles, and Don Mikalson, fullback, of Devitt, are on the Virginia squad and may see action against the Terps. Mikalson lives in nearby Arlington and the others in the District. Morse and Mirman are lettermen.

If things go as last week, when Virginia upset Yale and Maryland was routed by Pennsylvania, the entire Cavalier squad is likely to see action.

Mark Ostinato Named Captain for Clash

Georgetown's captain for the Waynesburg College game tomorrow night in Griffith Stadium will be Mark Ostinato, 185-pound guard from Newark, N. J., who was named yesterday by Head Coah Jack Hagerty.

Ostinato, a regular through both the Hoyas' undefeated seasons, teams with the conversion artist, Augio Lio, in forming one of the best sets of guards in this section.

Although labeled as a breather by the fans and press, Waynesburg may give the Hoyas a little trouble before the final whistle. Fordham, Pitt, Dusquesne and West Virginia have all been extended by the Pennsylvania gridders, and two of Fordham's greatest teams barely escaped with victories.

The Hoya varsity scrimmaged with the freshmen until near dark last night, the letter using Waynesburg plays.

Hare to Fill Justice's Shoes in Cards Game

Redskin Clash to Feature Former College Teammates; Bob Seymour to Be Heavily Counted on in Battle

The Redskins-Chicago Cardinals game Sunday at Griffith Stadium will feature a battle between former college teammates, according to a tentative starting lineup released yesterday by the Cards, and as an added attraction will have the Skins' Rookie Ray Hare in a new role.

The Cardinals will start with two of their rookie stars from Oklahoma University, Alton Coppage, end, and Hugh McCullough, fullback, it was announced yesterday, while the Redskins will count heavily on the reserve services of Fullback Bob Seymour, running mate of McCullough last year at Oklahoma.

Beryl Clark, the Cardinal's rookie passing star, is a third 1939 teammate Seymour will be facing Sunday at Griffith Stadium.

While the Cardinals plan to start at least four rookies Sunday, Hare will be the only new face in the Redskin starting eleven.

To Sub for Justice

The 22-year-old 205-pounder from Gonzaga University has been elected to fill the gap in the Skin backfield caused by the injury of Ed Justice, veteran wingman still in Emergency Hospital with a broken collarbone.

Hare yesterday was transferred from his customary No. 2 spot in the backfield to the No. 1 wing position, and he will be one of the two immediate backers-up on defense.

Not on the Skins' 1940 draft list, Hare showed amazing power in his blocking assignments during the training period in Spokane, Wash., and he has looked equally impressive in professional play so far this year.

Seymour and Rookie Halfback Bob Hoffman, the latter of Southern California, who have been called the hardest tackling backs on the squad so far this season, are to see plenty of action against the Cardinals, also, Flaherty said.

Goldberg in Line-up

In the backfield, McCullough, a triple-threater, will probably start at fullback; John Hall, rookie from Texas Christian, will be at right half; Marshall Goldberg, the former Pitt All-American, will be at left half, and Ray Parker will be at quarterback.

Coach Jimmy Conzelman, however, may make a few minor alterations in this line-up before game time, he said. The Cardinals arrive in Washington tomorrow afternoon and will stop at the Ambassador. They will work out at Griffith Stadium Saturday afternoon after the Redskins' morning drill.

Flaherty announced last night that Capt. Turk Edwards, still suffering a pulled muscle in his left leg, will not be able to play Sunday but should be able to go in another week.

The Skins worked over two hours yesterday at the ball park on defense against Cardinal formations and will get more of the same thing this morning.

General Manager Jack Espey announced that there are still some 14,000 seats to be sold for Sunday's game.

Middies, Hoyas Hold Race Drills

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 9.—Cross-country runners of Georgetown and the Naval Academy engaged in an informal practice match here this afternoon, arranged largely as a trial for the Middies, who are prepping for their opening races of the season on October 18 with the University of Virginia, in both varsity and freshmen contests.

The race was over a course of four miles. No official record was kept, but the naval lads had decidedly the better of it, Ted Walker and Buck Buckwalter, aces of the home team, finishing one, two. Vin Carnevale, Georgetown star, was in third place but he was the only Hoya to finish in the first 12 to complete the course. Walker's time was 22.26, that of Buckwalter 22.36, and Carnevale 22.48.

The Navy plebes and Georgetown freshmen are booked for a regular meet on October 25 but the varsity teams of the two institutions are not scheduled.

This year the Virginia Athletic Club is sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars Social Club. For games write Manager John Travers, 305 Summer drive, Alexandria, Va., or call Alexandria 0510 between 5 and 7 p. m.

Reds' World Series Victory Called Boost for Baseball

Competitive Basis Returns To Classic

Series Proves Value Of Good Pitching, Smartness; Pilot McKechnie Praised

By Judson Bailey,
Associated Press Sports Editor.

New York, Oct. 9.—The best thing that could have happened to baseball was the victory of the Cincinnati Reds in the World Series. They made a "National League Year" out of 1940 and restored the great American game to the competitive system. Even the American Leaguers admit privately that the old one-sidedness was getting unhealthy.

It was a victory for the time-tested standards of baseball—that pitching is 70 per cent of the game and that smartness is as good as strength.

In retrospect the series was so full of drama, joy and pathos that it might well have been a piece of fiction.

To go back to the beginning, a year ago at this time nobody had the remotest thought that the Reds and Tigers would win their pennants in 1940. The Tigers had just finished fifth in the American League and the Reds had been wrecked by the all-conquering Yankees. The wise men said no team ever recovered from the shock of being steam-rollered in four straight by the Yanks.

Wily Will Gets Credit

Yet out of this bottomless pit into which the National League had fallen came a courageous combination from the smallest city in the major leagues to overthrow the "superior beings" who inhabited their rival territory.

The whole Cincinnati organization is an efficient unit, but most of the credit, of course, goes to wily Will McKechnie, who also guided two National League all-star collections to triumphs over the American League this year—first in in Florida last March and again in St. Louis in July.

He reorganized his Redlegs after the rout last year and brought them back again stronger and better than ever. He kept them rolling in spite of vicissitudes that would have capsized a less courageous club—the death of Willard Hershberger and injuries to Ernie Lombardi and Lonnie Frey.

McKechnie inspired his men to give more than they had. He caused 40-year-old Jimmy Wilson to shed 10 years and 10 pounds and end his playing career in a blaze of glory. For the final game Wilson's right leg was taped in solid layers of adhesive so that it felt like it was in a cast.

"Old Master Through"

The veteran catcher said afterward, "I wouldn't have gone out there and played for anybody in baseball except Bill. You got your last look at me in this series. The old master is through."

Wilson caught six of the seven games and worked as hard as a rookie. And in the final desperate struggle he had a perfect day at bat with two singles and a sacrifice and the only stolen base of the series. His experienced handling of the Cincinnati pitching corps also unquestionably was a big factor in its success.

Wilson was the unsung hero of the series with the press box boys, but there are others who will stand out in everybody's memory for a long time to come. Bill Werber was one. He was the backbone of the Reds' attack as well as the defense. He led all players on both teams in hitting with a .370 average. Red-headed Jimmy Ripple was another. He clinched Bucky Walters' first victory with a two-run homer and he helped win the finale with a crucial double. Besides his clutch hitting, he was outstanding defensive outfielder of the series.

Heroic in Defeat

Finally, of course, Walters and big Paul Derringer did exactly what was expected of them by the people who picked the Reds to win the series. They each pitched two magnificent victories.

The Tigers were equally heroic in defeat, and Buck Newsom was incomparable. He allowed an earned run average of only 1.38 in three games and came close to achieving three victories and a place in baseball's honor roll held by only eight other pitchers.

The break of the game that beat him yesterday came in the seventh inning when Shortstop Dick Bartell took a throw from the outfield after Ripple's double. He had plenty of time to trap Frank McCormick's belated bid for a run but for some reason held onto the ball.

The Tigers now are confronted by a reconstruction problem. Their infield is creaking with age and Charley Gehringer, like Wilson, said afterward he was worn out as a player. But the rule that the American League clubs installed to break up the Yankees by preventing the pennant winner from trading with other clubs except through waivers now is boomeranging at Detroit. And the decision of Commissioner Landis wrecking the Tigers' farm organization last year has curtailed their chance of getting good youngsters through their own sources.

The Reds may not stand pat, but they aren't worrying now. The pressure is on the American League from here on.

—On Fishing

The marlin season at Ocean City might have been considerably off its usual form, but nevertheless it added a record to the books. It was a world's record, too, that has been entirely missed by everyone.

ACKERMAN

It wasn't the big Allison, also rating high honors ,but not quite world-wide. That 192-pound tuna was only an Atlantic coastal record. What we're talking about is the 114-pound white marlin caught early in August by Alan M. Ferguson, of 1217 K Street.

It was not as large as others caught in previous years—last season 118 pounds was tops, but being caught on a 6-ounce Tycoon tip and 9-thread line is what gives it a place on the books of the International Game Fish Association.

We wrote to Frank O'Brien back in August to learn whether any larger white marlin had been caught in that section of Florida, Miami and the Bahamas, on light tackle. His negative answer was the reason for the claim, and today a letter confirming the record was received from Francesco LaMonte, curator of icthyology in the American Museum of Natural History and keeper of the archives of record fishes for the International Game Fish Association.

Congratulations, Alan Ferguson.

Reports from the North Carolina Coast are quite confusing, for in the same mail we learn the channel bass fishing is the best ever and the weather is the worst imaginable—no self-respecting spot-tail would be in the surf.

It is true, the weather of the past ten days hasn't been fishing weather. Paul Townsend got down as far as Coinjock, but never left the dock. He expects to give it another try this week, however, for marlin.

Wildfowl are feeding in such great numbers on most of the ponds that the black bass fishing has slowed down due to the stirred-up mud. That is tough on the angler now, but augurs well for his sport when he takes up his gun on November 2.

A Jackson angler caught a tarpon last week weighing 123 pounds on 25-pound test nylon line and a bait-casting rod. He has entered it as an outstanding angling achievement in the George Ruppert contest.

He says: "About a year ago I was fortunate enough to land one weighing 105 pounds, also in the St. Johns River and on the same line. This line has plenty of stretch, and is not adversely affected by salt water, which is an important feature."

So it goes—one man's meat another man's poison. One likes the stretch—another criticizes it. That the majority of anglers do not like it appears certain, for just recently it was announced that much of this resiliency, or stretch, has been taken out of the late lines. With that removed, we believe nylon line to be the finest we have ever used.

D. C. Teams Draw Byes In Maryland

Indian Spring, Beaver Dam to Be Idle Sunday in 3d Round

The District's surviving teams in the Maryland State Golf Association Team Championship, Indian Spring and Beaver Dam, were awarded byes in Sunday's third-round play, according to pairings released yesterday.

The four remaining Baltimore teams will see action, Rolling Road entertaining Elk ridge and Suburban playing host to Baltimore Country Club.

The semifinals will be played Sunday, October 20, with Indian Spring playing the winner of the Elkridge-Rolling Road match, probably the latter, and Beaver Dam clashing with the winner of the Suburban-Baltimore C. C. match, that figures to go to the latter by a close margin.

After two weeks of drawing when the Baltimore teams drew all the byes, it is apparent this week's pairings were hand-made, to give the Washingtonians a week of rest and let the Baltimoreans eliminate each other.

If Rolling Road defeats Elkridge, its match with Indian Spring will undoubtedly be played at the local club as Rolling Road has already drawn one bye and played both matches at home. Suburban tied Manor while Baltimore C. C. tied Chevy Chase, but both local teams lost in the number of individual matches won. This will also be Suburban's second straight match at home.

Jimmy Thompson Hits Tee Shot 310 Yards on Carry in Match

Touring Pro Claims Drive Is Longest In Several Years; Bogart, Cox in Foursome

Special Dispatch to The Post

Annapolis, Oct. 9.—Jimmy Thomson hit what he termed was "my longest drive in several years" in an exhibition match here today over the Naval Academy course, playing with Wiffy Cox, Ralph Bogart and Lieut. Harold G. Bowen, of the Academy.

The touring professional, acknowledged to be the longest driver in the country christened the new par 5 fifth hole with a tee shot that carried 310 yards and he easily chipped on the green and holed a putt for an eagle three. The ball stopped where it carried.

The foursome played 14 holes over the new course, galleried by several hundred midshipmen. Thomson and Cox each clipped a stroke off par on the first nine with 35s, while Bogart, the District amateur champion from the Congressional Club, where Cox is pro, was one over par with a 37.

Thomson concluded the exhibition over the Greenberry Point course with a demonstration of his driving ability.

Host Pro Bob Williams was scheduled to play, but was called to Chambersburg, Pa., because of the sudden death of his mother.

Thomson to Play At Army-Navy Today

Jimmy Thomson will conclude his three-day visit to this city with an exhibition match this afternoon at Army and Navy Club, where he will take Wiffy Cox as a partner against Allan Burton, host pro, and Danny Burton, Quantico, Va., mentor.

The match will start at 1:30 o'clock. The long-driving ace is apparently on top of his game, as a 72 at East Potomac Tuesday in the rain and a sub-par exhibition yesterday at Annapolis attest.

Barba in Poor Condition After Track Accident

By the Associated Press

New York, Oct. 9.—The stewards of the Metropolitan Jockey Club ruled today that the accident at Jamaica Monday, in which Jockey Johnny Barba was seriously injured, "must be treated as an accident."

Barba's condition was reported in Mary Immaculate Hospital today as "very poor."

The stewards yesterday ordered Jockey Don Meade off all his mounts pending further investigation of alleged rough riding. Meade, however, was not directly charged with rough work. Barba's horse went down in a mix-up near the start.

"The evidence developed," the stewards said today, "failed to prove the guilt of any rider in the race. Therefore, the incident must be treated as an accident."

Meade had no mounts today, but will return to active duty tomorrow.

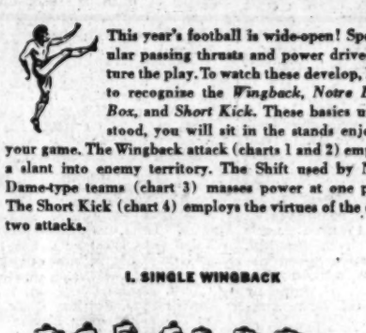
SAYS TED HUSING

TO GET THE MOST OUT OF WATCHING FOOTBALL THIS FALL!



This year's football is wide-open! Spectacular passing thrusts and power drives feature the play. To watch these develop, learn to recognize the Wingback, Notre Dame Box, and Short Kick. These basics understood, you will sit in the stands enjoying your game. The Wingback attack (charts 1 and 2) employs a slant into enemy territory. The Shift used by Notre Dame-type teams (chart 3) masses power at one point. The Short Kick (chart 4) employs the virtues of the other two attacks.

1. SINGLE WINGBACK

Single Wingback to the right. This is an attack from behind the unbalanced line, with all power to the right. The wingback (1) and the blocker (2) move out to cut down the left side defenses. The close back (3) leads the tailback (4) out to the attack.

This one manoeuvre can be used in cutbacks, reverses, passes, laterals and sweeps. The wingback attack, named for the back (1) who is on the end or wing, is best demonstrated today at Georgia Tech, Minnesota, and Southern California, among other universities. Certainly there are variations by the coaches, and you will see them every Saturday this fall, but the basis is always the same.

2. SINGLE WINGBACK REVERSE

Wingback Reverse in the making. This is attack to the Left. The blocker (2) goes right, blocking incoming defense. Wingback (1) turns to come behind his line. He'll take ball from spinback (3) who receives ball from center. Tailback (4) leads the play. Running guard pulls out of line to assist running interference. Spinning back (3) masks direction of the ball, for he may keep the ball after faking it to the wingback (1) and keep going right. This would be a fake reverse.

3. NOTRE DAME BOX

Below, the Short Kick, or inverted "V" formation. Two men go left and two right, to open the defense. Wingback (1) fakes to right. Tailback (4) has just faked taking ball from spinback (3) who received pass from center, faked it in a half spin to (4) and then started to the left with the blocker (2) leading play to weak side.

4. SHORT KICK FORMATION

These are not plays. These are basic formations of attack. Thousands of attacking plays come from these simple formations. In the singlewing, plays can reverse, cut back, sweep, race into passes or laterals. The Notre Dame shift formations permit delayed crossbucks, massed reverses, thrilling cut-ins and cut-outs and short passes. The Short Kick attack permits all plays to start deceptively.

Deception, opening up defense, sudden plunges into undefended territory and application of military-like thrusts make football a technical game. But it's simple if you know where the ball carriers are just before the ball is snapped. So go to it! Here's How to see the games, and enjoy them to the fullest.

Jockey Richards Fined $100 as Birch Rod Loses

Stewards Say Rider 'Went To Sleep'

Favorite Beaten As Microphobia Pulls Abrest at 8th Pole, Goes on By

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Laurel, Md., Oct. 9.—Sleep, often referred to as precious, proved an expensive luxury today for Jockey Harry Richards. He "went to sleep," in the parlance of sports, in the stretch here this afternoon and the stewards fined him $100. Richards was riding the people's choice, George D. Widener's Birch Rod, when the Pompey gelding was beaten a length in the fifth race by K. D. Koiseth's Microphobia.

Richards had held Birch Rod off the pace to the far turn. He put his mount to a drive and took a good lead entering the stretch. At the eighth pole he appeared to allow Birch Rod to loaf. Meanwhile, Microphobia developed momentum under Jockey C. Bierman's handling and was abreast of Birch Rod seemingly before Richards knew it.

Richards then went into a hand ride on Birch Rod, but Microphobia was running in strongest form and held a length advantage at the finish. The Tall Trees Stable's Milk Punch, which set the pace for a half staggered into third position, seven lengths behind second money.

The race was run over a heavy, holding track, but under ideal conditions overhead for a crowd of 9,000. Microphobia paid $11 and was clocked in 1:49 1-5 for the mile and a sixteenth.

H. G. (Guy) Bedwell, veteran Maryland trainer, saddled three winners in the first four races. In the fourth event he sent out Woodchopper to win a Grade B handicap by four lengths from Challamore. Court Dance finished third in a field of six going 6 furlongs. Woodchopper paid $6.

Bedwell saddled Jackorack in the first race and the colt came home on top to pay $7 while carrying the colors of Mrs. E. Graham Lewis. In the second race Bedwell led his own Fogoso to the paddock and the 5-year-old ran off with the three-quarter sprint, a Grade C handicap.

Those who coupled Jackorack and Sack, the latter a $9.50 shot, collected $34.40 in the daily double.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SACK, $9.50, $8.00, $4.80; GOOD RECEPTION, $14.80, $7.20; DIZZY DAME, $3.80.

SACK had keen speed to go to front at once, shook off ANNIE ALONE in stretch, but had to be kept to pressure to stave off GOOD RECEPTION'S closing challenge. DIZZY DAME was slow to begin, came wide for racing room and closed fastest of all. ROYAL TEDDY was off slowly and gained gradually throughout running. SURPRISE BOX was held safe.

Daily Double, JACKORACK and SACK, Paid $34.40

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200. Handicap, Grade B. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 3:05½. Off at once. Winner, H. G. Bedwell's b. c. WOODCHOPPER, going in best form, rallied to dispose of CHALLAMORE approaching stretch and drew out to win with some speed in reserve. CHALLAMORE was hard ridden while setting pace, but could not stay with winner. COURT DANCE was well placed throughout and was held safe. ROSETOWN was not a serious factor.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,100. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:34½. Off at once. Winner, K. D. Koiseth's br. c. MICROPHOBIA, rated for half, came out for racing room and under strong handling, caught BIRCH ROD to win going away. BIRCH ROD was confidently handled early, went to front with good energy, but Richards allowed him to lag in midstretch. MILK PUNCH was rushed to front of AUTUMNQUEST, set good pace for half and weakened. AUTUMNQUEST was through after a half.

SIR REG, much the best, was allowed to settle into best stride, came out for racing room, improved position steadily, disposed of CHIEF CHEROKEE and was drawing out without effort at end. CHIEF CHEROKEE saved ground to get to outside on first turn, overtook WILDMUTE to get to front, but could not resist winner while holding on gamely. WILDMUTE set good pace for half and was tiring at close. PART ONE came from far back to improve position sharply and hung in closing test.

DOHOEV, in first flight from start, took command over SUNNY ROSE when called upon, drew clear and was under pressure to end. TWO ACES rallied with good energy in closing stages. BRAVING DANGER lacked early speed and closed a gap. SUNNY ROSE set pace and faded in closing stages.

Selections at Laurel

Dear Al:

If somebody will lend me an old hat I'll take up a collection to buy a cot for Jockey Harry Richards so he can go to sleep at the eighth pole. Or didn't you see that nap he took in the stretch yesterday on Birch Rod? I agree with several Benningites who have written in about the long lapse of time between the finish of a race and the time the "objection" sign is lighted. Of course, the stoopers (who make their way looking for good tickets) will complain, but Laurel should follow the lead of other tracks which have a man stationed at the paddock to whom jockeys signal foul claims. Henry Erickson, track superintendent at Charles Town and a former jockey, is taking a few days off from his home track and is taking in the sport here. While in a complaining mood, the times given out on some of the races here makes me believe the watch used must have been won in a claw machine. And how about that Wood Chopper, first and last with the greatest of ease. Probable starters in the Maryland Futurity on Saturday are H. M. Babylon's Ler-Lin and Becomly, E. K. Bryson's Fold Under, T. D. Buhl's Le Chat, Christiana Stable's Escolar, Miss E. Carver's John's Star, Mrs. N. K. Beal's Hardy Bud, Mrs. R. H. Heighe's Tamil, Jerome H. Louccheim's Thrift Shop, L. B. Steele's Celtic Knight, Harry A. Farr's Greek Jurist, Alfred Vanderbilt's New World and Robert J. Walden's Fair Hero. W. L. Brann, owner of Challedon, will be represented in two stakes Saturday, it was learned today. Pictor is scheduled to come here to perform in the mile Laurel Stakes while Aethelwold will carry the Brann colors in the Continental Handicap at Jamaica. John Harrell, 101-pound rider, arrived from Chisago and will go into action with the stable of Mrs. Emil Denemark, to which he is under contract. Duke Johnson, one of the valets here was receiving congratulations on the birth to Mrs. Johnson of a 7½-pound boy. Jockey R. Howell has an offer to ride Crepe Myrtle in a stake at Keeneland Saturday, but has not decided whether he will accept the engagement. See you on the rail.

BILL.

First Race—War Point is a highly regarded juvenile which, when making his initial outing last week over a similar track, was heavily backed by connections but failed to score. He may have better luck here. Buckle Up has early speed and will be the one to catch. Wise Brave for show

Central, Eastern Play Tonight

Clash in First Interhigh Night Game

'38, '39 Champions Inaugurate Nocturnal Program; Vikings, Tech Meet Next

By Bill Burnett.

After years of settling their football differences in broad daylight, Washington's public high schools finally get a taste of grid warfare under the arcs tonight at Griffith Stadium starting at 8 p. m.

The first night interhigh series game in history will bring together Central and Eastern, winners of the championship in 1938 and 1937, respectively. One other venture at night is on the schedule—next Thursday between Central and Tech, perennial rivals—and if these go over with anything resembling a bang students and fans may expect more of the same next season. One of the schoolboy gridirons may even be equipped with lights.

Team to Beat

Despite the fact that Eastern's White Tide has been tagged the team to beat this year, Central may hold a slight edge tonight. Already this year the Vikings have worked once under the lights, beating St. John's by a close but convincing margin. Last year, too, the Vikings played several times at night. Eastern, on the other hand, is a newcomer to the nocturnal side of the sport.

In actual strength, the Tide will have the better of it. Along the ground the East Capitol Streeters, paced by Eddie Teague, Duke Coppage, Moe Shulman and Neil Craig plus a charging forward wall, have shown up in early games much better than the Vikings. But taking Harry Martin, lightning-footed halfback; a willingness to gamble, and an alert pass defense into consideration, the Vikings might just as easily be the favorite. Tonight's winner should be the main worry of Western High, defending interhigh titlist.

Gonzaga Plays

On today's afternoon card a single game appears, that between Gonzaga High and National Training School at Eastern Stadium at 3:30. The week's hostilities between the public schools will be wound up tomorrow with a brace of games, Woodrow Wilson moving out to Anacostia and Western moving in to Roosevelt for games with the defenders. Though the results may be misleading, a line on the 1940 champion of the seven taxpayers' high schools should be obtainable after the last tackle is made.

Musso Injured, Misses Practice

Chicago, Oct. 9 (AP).—Coach George Halas said tonight that George Musso, 270-pound Chicago Bear lineman who until today had not missed a practice in his eight years with the squad, would be withheld from the Detroit game here Sunday because of a back injury.

He was injured last week in a game at Cleveland.

In his stead at right guard will be Aldo Forte, 60 pounds lighter and seven years younger. Forte, former Montana State guard, came up to the National Pro Football League last year.

Charlotte Hall Host Tomorrow To Little Hoyas

Cadet Charges Put Through Long Drill For First Home Game

Special Dispatch to The Post

Charlotte Hall, Md., Oct. 9.—A battered and bruised Charlotte Hall Military Academy football team plodded through a long drill here today as Coach Pop Ehringer cracked the whip over his Cadet charges in preparation for the invasion of the Little Hoyas of Georgetown Prep here on Friday.

Mercilessly crushed under a 27-0 count by West Nottingham Academy last Saturday, Charlotte Hall showed at its poorest form against a far-from-great Nottingham team. The Cadets were able to make only two first downs, both of these coming in the waning moments of the game when the Nottingham reserves were in charge.

Stories of the strength of Georgetown, which have been emanating from Garrett Park this week, have done nothing to bolster what slight hopes Ehringer may have had for a victory on Friday. He has been unable to scrimmage his squad because of the over-abundance of injuries now rampant among the boys.

Don Roessler, Charlotte Hall's burly plunging back, definitely will not play on Friday. Injured before the Nottingham game, Roessler attempted to perform against the Western Marylanders, only to aggravate a shoulder separation. Moreover, Walt Nechey, the Cadets' star flankman, reinjured his hip in Saturday's game and will see only little action against the Prepmen.

Ehringer probably will elevate Ken Volk and Jack Smith to starting end positions for the game, with Al Sondheimer, former Washington boy, edging into a place in the starting backfield. These moves indicate that he is breaking in his youngsters for next season and has little hope for the current campaign.

Friday's game will be the Cadets' first start of the year on their home field, and local officials look for a crowd of about 1,500 to witness the clash.

Cuccinello Reported Next Jersey Pilot

The Jersey City post has been vacant since dismissal of Bert Niehoff at the finish of the 1940 campaign.

Texas Elevens In Hot Race In Southwest

Aggies Being Pressed By S. M. U., T. C. U., Texas in Conference

Dallas, Tex., Oct. 9 (AP).—Two weeks ago a fledgling football fan could tell you the Texas Aggies were favorites to win their second straight Southwest Conference flag. Today the Aggies look even better—but three other clubs have moved up alongside them.

Now the race is as wide open as the Texas prairies.

Southern Methodist, Texas Christian and Texas have bid for consideration.

So far the conference slate against outside competition is clean. This week-end the boys play six games in five States. All they have to do is knock over such talent as Pitt, U. C. L. A., North Carolina, Louisiana State and Oklahoma.

T. C. U. Sets Test

The Aggies, still powered by Jarrin' Jawn Kimbrough, the 1939 all-America fullback, have conquerors of Pop Warner's San Jose State, and a touted Tulsa University crew.

Saturday at Los Angeles they move into tougher company, dating U. C. L. A. One Southwest Conference club, Southern Methodist, has cleaned the Uclans, 9-6.

The Methodists, shoulder-to-shoulder with the Aggies in the guessing, take their unsoiled record against Pitt at Pittsburgh.

"Money" Team

The real shocker—Texas Christian—goes over to Chapel Hill, N. C., for an afternoon with North Carolina. Buried in the early forecasts, Dutch Meyer's Christians have shot into contention with two rousing triumphs, 41-6 over Centenary and 20-0 over Arkansas.

Most folks think it is Dana Bible's "money" team that has arrived at University of Texas. They have walloped Colorado, 39 to 7, and slipped past Bo McMillan's Indiana Hoosiers, 13 to 6. Now they run smack into Oklahoma before some 35,000 at Dallas Saturday.

Quiet Jess Neely, who left Clemson to gamble with the Rice Institute job, pleased everyone with his opening 25-to-0 licking of Centenary, but he could just about settle a life-time contract if he delivers against Louisiana State at Houston Saturday night.

Only Arkansas, the "adopted son" of the conference, seems to be definitely outside.

Williamson Picks Ga. Tech In Ratings

Notre Dame Listed As Loser in Grid Selections

rating to beat the Sooners, 91.3, when they play at Austin.

Surprising picks are Whittier, 78.6, over Loyola of Los Angeles, 76.0, and Centre, 72.4, over Cincinnati, 69.3.

It looks like Columbia, 87.4, over Dartmouth, which fell before Franklin-Marshall, 23-21. Although Tulane showed great improvement against Auburn last week, we'll ride with Fordham's Rams for downig West Virginia, 20-7. If Tulane shows as much improvement this week-end, look out, Fordham!

Georgia to Lose

Other winners should be Ole Miss over Georgia, but watch your step; Iowa over Wisconsin in a close one; Drake over Kansas; St. Mary's of San Antonio, the most colorful team in America, over North Dakota; Washington, at 90.6, over Oregon at 86.2; Penn over Yale, and it might be a rout, and Penn State over West Virginia could be an upset.

S. M. U. should be able to do better against Pittsburgh than did Missouri, so we'll mount the Wild Mustangs. It's always a hard fight, but the rating says L. S. U., 91.2, will beat Rice, 89.8. Princeton should breeze through Navy. Cornell, top team in the Williamson Ratings, at 99.9, should walk over Army with its rating of 83.1. The same for Texas Aggies over U. C. L. A.

Two Indicted In Bribery Case

Chicago, Oct. 9 (AP).—Two men were indicted by a Federal grand jury today on charges of bribing a Federal Bureau of Investigation agent.

Indicted were Joseph Ryan, 40, and Thomas Ryan, 38, both of Chicago.

The indictment charged that they offered $1,000 to Special Agent Thomas Sutherland to influence his testimony in a case against Joseph Ryan.

Cotton Futures

New York, Oct. 9 (AP).—A last-minute flurry of hedge selling depressed cotton futures to final losses of 2 to 5 points after earlier stability today.

Price fixing by the trade and mill buying were a little less active than recently, and the list was responsive to mild pressure.

Southern selling was light, however, although spot sales in Southern markets have recently been running above last year after a long lag.

Worth street cloth dealers reported an upward tendency in prices, but only average business. Mills seemed reluctant to book orders for delivery very far into the future.

London, Oct. 9 (AP).—Security prices moved almost uniformly lower today after recent consistent improvement.

Chief group to counter the main trend was the rail division, where prices advanced again on prospects of an increase in service rates to offset rising costs.

Government bonds dipped minor fractions. Small losses dotted the industrial list although heavy manufacturing stocks made a fairly good showing.

Pressure against kaffirs centered on nonproducing issues. Base metals held quietly steady while oils shifted irregularly. Rubbers were neglected.

Pivotal Issues Slip Fractionally as Traders Await Clarifying of Far Eastern Tension

New York, Oct. 9.—Wall street attuned its operations today to the nervous tension of the Far East and stock leaders slipped fractions. It was the third consecutive backward session.

Few of the declines amounted to more than fractions. Traders were unable to establish any real trends and, in general, confined their operations to small-scale efforts.

The Associated Press average of 60 selected stocks dropped .3 of a point at 43.8. Transactions totaled 445,660 shares compared with 501,655 yesterday.

The day got off to a pessimistic start, carrying on the downward impetus of Monday and Tuesday. Sales were fairly brisk. Then steels and motors steadied, even gaining a bit in some cases.

Many other issues followed these leaders and operations slowed to a limping minimum, never to pick up again through the rest of the session.

Some analysts said they believed a resistance level had been reached and that purely technical developments would determine the course of trading until the Japanese situation was clarified.

Despite the continual climb in general industrial activity, boardrooms noted contraseasonal declines in freight car loadings and electric power outlook.

On the downside were such shares as Montgomery Ward, Western Union, American Smelting, American Can, General Electric, DuPont, Johns-Manville, Eastman, United States Gypsum and Texas Corporation.

Chief resistance was shown by United States Steel, Chrysler, United States Rubber, American Telephone, Westinghouse, New York Central and Paramount Pictures.

Following a lower course in the Curb, where the turnover was 77,000 shares, compared with 114,000 yesterday, were Colt Patent Firearms, Chicago Flexible Shaft, American Cyanamid B and Pittsburgh Plate Glass.

Foreign dollar bonds were knocked down two to five points and dragged most of the domestic list with them.

Japanese, Italian, German and South American loans bore the worst scars at the end of trading. Liquidation in these issues was coupled by brokers with mounting friction between major nations of the world which many quarters were afraid might eventually lead to economic and political upheavals that would deeply involve the credit of many governments.

Prominent losers included Japan 6½s at 59, 5½s at 46, Argentine 4s at 60⅝, Buenos Aires 4½s at 46¾, German 7s at 19, Italy 7s at 39⅛ and Sao Paulo 7s at 29⅞.

Declining fractions to around a point in the domestic list, mostly on light volume, were Continental Oil 2¾s at 103⅝, Great Northern 4s at 105¼, "Big Four" 4½s at 55¾, Alleghany 5s at 77¾, Southern Railway 4s at 56¾, Nickel Plate 4½s at 59 and Texas Corporation 3s at 105¼.

Among the few gainers were Southern Pacific 4½s, Firestone Tire 3½s and Erie 5s.

United States Governments were quiet, 9-32 of a point higher to 7-32 lower. Sales of $5,942,450, par value, compared with $6,668,400 on Tuesday.

Cotton was the chief holdout in a general advance among major commodities for future delivery. Rubber at New York rose .13 to .15 of a cent a pound and silk an outside of .07 of a cent a pound as grave news concerned the Far East indicated the possibility supplies might be stopped.

Many nonferrous metals improved, including copper, zinc and straits tin.

Wheat closed unchanged to ⅜ of a cent a bushel ahead at Chicago, but trade was cautious in view of the international situation. Corn ended ⅛ lower to ¼ higher.

Cotton declined 10 to 25 cents a bale.

The Associated Press weighted index of 35 wholesale spot staples, based on 1926 at 100, advanced to 74.02 from 73.89 Tuesday.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Oct. 9 (AP).—With grain trade bogged down by unwillingness of commercial and professional interests as well as outside investors to take market action beyond barest requirements, wheat prices steadied today in a dull session.

Uncertainty regarding international affairs and concern over possibility of deeper United States involvement continued to chill speculative interest while commercial and professional transactions were governed almost entirely by the Government-dominated domestic supply situation. Partly illustrative of the effect of the loan program, a car of No. 2 red wheat sold at 89¼ cents, about 7 cents over the December future and 8¼ over the loan rate on a Chicago basis. Scattered mill buying appeared at times.

After showing gains ranging up to ¾ cent and losses of as much as ⅝ cent at various times, wheat closed unchanged to ⅜ higher compared with yesterday, December, 82¼@82⅜; May, 81⅜@81¼. Corn was ⅛ off to ¼ up, December, 58⅜@58½; May, 59¼; oats, ¼@½ lower; soybeans, ¾@1 cent higher; rye, ¼@⅝ up and lard, 2@7 higher.

Corn trade was very narrow, with the pit deriving support from firmness of the spot market and shipping sales of 143,000 bushels. No. 1 yellow corn was quoted up to 65½. One car of new corn from Illinois graded No. 4 yellow, weighed 55½ pounds and tested 20 per cent moisture. It sold at 60½, or more than 2 cents over December.

Profit taking weakened oats while rye firmness was attributed to a technical rally after yesterday's decline. Soybean strength was credited to reports of prospective bolding plans.

with Glynn

There's much talk throughout the United States these days about bolstering our friendly relations with our Latin-American neighbors. So we think you should know that the Columbia Broadcasting System actually is doing something about it.

Take C. B. S.'s "American School of the Air," for instance, which you hear over WJSV every schoolday at 9:15 a. m. This year that word "American" applies not only to the United States, but to all the nations of the Western Hemisphere. For 14 North and South American countries, through official arrangements made with their ministries of education, are now listening to the C. B. S. educational programs in their schools.

Canada, of course, takes the programs directly from the C. B. S. network. But for Spanish-speaking countries, the network has a full staff of translators at work getting the scripts in shape for their presentation over local radio stations throughout Central America, Cuba and South America. The broadcasters in each country are free to adapt the scripts in any way they see fit to meet their educational needs.

In addition there are dozens of unbiased news programs which C. B. S. short-waves toward South America every day, talks by prominent officials and many hours of entertainment and music.

IT'S NOT ONLY LIVEABLE . . . IT'S LOVEABLE . . . THIS "MADE-TO-LIVE-IN-PEACE-WITH" FURNITURE THEY'VE DUBBED

Young MODERN

Don't let that word modern disconcert you. Modern furniture design is through with growing pains . . . From weird angles and useless knobs and bumps, have emerged restful, flowing lines designed not only to look restful, but designed to fit your curves and moods.

Taking the living room shown at the right. Soft muted colors on the upholstered pieces . . . not leopard skin or awning stripes. Occasional pieces within arms' reach and each with a purpose of life. Built of cheery bleached mahogany veneer on gumwood that isn't yellow, but a soft honey tone. Mild to say the least . . . and mild in price as well.
